VISALIA EMBEZZLING CASE.

A Beet-Sugar Plant to Be Erected Near Anaheim—Accident at Seattle.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 22.—Negotiations have been completed for the purchase of the land known as the San Juan grant, lying south of Orange vale, north of the American River and east of Rancho del Paso, by a Chicago syndicate for colonization purposes, and a party of intending settlers will be formed at once in the East. The first party is expected to arrive in Sacramento on the 30th. The portion of land purchased consists of 7000 acres, and the whole tract will be thoroughly irrigated.

FROM PENDLETON SOUTH.

A Proposed New Railroad With San Francisco as a Terminal.

PENDLETON, OR., April 22.—An official of the Washington and Columbia River Railway Company is authority for the statement that that company contemplates extending the road during the present season. One plan is to build from Dayton, Wash., to Grain City on Smoke River, tapping a productive country. Another plan is to construct a new line from Pendleton to Camas Prairie and the John Day region, involving eventually construction through to California, coming into that State at the head of the Sacramento Valley, with San Francisco as the objective point.

The line to John Day has been projected for several years, and it has been the cause of speculation as to whether the Washington and Columbia River road or the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company would take hold of it. The road will tap a country rich in agriculture, mining, timber and stock raising. It will run through Umatilla, Grant, Harney and Lake counties in Oregon, and enter California at the northern border of Modoc County.

Theodore Wilcox, vice-president of the Washington and Columbia River Railroad Company, has gone to Europe, and it is intimated his visit is to arrange for funds with which to construct the road.

LUCK OF A SEATTLE BOY.

Miraculous Escape of a Foundry Apprentice From a Horrible Death.

SEATTLE, WASH., April 22.—Charles Meydenbauer, aged 19 years, a member of one of the best-known families in this city, had a miraculous escape from a horrible death this morning.

Meydenbauer is an apprentice in a foundry here, where the big pumps for the Government drydock are being made, and went up on a ladder to fix a belt. The ladder slipped and threw him against a shaft-collar. In a moment he was whirled around in midair at a terrific rate. The engine was shut down and he was rescued, but not until his clothes had been stripped from his body, his left arm broken in two places and his left leg fractured. He will recover.

VISALIA EMBEZZLEMENT CASE.

Theodore K. Murray Accused of Defrauding Sacramento Bankers.

VISALIA, CAL., April 22.—Theodore K. Murray, the politician, county divisionist and cattle-buyer, who is charged with embezzling several thousand dollars from Cox & Clarke, the Sacramento bankers, is having his preliminary trial before Justice Holder. Murray is accused of having appropriated for his own use large sums with which he was to have purchased cattle for the firm.

In Clarke's testimony this afternoon it was shown that Murray was allowed but 50 cents per head on all stock purchased, out of which he was to pay all expenses of delivery to shipping points. The purchase of a hotel in this city by Murray is said to have been made with Clarke's money.

SMALLPOX AT NOGALES.

Two Deaths From the Dread Disease Have Already Occurred.

PHŒNIX, ARIZ., April 22.—Governor Hughes is authority for the statement in this evening's Herald that black smallpox is prevalent at Nogales. Private telegrams from Fairbank also convey information of two deaths yesterday at that place.

The Republican yesterday gave the first alarm, but no attention was given it. The Governor consulted Dr. Scott Helm on the situation with a view of quarantining.

LOS ANGELES CASE SETTLED.

An End to Litigation in the Matter of the Annie Pratt Estate.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 22.—Judge Clark made an order to-day in the Annie Pratt estate case, by stipulation of all parties, that the motion for a new trial made several months ago be denied. The motion by proponents to retax the costs was allowed, and all costs claimed by the contestants against the proponents of the will—the Mansfields and the Crosses—were totally disallowed. The petition to compromise the claims of the heirs against the estate was granted on Saturday. This practically settles the whole matter, as far as the courts are concerned.

Robbers Captured Near Santa Rosa.

SANTA ROSA, CAL., April 22.—Sunday afternoon two tramps assaulted another tramp on the road about a mile north of this city, knocked him down and robbed him of a sum of money. The three had been together for a number of days, and on Sunday the two who made the assault discovered that the third man had some money. After being robbed the fellow came to town and reported to the officers, who went out and arrested the two, together with three men who claim to have seen the trouble. The man who was robbed was also detained. Some interesting developments may be drawn from the case, as it is suspected that some of the men are members of a gang which has been robbing ranchhouses in this part of the county lately.

FILCHED FROM SANTA ANA.

A Private Company's Customers Supplied From the City's Water Mains.

SANTA ANA, CAL., April 22.—The report of the committee of investigation on the water circuit between the city waterworks and the Spurgeon water system, by which it was claimed by the former Board of Trustees that the city water works was supplying the private company's customers, was made to-night.

It is in effect that a thorough investigation has been made and connections found between the two systems at the Commercial Bank corner, forming a circuit, but by whom made or at what time the committee was unable to state. It was stated, however, that they were of the opinion that the circuit was formed at or near the time of the breaking of the pipe by a paving force. The committee so far has been unable to obtain sufficient evidence to attach the blame to any person or persons.

This report, as accepted by the Board of Trustees, practically ends so far as the city is concerned what ten days ago promised to be an intricate water muddle.

SANTA ROSA'S QUEEN.

Miss Isabel Donovan Wins the Crown of Flowers.

FRIENDS ARE JUBILANT.

Tremendous Applause Greets the Announcement of the Result.

PLANS FOR THE CORONATION.

The Key to the City to Be Surrendered to Her Majesty by the Mayor.

SANTA ROSA, CAL., April 22.—Miss Isabel Donovan is to be queen of the carnival of roses. When the polls closed to-day and the final count was made she was found to lead Miss Belle Spottswood by 160 votes.

Interest in the contest has been at fever heat all day. As the time for the closing of the polls drew near a great crowd of interested spectators packed the voting place and ballots were cast as fast as they could be crammed into the box. At 1:30 Miss Donovan led by nearly 100 votes, and it became almost a certainty that she would win the floral crown. At 8 P. M. the polls were closed and the judges hastened to count the ballots. The crowd outside waited in silence to hear the result.

Soon after 8 o'clock the count was completed, and when the announcement was made that Miss Isabel Donovan was the winner there was a tremendous burst of applause. Besides the committee Mayor Woodward, Dr. Savage and Attorney Seawell counted the final vote, which resulted as follows:

1—Miss Donovan, 4610.
2—Miss Spottswood, 4450.
3—Miss Matthews, 632.
4—Miss Bishop, 263.
5—Miss Solomon, 261.
6—Miss Byington, 252.
7—Miss Stites, 164.
8—Miss Roney, 130.
9—Mrs. Byington, 101.
10—Miss Yost, 75.

Miss Donovan's friends are rejoicing to-night and congratulations are pouring in by wire upon the successful candidate, who is manager of the Sunset Telephone office here.

The committee on entertainment has decided that the Queen shall be escorted from her residence to the Athenæum by a company of fifty boys and girls gorgeously decorated with flowers. She will be followed by a score of lady and gentlemen attendants. Upon arrival at the theater she will be received with an appropriate address, when the key to the city will be formally presented by the Mayor and the Common Council. She then wears the queenly crown of flowers and will reign during the three days of the floral fiesta.

After the coronation of the Queen a chorus of 100 voices will sing patriotic airs appropriate to the occasion. A floral song, written and set to music especially for the occasion, will be rendered by Mrs. Gale, a popular local vocalist. After the coronation of the Queen and the addresses and singing by the chorus of voices the Queen and her attendants will march to the flower show and formally open it to the public. This will conclude the performance for the first evening.

The buildings along the line of the principal streets will be gorgeously decorated and the streets lined with flowers.

As the time of the carnival draws near one can begin to realize the magnitude of the preparations. Already is there plenty of funds pledged, and the executive committee is sparing no pains to make the event one long to be remembered. The collection of subscriptions for the rose carnival fund has commenced. The people of Santa Rosa, always liberal and energetic in a good cause, have shown their interest in the carnival in a substantial way.

MISS ISABEL DONOVAN, WHO HAS BEEN CHOSEN QUEEN OF THE SANTA ROSA CARNIVAL.

HEALDSBURG'S FETE POSTPONED.

It Will Not Take Place Until After the Santa Rosa Carnival.

HEALDSBURG, CAL., April 22.—The Floral Association to-day decided to postpone the festival until Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 16, 17 and 18. This decision was reached owing to lack of time for making the necessary arrangements and the fact that Healdsburg and Northern Sonoma desire to unite in a display at the Santa Rosa rose carnival.

Efforts are being made for a creditable display by this city at the county capital. A feature will be two huge steers, which weigh 6000 pounds, the largest on the coast. These animals are very gentle and a platform saddle will be built for each, in which costumed drivers will ride. The whole will be decorated with Easter lilies and ferns. The Healdsburg Bicycle Club will also participate.

Voting for the queen of Healdsburg's festival opened again this morning with renewed interest. The contest was exciting, first one candidate leading and then another.

To-Day the Warriors in Blue Parade Before the Governor—Reception at the Capitol.

SACRAMENTO, CAS., April 22.—Grand Army men have been coming into the city all day, until now bluecoats by the score are met on every block. The visitors were met by the reception committee and assigned to the rooms secured for them, after which they strolled about the city visiting points of interest and renewing old war acquaintanceships.

Short sessions of the Grand Army, Ladies of the Grand Army, the Women's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans' encampments were held this afternoon, but nothing of importance was done at any of them, the time being taken up with organizing and preparing for future business.

To-night the veterans attended a reception at the State Capitol, at which the Mayor presided, and many prominent State and local officials and citizens were present. Addresses were made and a choice literary and musical entertainment was given.

To-morrow forenoon the annual parade will take place. It is expected to be a brilliant affair. Governor Budd and staff will be mounted and will review the column at the conclusion of the parade.

Department Commander J. M. Walling of Nevada City presides over the Grand Army of the Republic encampment. He has been here since Sunday morning assisting in preparing for the week's business.

To-morrow afternoon the various bodies will hold a session and in the evening will attend the Clunie Opera house, as many of them as can get inside. No one will be admitted except veterans. On Wednesday night the visitors will be given a banquet in the State exposition building, and on Thursday the excursion to the foothills, the American river water power, the mines, the State prison, and the orchards and vineyards in the vicinity of Folsom will take place.

At the Mayor's request all the city departments will close to-morrow during the parade. The old soldiers have received a hearty welcome here by every one, and they are enjoying themselves.

WEATHER AND CROP BULLETIN.

Rains and Cool Weather Needed Over the Entire State.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 22.—Director Barwick of the State Weather Service reports the average temperature for the week ending Monday, April 22: For Eureka 56, Fresno 64, Independence 62, Los Angeles 60, Red Bluff 66, Sacramento 65, San Francisco 56, San Luis Obispo and San Diego 58 each.

As compared with the normal temperature an excess of heat is reported of five degress in the Sacramento Valley and one degree in the San Joaquin Valley, while the northern portion of Southern California reports normal conditions to have prevailed at Los Angeles and a heat deficiency of one degree is reported at San Diego. The coast counties report an excess of heat at Eureka of six degrees, while that of San Francisco was normal.

The total precipitation during the week was nothing for the San Joaquin Valley, and but a trace for the Sacramento Valley and the coast counties, except at Eureka where there was .30 of an inch precipitated. As compared with the normal precipitation there was a deficiency during the week at Eureka of .54 of an inch; Fresno, .28; Los Angeles, .41; Red Bluff, .55; Sacramento, .63; San Francisco, .49 and San Diego .21.

The excess of temperature with a deficiency of moisture during the week was further exaggerated by continuous and drying northerly winds, which have been rather detrimental to the grain and feed over the entire State, the effect being more severely felt in the lower San Joaquin Valley than elsewhere.

The reports from the numerous correspondents show that the fruit crop is only a fair one for some varieties and short on some others, while the grain bids fair to be a good crop unless the present spell of dry weather, with the drying northerly winds, continues for some time. If it does it will evidently draw the moisture out of the ground, and cause a hard crust to form over the surface, which is detrimental to any and all kinds of crops.

A few good showers are now badly needed over the whole State, to be followed by cool weather. An abundant hay crop seems to be an assured fact over the entire State.

DEATH RATHER THAN HUNGER.

Failure to Secure Employment Leads to a Suicide.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 22.—J. Flannigan committed suicide to-night by shooting himself through the breast, in the region of the heart, with a 32-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver.

Flannigan was a printer by trade, and was despondent because of lack of work. For the past year he has been rooming in a building at the corner of Tenth and I streets, and this evening he retired to his apartment, disrobed himself, extinguished the light, lay down in bed, and, placing the muzzle of the revolver to his breast, fired three shots in rapid succession, every one of them taking effect.

Claims to a Share of the Proceeds of a Railroad Sale Not Allowed.

PORTLAND, OR., April 22.—Judge Bellinger, in the United States court to-day, denied the petition of G. W. Hunt to share in the proceeds of the sale of the Oregon and Washington Territory Railroad to the extent of $233,340.

Hunt claimed to have advanced this amount to W. S. Todd and C. B. Wright, which they had failed to apply on the interest of bonds held by them. The bonds came into possession of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and when the road was sold under a mortgage recently Hunt demanded the $233,340 which had not been applied as interest.

JAILED AT ENSENADA.

Don Manuel Riveroll Charged With a Gold Bar Theft.

ROBBED HIS OWN VAULT.

He Is Placed in Solitary Confinement Pending Examination.

ITS HIDING-PLACE REVEALED.

A Rumor at San Diego That the Mexican Officials Have Found the Stolen Bar.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., April 22.—Don Manuel Riveroll, the discoverer of the famous copper mine at Santa Rosalia and the foremost commission merchant of Ensenada, has been arrested there on orders from Governor Sangines. He is charged with the theft of a gold bar valued at $12,000, placed by the Ibarra Gold Mining Company in his charge.

The bar was stolen on the night of March 20, the safe having been opened by the combination. For this crime Allen Pratt, the bookkeeper for Riveroll, and his friend J. E. Garratt, were arrested. Nothing whatever has been shown against them, and they are lying in prison with no prospect of a trial or release.

It is believed that the Mexican authorities have found new evidence showing Riveroll's connection with the case, and the rumor reached here to-day that the hiding-place of the gold bar had been discovered, and that two other unknown Mexicans were implicated in the robbery.

Riveroll is worth at least $100,000, and Ensenada people are unable to account for his crime, though the general opinion appears to be that he is guilty. He was placed in solitary confinement and will be so kept until to-morrow, when his examination takes place.

Pratt and Garratt are Mexican citizens by naturalization, and cannot claim the protection of Great Britain. It is not believed here that the authorities have any direct evidence against any of the five men now in jail.

RIVERSIDE'S ORANGE DAY.

Fully Five Thousand Visitors Attend the Initial Celebration.

The Half-Million Club Tendered a Reception in the Opera-House.

RIVERSIDE, CAL., April 22.—Riverside's first "orange day" celebration occurred to-day, and the city never presented a more beautiful appearance than it did this morning. The business blocks were decorated with various colors from the sidewalks to the tops, and many private residences were bowers of beauty, with streamers and bunting reaching across the streets from building to building.

From 8 o'clock until noon the streets were crowded with carriages loaded down with flowers, oranges and evergreens. Fully 5000 visitors were present, among them the Half-million Club of San Francisco. Riverside kept open house, as every visitor was presented with all the fine oranges he desired.

The forenoon was spent in showing the visitors around the city and through the famous Magnolia avenue.

In the afternoon a mass-meeting was held at the Opera-house, in the nature of a reception to the San Francisco visitors. George Frost, the president of the City Trustees, made the address of welcome, which was responded to by W. M. Bunker, president of the Half-million Club.

The intention is to make this celebration a yearly affair.

Entertained at San Bernardino.

Small Seal Catches.

PORT TOWNSEND, WASH., April 22.—A report from Neah Bay to-day predicts that the present season will see small results in coast sealing. This opinion is based on the poor luck thus far met by all vessels, including a half dozen native schooners now at San Juan, and also American vessels which have reported catches from Neah Bay. The exceedingly rough weather of the past month seriously interfered with the taking of seals, which have for the most part already moved to the breeding grounds on Copper Island, in Bering Sea. The vessels throughout the entire fleet have not averaged fifty skins.

Spokane Men Defrauded.

TACOMA, WASH., April 22.—The additional facts that have been learned show that Paul Schulze's defalcations as Northern Pacific land agent reach a much larger sum than heretofore stated. The St. Paul Syndicate of Spokane is known to have paid him between $400,000 and $500,000 for Spokane property, for which no account was made. R. A. O'Farrell of Spokane is here trying to protect the syndicate's interests. The property purchased was four or five acres near the new freighthouse, in the heart of Spokane.

FAIR HALFMOON BAY.

A Pretty Suburb That Opposes the Boulevard.

IT IS NOT IN ITS INTEREST

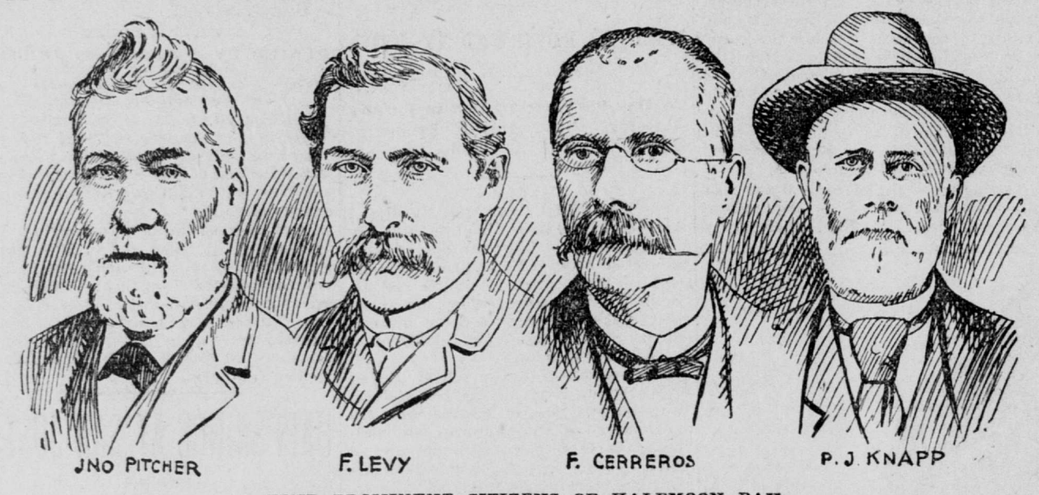

The People Want a Coast Railroad Down to Santa Cruz.

VIEWS OF LEADING CITIZENS.

The Silurians of San Mateo Counted Upon to Fight Against Bonding.

HALFMOON BAY, CAL., April 22.—The people of Halfmoon Bay and all along the coast line of San Mateo County are a solid phalanx in opposition to the boulevard proposed to be built on the east side of the county. One of the oldest residents, a gentleman who has been thirty-five years in Halfmoon Bay, said to a CALL representative in substance: "The boulevard question now agitating the county if carried through would be a great detriment to us all, and especially to the coast side. It would be morally wrong and totally unfair to tax the western portion for a road which would not run within fifteen miles of us. Why? For the simple reason that it would naturally divert and draw all the traffic to the San Mateo side, and would not benefit Halfmoon Bay or Pescadero in the least. The west side has been fighting for years to get a coast railroad which should go right along by the ocean down to Santa Cruz, and eventually join the Santa Fe system. There are five districts in San Mateo, with five Supervisors, the First District of which is the center, Colma, Supervisor Jacob Bryan; the Second, San Mateo, Supervisor Brown; the Third District, Redwood City, Supervisor P. H. McEvoy; the Fourth District, Halfmoon Bay, Supervisor Peter Burke; and the Fifth District, Pescadero, Supervisor H. B. Adair.

If the county were bonded for a boulevard the scheme would have to be put to a vote of the people, and would include every bit of taxable property in the county to pay the bonds. To carry out the scheme the proposition would have to be carried by a two-thirds vote. Three-quarters of the property is on the east side of the mountains, and on the coast side there are not enough voters to make even a decent kick. But the hope of the coast side lies in the knowledge that in the interior there are a great many silurians who would vote against the boulevard if it did not run through their property, and benefit them pecuniarily. So the only thing to squelch the proposition is to let the property-owners on the other side of the county beat themselves.

Mr. Ferdinand Levy thought that it would be manifestly unjust to tax any of the citizens for a road that would be a detriment to them. He also remarked that when the ocean side wanted to run a coast railroad the opposite side of the county received the scheme with arctic frigidity, and that it was only natural that the coast people should oppose a plan which would cost them money and hurt them if carried through.

Frank H. Owen, proprietor of the Coast Advocate, a paper entirely devoted to the interests of the county, said regarding the meeting recently held at Redwood City: "It was held to talk up a proposition to bond the county for funds with which to build a boulevard from San Francisco to the south line of San Mateo County. It was conceded at this meeting, as it is by all who have given the matter any thought, that bonding the county is the only way to obtain the necessary funds." He doubted, however, whether the people would vote the bonds. Opposition from the coast side was both feared and expected and it would be very decided unless the scheme embraced a good road from San Mateo to Pescadero. Without that every one would object to the building of a road along the bay. The coast wanted roads as much as any other section of the county and demanded that its needs be considered in connection with those of the bay side.

The present highway was a disgrace and was good only when the weather was good. A smooth road was demanded from which tourists and visitors could enjoy the exquisite mountain scenery between San Mateo and Halfmoon Bay and the delightful journey to Pescadero, eighteen miles further on. If the whole county was to be taxed, the whole county should receive the benefit of the project. It will be seen, therefore, that Mr. Owen is as practical as he is progressive. He only wants fair play, and would be glad to see a boulevard constructed as long as the coast was not left out in the cold. A road was wanted over which every draught horse could haul a ton winter or summer. It would not cost more than the county could afford and would pay for itself in actual cash, to say nothing of satisfaction, within three or four years.

It will be seen, therefore, that just at present San Mateo County is a house slightly divided against itself, but it would seem only just that if it be bonded to make a boulevard the coast line, if equally taxed, should be equally benefited.

There are thousands of San Franciscans and Californians generally who have lived here for over a score of years and who think they know all about the natural beauties and the glorious scenery of the State. Yet not one of them, perhaps, ever rode over the mountains from San Mateo to Halfmoon Bay. To describe the exquisite beauty of the hills, gorges and canyons would require the pen of a Ruskin or the imagery of an Emerson. The entire drive is simply a succession of panoramas, so varied and yet so beautiful as to make the best descriptive writer pause before attempting to sketch them. There are hills which are almost perpendicular in their ascent; gulches, hundreds of feet deep, in which giant redwood trees mingle with the great white flowers of the dogwood, the crimson of the red currant, the creamy tints of the ironwood and all the other glories of a virgin forest growth. The variety of timber is almost endless, the foliage a dream of color and the air as pure and balmy as the breath of a babe. In ascending, the hills rise above the visitor like majestic giants robed in perennial verdure. From the summit the visitor gazes down into richly cultivated valleys, fields of grain and tiny brooks of silvered water. The tourist is only twenty miles, as the crow flies, from San Francisco, yet he is in a miniature Switzerland minus the ice and snow.

The ride from San Mateo to Halfmoon Bay is just thirteen and seven-eighths miles in length, and every foot of it furnishes a scenic feast for the lover of nature. For a considerable part of the route the visitor drives by the series of Crystal Springs Lakes, eleven miles in length, and at one place crosses them. The huge dam, 110 feet high, which confines the waters of the reservoir, is 60 feet thick at the base and 10 feet wide on the summit. The waters average a depth of ninety feet in the middle and are the home of the game trout and the equally plucky black bass.

Spanishtown, or Halfmoon Bay, was originally settled about forty-five years ago, mostly by Spaniards, as its old name implies. It has two churches, both liberally supported, the one a Methodist organization and the other Roman Catholic, known as "Nuestra Senora de Pilar." There are lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Freemasons, United Ancient Order of Druids, Ancient Order of United Workmen and Native Sons. The leading hotel is the Seaside, kept by Mrs. S. Cerrero and her husband, who is a chef de cuisine of rare ability. Another hotel, "The Occidental," will shortly be opened and is now being furnished for the reception of guests.

Halfmoon Bay is a charming summer resort, for it affords amusement of all kinds. The ocean yields every species of fish to be found in the San Francisco markets, and within four miles there is excellent mountain trout-fishing. The visitor can get salmon trout without leaving the city, and game of all kinds is abundant in the hills. Then comes the beach drive of nearly seven miles with bathing that is equal to the best dips in Monterey, Coronado or Santa Cruz surfs.

Halfmoon Bay never having attained railroad facilities is naturally peopled by conservative citizens. But though conservative they are in the main progressive and full of energy, looking to a boom in the New California of the future.

Where there are so many solid citizens in this little community it is difficult to know of whom to speak first, but the oldest settler is entitled to the honor and he is to be found in the person of Don Pablo Vasquez, for forty-seven years a resident of Halfmoon Bay, and the son of the foreman of the Mission Dolores ranch, established by Junipero Serra long before San Francisco was ushered into existence. He told a representative of the CALL yesterday that the Franciscan fathers used to run the mission cattle on Government land and in taking care of them his father had to live in a mud house, called in Spanish a casa de lodo. Asked how these were built he replied that first posts were set in the ground on four corners and willow saplings placed at close intervals all around. The interstices were then filled up with good old-fashioned adobe mud. Layers of tule tied with rawhide formed the roof, and the casa de lodo was an accomplished fact. Don Pablo Vasquez was asked, jokingly, if he was any relation to the dead bandit of that surname, and he replied, seriously: "Yes, he was my first cousin, but I never saw him in my life." He has in his possession a copy of the Costanso diary of 1769, when Don Gaspar de Portola was Governor. The original diary is in the Sutro Library and relates chiefly to the discovery of San Francisco and the settlement of the Santa Clara Valley. Don Pablo has also in his possession several very rare and valuable Spanish documents over 200 years old.

Festooned with foliage of every kind, smothered in an indescribable wealth of roses, and the windows hidden by creepers, the visitor who pauses on the bridge at Halfmoon Bay looks down on a deserted house still in good preservation but utterly abandoned. It was built years ago on the bed of the creek which is spanned by the bridge, and is to-day a picturesque home, although without doors or windows. The owner was a Mr. Rockefeller, a cousin of the Standard Oil king, but his home, almost on the level of the creek, was one day menaced by a winter flood. As the waters rose the bank cut away from the foundations and got behind the house. In an effort to save the piano the instrument was raised on wooden trestles four feet high, but the flood was relentless and accomplished its work of ruin, leaving the house a relic of an unwise site, but to-day standing as primly as ever, environed with willows, clematis, and an unkempt wealth of bushes and flowers. Heavy-bearing fruit trees, now in blossom, surround the doomed house, and the scene suggests Goldsmith's "Deserted Village."

Halfmoon Bay points with pride to a good grammar school equipped with five excellent teachers. The youth of the community has no right to complain of a lack of educational facilities. A month ago the bicycle craze attacked the town, and last Sunday ten of these machines were cavorting madly around the streets with more to hear from in the near future.

There is no end to the deposit of limestone near Halfmoon Bay and petroleum and bituminous rock are only waiting a railroad to make their existence felt most profitably. There are timber, endless masses of granite, tanbark and other crude staples all waiting for the coast railroad.

North of Halfmoon Bay is essentially a vegetable country, although adapted to various kinds of agricultural products and dairying. Handicapped as the farmers are with the necessity of hauling their crops by team over the heavy mountain grades, the section north of San Pedro Mountain has shipped 17,000,000 pounds of cabbage to the Chicago market and sold nearly as much in San Francisco in a single season, besides enormous quantities of green peas, beans and root crops, for the growth of which the soil and climate are particularly adapted. As to milk, butter and small fruits the supply is practically inexhaustible in a district where the grass is green for nine months in the year and in which four crops can be raised every twelve months. A curious relic of early days is an adobe house built in 1850 by contract by Francisco Barriesa.

Among the prominent merchants is Ferdinand Levy of Levy Bros., who has lived here for twenty-three years and conducts a store for general merchandise, besides owning a large warehouse full of agricultural implements. He is always ready to push the interests of Halfmoon Bay and is especially interested in the success of the proposed coast railroad. In addition to the other interests of the firm Levy Bros. carry the agencies of four first-class insurance companies.

But if there is one industry more than another of which Halfmoon Bay is proud it is its creamery. The local paper says in its issue of April 10: "The new Sharpless cream-separator has been set up in the creamery and works beautifully. Its capacity is 2500 pounds an hour. The creamery is making considerable cheese now and will while the price of butter is so low, the output being about 300 pounds per day. Last month the creamery bought over 400,000 pounds of milk and the value of the products was about $1500.

Another prominent industry is that of R. T. Knapp, who is the patentee and manufacturer of a side-hill plow, so necessary in the mountains. It is used for land-breaking, vineyard, orchard and general farming work. Mr. Knapp established water works in 1885 and enlarged his system this year. He has a reservoir holding 1,000,000 gallons three miles from town and distributes water all over through 10-inch mains. It is fine spring water. The gentleman is a strong temperance man and has erected a drinking fountain for general use and presented it to the town.

THE MOSS BEACH HOUSE.

Seven miles from Halfmoon Bay on the beach and the road to Colma, in the township known as the "Colony," there is a lovely resort known as the Moss Beach House, where good bathing can be enjoyed, and sea moss, abalones, shells and curios can be collected and gathered ad libitum. The location is one of extreme loveliness, and the resort is owned by a most progressive German, J. F. Wienke. Cottages surround the house and stages connect it with Colma.

The legal and judicial interests of Halfmoon are represented by Mr. John Pitcher, Justice of the Peace, a pleasant and universally respected gentleman.

The oldest settler in the community, without counting Mr. Vasquez, who was born here, is William Pringle, who has a harness-shop and thinks there is nothing like leather.

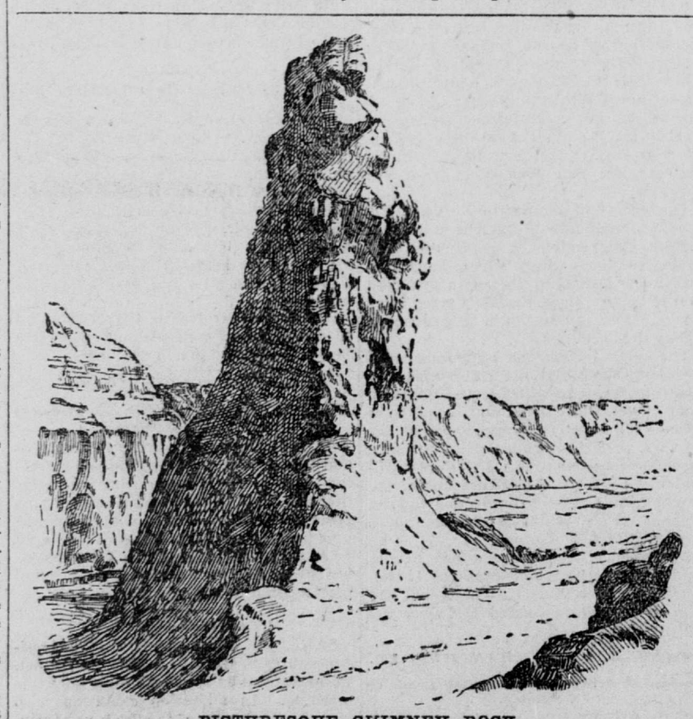

It would require too much space to describe the beauties of Purissimo Falls, Chimney Rock, Seal Rock and other points of interest; but it would be unfair to close this article without a good word for the Coast Advocate, the paper which is all in all to Halfmoon Bay.

The editor, Frank H. Owen, is a native of Oregon, and has been in the newspaper business from his early boyhood. At fourteen years of age he was apprenticed as a printer, and six months after serving his four years' "time" became a newspaper editor and publisher, by reason of his employer failing to pay the wages he had earned. The young man was compelled to take the paper in settlement of the debt. Later Mr. Owen came to California and, after marrying, returned to Oregon, where for a number of years he was foreman of the daily Evening Telegram of Portland. Getting tired of working for wages, and believing his talent as a writer would yield a better income than that paid a printer, he went over to Washington, then a Territory, and bought the Chehalis Bee, and soon made it the leading country newspaper of Western Washington.

After engaging in several other successful newspaper enterprises, Mr. Owen embarked in land speculation at a time when all Oregon and Washington was wild over boom townships, and, as might have been expected, lost the money he had made while engaged in the business he was familiar with. He then came to California again, traveled the State all over, decided that while this was the garden of the world, San Mateo was the gem of the garden, and there he has his home. Mr. Owen is a stanch Republican and something of a politician. If he has a hobby it is that of county roads, and believes that the building of first-class turnpike roads are only second in importance in the development of a country to railroads. He is heartily in accord with the CALL on its boulevard proposition, providing that the scheme is broad enough to build a coast turnpike at the same time. While his newspaper, the Coast Advocate, is not a large one, it is all home print and always filled with original matter, a feature of which is articles descriptive of the attractions and resources of the county. He has an accomplished wife, who is also a writer of considerable ability.

A GLIMPSE OF THE TOWN.

PICTURESQUE CHIMNEY ROCK.

RIOTOUS NEGROES.

They Terrorize the White People in the Town of Bath, N. C.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 23.—News has reached here that a large mob of negroes Saturday attempted to take possession of the town of Bath.

They are employes at the sawmills and were angry because some of them had been arrested by town officers. They entered stores and barrooms, helped themselves, and threatened people with death.

They wounded four deputy Sheriffs, and so terrorized the people that they locked themselves in their houses to save their lives.

Telegrams were sent to the town of Washington, sixteen miles away, for aid and a company of troops was put at the disposal of the Sheriff. Sunday morning the people of Bath started out to arrest the leading rioters.

They captured five. One of them named Lanier resisted and fired at the posse, and was shot and mortally wounded. The other prisoners were taken to Washington in a boat.

An attempt was made by the negroes to release them, but the attempt was foiled by the arrival of the militia on a steamer.

All was quiet at Bath to-day. The ringleader of the mob, Thomas Renner, is still at large.

An Informer Goes Insane.

NASHVILLE, TENN., April 22.—A Chattanooga special says: Sam Frazier, the man who had betrayed his companions who had entered into a conspiracy to hold up and rob the train at Greenwood, and which resulted in the death of Tom and Jere Morrow, has become a raving maniac. He was confined in the jail at Somerset by the officials, who at first believed he was feigning insanity, but he has developed an unmistakable case of lunacy and has been sent to the insane asylum near Somerset, Ky.

KILLED AT CALLAHAN.

Henry Hayter Shot to Death by William Nulls.

THE CRIME UNPROVOKED.

Murdered Because He Refused to Sign His Name to a Deed.

WAS TRYING TO GET AWAY.

He Receives a Charge of Shot In His Back While Riding From the Assassin's Cabin.

YREKA, CAL., April 22.—Sheriff Hobbs received the following telegram this morning:

"CALLAHAN, CAL., April 22, 8:20 A. M. W. L. Hobbs, Sheriff, Yreka: Henry Hayter was shot to death yesterday evening by William M. Nulls, who is supposed to be at his cabin on Sugar Creek. Come to Etna. Nulls is a hard character.

A. H. BAR."

Hayter's dying words to A. B. Chambers were that he (Hayter) rode up to Nulls' cabin and Nulls came out and told Hayter that he wanted him to sign a deed with him to some mining property being transferred to other parties. Hayter said he would not do it and Nulls said he would shoot him if he refused. They quarreled, and Nulls stepped into the house and got his gun. Hayter was not armed and started to ride away when Nulls shot him in the back. Hayter was but thirty or forty feet away.

Hayter said that after he was about 200 yards away he fainted and fell from his horse. Recovering later he remounted and rode to James Sullivan's house, where he died about 5 o'clock this morning.

Under Sheriff Radford and others are scouring the country around Callahan for Nulls, who fled to the hills. They are confident of his capture.

PORTLAND, OR., April 22. — Jacob Swartz, the young man who was stabbed in the neck three weeks ago by his father, near Salem, has died from the effects of his wounds. The father stabbed the son in a drunken rage.

CANADIAN PACIFIC COMPLAINT.

Officials Say Eastbound Rates Are Being Cut by Iowa Roads.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 22.—The Canadian Pacific has lodged a complaint with the Western Lines Passenger Association against certain Iowa roads. The Canadian Pacific alleges they are manipulating eastbound rates in San Francisco. It says the offending lines have made large deals with brokers and are paying them $2 commissions in excess of those authorized to regular agents.

Chairman Caldwell has investigated the matter and has found that second-class rates are being cut $3 to Chicago through the Missouri River gateway. It is also said that the northern lines have been offending in the manner as flagrantly as any Missouri River line.

GRESHAM IN NEW YORK.

The Secretary of State Consults With Prominent Financiers.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—Secretary of State Gresham, who came to New York Sunday, spent most of his time to-day with the ex-Secretary of the Treasury Bristow and J. W. Doane, a wealthy banker, who is also receiver and government director of the Union Pacific Railroad. Mr. Gresham was closeted with the gentleman, it was said, until the very moment of his departure for Washington.

To callers this afternoon and this morning word was sent that the Secretary was too busy to see anybody. Neither Mr. Bristow nor Mr. Doane could be seen to-night.

CHICAGO INQUIRER.

That Is the Name of the New Democratic Daily Newspaper.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., April 22.—Papers of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State for a new daily and weekly Democratic newspaper in the city of Chicago, to be known as the Inquirer, the capital stock being $1,000,000. Among the incorporators whose names are given are:

The policy of the new paper on the financial question has not yet been fully determined. McConnell came out recently for free silver.

Railroad Speed Record Broken.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., April 22.—The fastest time ever made between here and Atlantic City and the fastest time ever made by a railroad train in this country for such a great distance was that accomplished by the special newspaper train on the Pennsylvania road yesterday morning. The train pulled out of the Camden depot at 5:36¼ and 45 minutes later came to a stop in Atlantic City. The distance is 58 3-10 miles, and the average speed was 76½ miles an hour.

The fastest mile was made in 41 seconds, which is an average of 87 8-10 miles an hour. This is the most notable performance in railroad speed which has yet been made.

Conway's Suit Against Mitchell.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., April 22.—The trial of the suit against United States Senator John L. Mitchell, whom Sculptor John S. Conway sued to recover $25,000, alleged to have been promised for work on a soldiers' monument, to be erected in a local park, began to-day.

Senator Mitchell denied that he ever said he would spend $25,000 or $30,000 for such a monument. What he did say was to the effect that he would not spend more than $25,000 or $30,000. Briefly, Senator Mitchell's version is that he employed Mr. Conway to do the work with the right to discharge him at any time he saw fit.

Delaware's Senatorial Battle.

DOVER, DEL., April 22.—One ballot was taken to-day for United States Senator. It resulted: Higgins 6, Addicks 6, Massey 3, Pennewill 2, Ridgely 10, Tunnel 1.

Duquesnesboro, Pa., Burned.

PITTSBURG, PA., April 22.—Almost the entire business portion of Duquesnesborough, opposite McKeesport, on the Monongahela River, was destroyed by fire of a supposed incendiary origin, which broke out at 4 A. M. The loss is variously estimated at $80,000 to $100,000. Duquesnesborough is wholly without apparatus, and the bucket brigade offered the only resistance to the flames. The high wind drove the fire up the hillside, and everything in its path was destroyed. The town is panic-stricken owing to a lack of water and fire apparatus. Little insurance was carried by the property-owners, the insurance premiums being almost prohibitive.

Will Eject Pullman Tenants.

CHICAGO, ILLS., April 22.—The Pullman Palace Car Company has begun serving notices upon tenants who are behind in their rents that unless they pay the amount due the company suit will be brought to forcibly eject them from the houses.

One hundred and fifty notices were today placed in the hands of Constables to serve upon tenants. Those who have been served with notices say they have no money to pay the back rents.

Some of them are in arrears ten months, while others are only two and three months behind. The majority of the tenants are discharged employes of the company.

Texas and Free Silver.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, April 22. — About seventy-five silverites in the Texas Legislature held a caucus to-night in which they swore allegiance to a 16 to 1 ratio.

They appointed committees to formulate plans by which an active silver canvass can be made of the State, and decided in selecting nominees for the State ticket two years hence the lines should be strictly drawn as to silver.

Ex-Senator now Railroad Commissioner Ragan, was in attendance and spoke in favor of free silver. Governor Culberson was present but took no part in the proceedings.

Aymar Bound Over.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—Samuel E. Aymar, the defaulting bookkeeper of the Shoe and Leather Bank, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields at 3 o'clock this afternoon and pleaded not guilty.

At the suggestion of the District Attorney his bail was fixed at $15,000. Aymar was taken to the Ludlow-street jail. In the affidavit of Cashier Cole, on which the warrant was issued, Aymar was charged with having altered the accounts of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company so that it read of $351,301 instead of $371,301. This alteration was made March 1, 1895.

St. Louis Bridge Trust Investigation.

ST. LOUIS, MO., April 22.—At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the Illinois Senate Investigation Committee opened its sessions in East St. Louis to hear further testimony on the bridge trust investigation. Several witnesses were on hand in answer to subpenas, and some very important testimony is promised as a result of the investigation of the Wiggins Ferry company.

Attorney-General M. T. Malone of Illinois arrived from Springfield to-day to conduct the examination of the witnesses.

A Priest Sued for Damages.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., April 22.—John Ford, a Roman Catholic undertaker, has brought suit for $10,000 damages against the Rev. D. J. Cremin, pastor of St. Augustine's Church. He alleges that Father Cremin has influenced his parishioners to deal with an opposition firm, one member of which is a brother-in-law of the priest. Ford has also petitioned the Bishop to interfere.

A Railroad Suit Dropped.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company has discontinued the action brought against the Mercantile Trust Company to restrain the defendant from selling 6 per cent bonds of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company. The plaintiff company contended that instead of selling the bonds by auction the Mercantile Trust Company should have foreclosed its mortgage upon the Atlantic and Pacific road.

Stole Church Funds.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 22.—Alonzo Snyder has confessed to having systematically robbed the Second Baptist Church for over ten years. He confessed to having taken $2000, but it is asserted the amount is nearer $10,000. Snyder was a general utility man employed by the church. The money was taken from collections and pew rentals. The culprit has been discharged and will not be prosecuted. Snyder was once well-to-do, but lost everything in the great fire.

Dr. Buchanan's Last Hope.

SING SING, N. Y., April 22.—Warden Sage has fixed Wednesday, at 11 A. M., for the execution of Dr. Buchanan. His wife was with him for over two hours yesterday. He made her promise to go to Albany this morning and ask Governor Morton to grant him a respite for thirty days. Lawyer Gibbons, Buchanan's counsel, stated this forenoon that he did not see how he could do anything more for the condemned man.

HUNTINGTON IS HELD.

He Is Placed Under Arrest in New York City.

STONE'S PASS THE CAUSE.

Says He Does Not Know Anything About the Gift to the Complainant.

HE THINKS IT IS REVENGE.

The Indictment Spread on the Minutes of the Court by Judge Morrow's Order.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—Collis P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific Railway, was arrested to-day on the charge of giving a free pass to one Frank Stone in violation of the interstate commerce law.

President Huntington was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields. He was represented by Frederick R. Coudert. Huntington admitted his identity. He was taken before Judge Brown of the United States District Court for warrant of removal to California.

The indictment against Huntington was found on March 26 in San Francisco, a certified copy of which was sent to United States District Attorney McFarlane, who notified the railroad president to appear before the United States Commissioner and furnish bonds. When Huntington was arraigned Commissioner Shields said the only question he could inquire into was the one of identity, which Coudert, for Huntington, said would be admitted.

An order was then made out holding him to await the issue of the warrant of removal.

Counsel then went before Judge Brown of the United States District Court, and the hearing was fixed for next Thursday at 3 o'clock, Huntington meantime being allowed to go on his own recognizances.

Huntington said to a reporter after the proceedings before Commissioner Shields: "I have known Frank Stone for twenty-five years. He is a San Francisco lawyer. I would not call him a wicked man, because a wicked man would not do things that way.

"He is an innocent kind of a fellow. I suppose he started this thing because I piqued him in some way or another—how I don't know. I may have given him a pass; probably I did, but I give out so many passes that I do not remember a third of them.

"The passes given out are indorsed as a rule, 'Not good outside of the State,' and I presume his pass was not so stamped and he took advantage of it.

"I don't know anything about the matter beyond that, for I don't pay any attention to such things. In fact I do not care tuppence one way or the other. It don't amount to anything anyhow. I really don't know what action was taken in court this morning.

"Some routine business, I suppose it was, but I did not pay any attention. Arrests are made among the high and the low and criminal proceedure is not confined to any class. I do not know what will be done.

"I guess Frank got the pass all right, but I have not time to attend to all the details. I have too much else to do. I think the root of the whole matter lies in the fact that when I became president of the Southern Pacific Railroad I discharged twenty-three men in San Francisco who were, as far as I could see, mere political agents and go-betweens for politicians. They did no work for the railway that I could discover, so I cut them off. Perhaps they are hungry now and have got to make a strike somewhere."

THE SECRET INDICTMENS.

It Was Spread on the Minutes of the Court Yesterday.

The famous indictment against Collis P. Huntington was taken off the secret file in the United States District Court yesterday. As soon as the news that the railroad magnate had been arrested in New York reached Judge Morrow he ordered the document which caused so much excitement in local circles spread on the minntes of the court.

The indictment is a long one, and follows very closely the act entitled "An act to regulate commerce." Rid of its legal phraseology it sets forth that on the 10th day of February, 1894, Collis P. Huntington was president of the Southern Pacific Company; that branches of that company's road ran into Utah, Oregon and south through various States to New Orleans. In pursuance of his power as president he issued a pass to Frank M. Stone, which read as follows:

Southern Pacific Company—Pass Frank M. Stone over lines of the Southern Pacific Company, 1894, until December 31st, unless otherwise ordered. C. P. HUNTINGTON.

After referring to the breach of the interstate commerce act which was committed, the indictment sets forth: "That it was the intent of the said Collis P. Huntington when he so unlawfully, willfully and knowingly issued, made, executed, gave and delivered and caused to be delivered to the said Frank M. Stone the said instrument in writing * * * giving said Stone a full and unlimited privilege and opportunity to travel without charge."

The people who are allowed to travel free under the provisions of the interstate commerce law are then enumerated, and it is shown that Frank M. Stone does not come under any of the heads. The indictment sets forth "That the said Frank M. Stone, to whom this undue and unreasonable preference and advantage, as aforesaid, was thus given and made by him, the said Collis P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific Company, as aforesaid, was not then and there a homeless and destitute person transported or to be transported by a charitable society." Neither was he a minister of the gospel on an evangelizing tour; neither was he an employe of the railroad; neither was he a shareholder in the company, and neither did he belong to any of the classes of people entitled to free transportation under the provisions of the interstate commerce act.

On that showing the indictment sets forth that the action of Huntington in issuing the pass was contrary to law and against the peace and dignity of the United States, and concludes by asking that he be punished in the manner provided.

The witnesses in the case are George W. Monteith, T. J. Roberts, Frank M. Stone and Elmer E. Decker.

WHITMAN REMANDED.

The Man Wanted for Forgery Here Is in the Tombs.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—Alonzo I. Whitman, the alleged San Francisco forger, was remanded until Wednesday morning in the Tombs Police Court to-day. Detective Sergeant Armstrong showed a second dispatch from Chief of Police Crowley of San Francisco, to the effect that Whitman had forged a check for $1500 on J. D. Maxwell, an insurance agent of that place.

Whitman said he was arrested a year ago on the same charge, and that the Governor after hearing the testimony declined to issue requisition papers. Whitman had five witnesses who swore that Frank Dixon, who signed the alleged forged check, had really issued it. He admits getting the money on the check, but claims he was innocent in the matter.

ARGUED AN APPEAL.

The Suit of the St. Louis Soldiers' Home Against the Goulds.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 22.—In the Court of Appeals to-day Joseph H. Choate for the appellant and Winslow Pierce for the respondent argued an appeal from an order from the general term, affirming an order of the special term, determining that the Union Pacific Company and the receivers thereof be made party defendants in the action brought by the Soldiers' Home of St. Louis on behalf of the holders of Kansas Pacific consolidated bonds, against Russell Sage and George J. Gould individually, and Edwin Gould, George J. Gould, Howard Gould and Helen M. Gould, as executors and executrix of the last will of Jay Gould, to compel the said defendants to account for the proceeds of 29,983 shares of the capital stock of the Denver Pacific Railroad and Telegraph Company, of the alleged value with interest of $11,000,000, said to have been wrongfully withdrawn from the trust created by the mortgage executed by the Kansas Pacific Railway Company to Jay Gould and Russell Sage as trustees, dated May 1, 1889, and to remove the defendants, Russell Sage and George J. Gould, from their trusteeship.

Mr. Choate said this was an action to compel the trustees of an express trust—Russell Sage and George J. Gould, as successors to Jay Gould—to account for the proceeds of the trust securities embezzled by them from the trust and converted to their use.

He contended that within ten months after the trust was constituted the trustees took the $3,000,000 of stock and appropriated it to their personal use. The bringing in of these defendants, the Union Pacific Company, was unnecessary because the action was against these two trustees personally, and the bringing in of the other trustees would defeat the object sought to be obtained by the plaintiffs.

Mr. Pierce, on behalf of the defendants, respondents, held that the bringing in of the Union Pacific as a defendant was indispensable, because without them a final adjustment of the rights and equities of the parties could not be had.

He held that by a judgment rendered by the Supreme Court of New York in 1880, in the suit of the Kansas Pacific against Gould and Sage, the 29,086 shares of stock were adjudged to be forever freed and released from the trust created by the mortgages and Gould and Sage were directed to deliver the certificates of stock to the Kansas Pacific Company. It is averred Gonld and Sage complied with this order.

VICTOR NARROWS SETTLEMENT.

General Howard's Company Will Establish a Complete Irrigating System.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 22.—"It is true that General O. O. Howard and his brother C. H. Howard of this paper have become interested in one of the largest and most promising irrigation enterprises ever undertaken in this country," said James Wilson, one of the publishers of the Farm, Field and Fireside, to-day. "The promoters of the Columbia Colonization Company, aside from the Howard brothers, are Judge J. S. Foster of Halifax and H. G. Sweet of Los Angeles, Cal. General Howard and C. H. Howard will be on the board of directors.

"At the Victor Narrows of the Mojave River, not far from San Bernardino, Cal., is a natural reservoir of 100,000 aeres. The land is practically level and surrounded by a wall of granite hills. Government rights have already been secured and a survey made. A dam 150 feet high will be built at the foot of this reservoir, where the Mojave, the largest river in Southern California, flows through a narrow pass between the high granite bluffs. The profit of the company will come, of course, wholly from the sale of water rights. The land can be had from the Government by settlers for $1 25 an acre as soon as it is under irrigation.

"We will have $500,000 cash capital secured on the start. Then the settlers taking the first 100,000 acres will get a share of stock with each acre water rate, which will cost $20 each."

FORTUNE FOR A CONVICT.

A Massachusetts Forger Said to Be Heir to Millions in Nevada.

HAVERHILL, MASS., April 22.—A letter received yesterday announces that Frank Howard Poor, who is serving a year's sentence for forgery in the Massachusetts reformatory at Concord, is heir to about $16,000,000 through the death of Frank Howard, a Nevada mine owner for whom Poor was named.

He is about 24 years of age and before his crime was found out was very popular. He is an orphan and with the exception of a sister, who lives in Lynn, Mass., there is no near relative.

The fortune to which young Poor is said to have become heir is invested in mining and real estate in Nevada, and besides Poor there are several other beneficiaries who are to receive amounts varying from $200,000 to $500,000.

Will Kill the Cattle.

EUREKA, KANS., April 22.—Excitement here over the attempt to import Mexican cattle into this county for grazing is still intense. The State Sanitary Board will meet to-morrow and decide as to the admission, and for the present the case is in statu quo.

If the board decide to permit the cattle, which are now in quarantine, to be unloaded, trouble, it is thought, will surely follow. Hundreds of cattlemen who have come to town since the controversy arose declare the animals shall be deported or killed at almost any cost.

Stockmen Want an Investigation.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 22.—The St. Louis Livestock Exchange, following the action of the Kansas City Exchange, to-day adopted resolutions protesting against the action of the Agricultural Department in relation to the rumored combine among the packers.

The agitation is declared to have resulted in a reduction in the price of live cattle of at lease $1 per 100 pounds in the past two weeks. The members of the St. Louis Exchange invite a speedy and thorough investigation of the alleged combine that the livestock business may soon resume its normal condition.

SETTLERS IN COURT.

Another Move by the Seizers of Winnebago Land.

DEMAND AN INJUNCTION.

The Court Asked to Restrain Agent Beck From Ejecting Them.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IS FEARED.

Indians Are With Difficulty Prevented From Opening Hostilities.

OMAHA, NEBR., April 22.—Two hundred and ten Thurston County settlers were summoned to appear in the Federal court at Omaha to-day in the case wherein the Flournoy Land Company asks a permanent injunction, restraining Captain Beck, agent of the Winnebago Indians, from ejecting the settlers on the reservation who subleased the Indian lands from that company. The case has been a feature of the disturbance on the reservation for months. It will be tried on its merits to-morrow.

United States District Attorney Sawyer, who has charge of the case for the Government, asserted that there was danger of trouble from the Indians unless the litigation is adjusted one way or the other at an early date. He returned from the reservation yesterday, and is inclined to think that danger is imminent.

Mr. Sawyer says it was just such a case as the one that precipitated the outbreak among the Winnebagos in 1862, when they were on their reservation, which was at that time located in Minnesota. He talked with one survivor of the famous fight the other day, and the aged warrior frankly told him that history was liable to repeat itself, and that with 600 fighting men available they were liable to clean out the Thurston County settlers some morning if the question was not soon settled.

Conversation with others elicited the fact that it was with great difficulty that the pacific members of the tribe counseled and enforced patience and obedience to the wishes of Captain Beck, the Indian agent, who favored a peaceful settlement of the difficulty. They were ready to fight at any time, and were only held in check by the agent by promises of relief from the present trouble. As Captain Beck has authority to commission every Indian on the reservation a policeman, it is predicted that the authority thus vested would encourage an outbreak. With this fact in mind, Captain Beck has commissioned but sixteen Indian police, although he admits that he will enforce the Government regulations, if it takes every Indian on the reservation.

Captain Beck is in Omaha, and also expressed the belief that trouble will result if this question is not settled. He believed that an uprising would be averted unless the Flournoy Company aggravates the Indians into violent deportment. In the meantime he hoped and believed the Winnebagos and Omahas would calmly await developments, and peaceably abide by his wishes for peace.

He said the Indians had good cause for grievance. Even the money collected for Indian children has not been paid. It was a clear violation of guardianship confidence, and when an Indian's child is wronged it generally found resentment in the hearts of the tribe.

The Indians, he said, are now developing a keen interest in the case. They have lately established a relay of couriers, and as soon as information is obtained it is transmitted quickly, and in a few hours all the Indians are posted on current events.

When asked why the two Indian policemen now in jail were not released on bail Captain Beck said he wanted them to remain in jail in order to cinch a suit for false imprisonment, which he will bring against Sheriff Mullin and others. As an example of the temper of the Indians the captain said that one chief volunteered 100 men to prevent the arrest of the two Indian police.

SPEAKS FOR HIMSELF.

President Cleveland Says He Needs No One to Talk for Him.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—The statement which J. Sterling Morton gave to the press last week of his views upon the financial question has been interpreted by the press very generally as an utterance made on behalf of the President expressing his attitude. This inference was based largely upon the circumstances that Mr. Morton made public his statement so soon after his return from the White House, where he had been in conference with the President at the regular Cabinet meeting. This surmise was proven to-day to be incorrect by denials which were made by both President Cleveland and Mr. Morton. The President's statement, which was given to the Associated Press by Private Secretary Thurber, follows. The President, being asked this evening whether Secretary Morton's interview upon the money question might be regarded as representing his views, replied:

"I am in no manner responsible for Mr. Morton's interview and knew nothing of it until I read it in the papers. When I have seen fit to say anything to the people on the money question or any other subject I have thus far found it quite easy to do so directly and on my own account."

Ready for Canal Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—Mr. Noble, the civilian member of the Nicaraguan Canal Commission, has arrived in Washington from Chicago and was in conference to-day with Civil Engineer Endicott, the naval member of the commission, Colonel Ludlow, representing the army, is expected to arrive to New York from London on the Berlin to-day. He will come direct to Washington and the committee will organize at once and proceed to business.

Need Not Label Horsemeat.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—Dr. Salmon, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Agricultural Department, in speaking of the report that a large horse slaughtering and packing industry had been started in Portland, Or., said there was no law compelling such meats to be labeled, as in the case of oleomargarine when sold as butter. The buyers of beef can distinguish this kind of meat, as Government inspection of slaughtered cattle is made, and a Government stamp is placed on each quarter of beef. Dr. Salmon says that the department has endeavored to secure legislation similar to the oleomargarine law, which will compel dealers in horsemeat to have it labeled, so that consumers need not be deceived.

DR. SALMON ON CATTLE.

Agitation Cannot Destroy the Truth of Statements Regarding Prices.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—Dr. Salmon to-day was shown the dispatch given out by R. P. Woodbury, secretary of the Kansas City stockyards, in which it was charged that the agitation begun by the Agricultural Department has hurt the livestock industry. In reply Dr. Salmon said.

"The United States Department of Agriculture had its attention called to the discrepancy between the prices of fat cattle on the hoof and the price of prime beef in retail markets before an investigation had been authorized by any person connected with the department." He declared that he did not credit the statement that the agitation had put down the price of live cattle and maintained the retail price of beef as it is alleged by the Kansas City stockyards people; prices depend now and have depended all along on the relation of the supply of beef to the demand for beef.

"Agitation and investigation," he said, "can neither cripple nor destroy the truth and the right, and it is due to the producers and the consumers alike that the intermediary profits of middlemen standing between them should be only reasonable and compensatory. The advance in prices by retail dealers in dressed beef of 5 cents to the consumers when there is an advance of only $1 per 100 pounds to the farmers and cattle-feeders for animals on the hoof is not regarded as equitably proportioned."

IN A PRIVATE MADHOUSE.

A Butte Woman Said to Have Been Unjustly Held at San Diego.

She Is Found Only After Her Husband Had Been Charged With Her Murder.

SALT LAKE, UTAH, April 22.—A special to the Herald from Butte, Mont., says: An evening paper prints a startling story about a former well-known woman, Mrs. Jerome B. Westgate, having been locked up in a private madhouse at San Diego, Cal., on charges trumped up by her husband. About ten years ago the woman owned large real estate interests in Butte, but her health failed, and her husband persuaded her to dispose of her property and go to California. Since then her friends and a sister living here have heard little from her.

Some weeks ago the sister received an anonymous letter, informing her that Mrs. Westgate was incarcerated in a private asylum at San Diego. The former at once went to her sister's rescue and secured her release and has just returned to Butte with her.

Mrs. Westgate is a physical wreck. She says that shortly after they settled in San Diego she invested her money successfully, while her husband became worthless. She threatened to sue for a divorce and then he schemed to get possession of her property. He destroyed their marriage certificate and denied that she was his wife. She claims that he drugged her and had her confined in a private asylum and kept in a solitary cell for weeks.

Friends charged her husband with murder, and in this way her whereabouts was discovered. Mrs. Westgate has secured a copy of her marriage certificate and will return to San Diego to recover her property.

WESTGATE'S STATEMENT.

He Denies the Charges Made by His Sister-in-Law.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., April 22.—Jerome B. Westgate states that for some time after he and Mrs. Westgate came to San Diego she showed signs of insanity, but that no particular notice was taken of her case until last October, when she was regularly examined by physicians here, declared insane and committed to the asylum at San Bernardino, from where reports occasionally reached him that she was no better. On April 15 he was informed by the manager of the asylum that Mrs. Westgate had been released on March 28 with a certificate that she was 95 per cent sane and that she had accompanied her sister to Chicago.

Westgate also states that he helped his wife to obtain a divorce, and that he was married to her by contract in February, 1893, in this city, and that he has this certificate still in his possession. He says that all the property is still in his wife's name, that he has never practiced any cruelty toward her, and that he was not aware, until quite recently, that she was either liberated or that any steps were being taken to secure her property. He now declares it to be his intention to procure a divorce and apply for a restitution of his property, as he considers it rightfully belongs to him.

Westgate is living here in a quiet and unassuming manner, occupying a cottage that appears to have been built by careful saving, and he is carrying on a small calcimining business in order to make a living. Neither his personal appearance nor his known habits would indicate either a violent nature or extravagant living.

MARRIED WITH POMP.

George N. Curzon and Miss Mary Leiter United.

ALL WASHINGTON AGOG.

Curious People Struggled to Get a Glimpse of the Bridal Party.

FORCE OF POLICE ON DUTY.

Prominent Guests From All Parts of the East Attend the Wedding Breakfast.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29.—The wedding of Hon. George Nathaniel Curzon, M.P., and Miss Mary Leiter was celebrated at St. John's Episcopal Church at 11:30 o'clock to-day amid scenes of such brilliancy and in the presence of such a distinguished assemblage of Cabinet officers, diplomats, Governors and Bishops as gives the event the character of a public ceremony.

The church was filled and surrounded by a curious crowd.

The ushers were Joseph Leiter, brother of the bride, and Frank Curzon, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Cleveland occupied a seat in the forward part of the church.

The President did not appear, as it is an unwritten law that the Executive shall not attend private social events.

The wedding party moved up the main aisle to the chancel, where Bishop Talbott and Rev. Dr. Mackay Smith officiated.

The bride, in white satin and rare white lace, carrying a cluster of white orchids, was on the arm of her father.

The bridesmaids, Misses Nannie and Daisy Leiter, wore pink tulle gowns, with large pink mull hats, and carried large bouquets of pink roses. The groom and Mrs. Leiter, Sir James and Lady Miller and Lord Lamington, the groom's best man, Joseph Leiter and Frank Curzon completed the party.

After the marriage service of the Episcopal church the wedding party withdrew to the Leiter residence, where they were joined later by relatives and intimate friends for the wedding breakfast.

A large force of policemen were on duty outside the church, but it was with difficulty that the crowd could be held in check. A solid mass of people, mainly women, blocked the sidewalks and streets, so that the carriages bringing the guests had to force their way to the church entrance under escort of the officers. There was such a rush when the carriage of Mrs. Cleveland and that of the bride arrived that women screamed and fainted and for a time there threatened to be a panic. No accidents occurred, however, although the crush resulted in many torn and disheveled garments.

The guests at the wedding breakfast were as follows:

From Washington — Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Gresham, Secretary of War and Mrs. Lamont, Mr. and Mrs. Olney, Secretary of the Navy and Miss Herbert, Mr. and Miss Morton, Sir Julian and Lady Pauncefote, the German and French Embassadors, the Belgian Minister, Senator and Mrs. Cameron, Senator and Mrs. Brice, Chief Justice and Mrs. Fuller, Justice and Mrs. Harlan, Justice and Mrs. Gray, Justice and Mrs. White, Justice and Mrs. Brown, Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Hubbard, Professor and Mrs. Newcomb, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rockhill, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Henry Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks-Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Blair, Mrs. R. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean, Mrs. James G. Blaine, Mrs. Harrison Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones, Senator and Miss McPherson, Senator and Miss Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Watt Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Bradley, Colonel and Mrs. William Goddard, Major Walker, the Misses Skinner, Miss Snow, John Carter Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Noyes.

From Chicago—Edward Isham, the Misses Isham, Hon. Robert and Mrs. Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Willing, Mr. and Mrs. Henry King, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Franklin Remington, John H. Thompson, Peyson Thompson, B. P. Thompson, Mrs. Mahlon Ogden and Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Cragg.

From Boston—Hon. T. Jefferson and Mrs. Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. F. Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. T. Higginson, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Amory.

From Albany—Bishop and Mrs. Doane, Bishop and Mrs. Cox, Mrs. J. V. R. Pruyn, Mr. and Mrs. Neville Whiting, cousin of the bride.

The bridal presents were numerous and elegant, that of Mrs. Cleveland being a large silver loving-cup.

The "Father of Waters" is not more majestic than the march of Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

GENERAL COOK'S SUCCESSOR.

The Appointment Likely to Fall to General Merritt.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—Army officers are very much interested in the promotions all along the line which will be occasioned by General McCook's retirement to-day. General Merritt, it is believed, stands the best chance for the major-generalship, as he is the senior officer and has a good record. The other brigadier-generals concede that General Merritt is entitled to the honor.

Colonel Bliss is likely to be appointed brigadier-general, though it is said the President may surprise the army folks by selecting Colonel John M. Wilson, who is now detailed as superintendent of the Government buildings in Washington. He is the custodian of the White House and is President Cleveland's intimate friend. The other colonels who are eligible for this promotion are Merriam, Mason, Wade, Frank and Henry. The appointments are expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

Rehearing Denied.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—The United States Supreme Court to-day declined a rehearing of the case of the Havemeyer and Elder Sugar Refining Company against the Collector of the Port of New York, being a claim for refund on custom duties.

SUGAR MACHINERY WANTED.

It May Be Necessary to Prosecute to Recover Government Property.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—The Department of Agriculture has prepared a report in answer to the Senate resolution inquiring as to the whereabouts and conditions of the experimental sugar machinery which was purchased by the department at various times at a cost of about $280,000. So far, the report says, very little good has ever been derived from it. The machinery was loaned out to persons to make experiments and it is now in the hands of private parties. The most of it is in Kansas, though a small portion is in Florida and Louisiana.

The department will also take up the question of what to do with it, and it is thought it will be appraised and sold. Some difficulty is anticipated in proving the title to the property, as a great deal of it is in the hands of people who claim possession. In several cases the Department of Agriculture has referred the Government cases to the Department of Justice, and it is expected that United States District Attorneys will be called upon to assist in reclaiming the machinery.

Roaring Artesian Well.

CINCINNATI, OHIO, April 22.—In drilling a well in Hamilton County, Ind., for oil at a depth of 900 feet the drill apparently dropped through a rock and a rush of water followed that submerged the derrick and drove off the workmen.

The drill was finally removed, which gave the water an unobstructed vent, and ever since the water has been escaping at a rate that threatened to submerge the neighborhood.

The water escapes through a six-inch pipe and the roar can be heard for miles. The fluid is salty. A channel will be started to the nearest creek or river.

She was badly cut, and her sister, who was also attempting to prevent Rickar from carrying out his intention, was also injured.

THAT EXTRA SESSION.

Pressure Is Brought to Bear Upon the President.

FAVORED BY DEMOCRATS.

They Wish to Redeem Their Party While There Is Yet Time.

MUST DECLARE FOR SILVER.

Urged On to Action by the Growth of Sentiment in Favor of the White Metal.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—Great pressure is again brought to bear on President Cleveland toward securing an extra session of Congress. These attempts have occurred spasmodically ever since adjournment, but now there is a steady pressure, coupled with a unanimity of purpose by the Democrats.

When Congress adjourned, less than eight weeks ago, the preponderance of opinion among Democratic leaders throughout the country was adverse to calling an extra session. The argument was advanced that such action would not only proclaim, but practically acknowledge the utter incompetency of the Fifty-third Congress and its virtual incapacity to enact financial legislation. It was then believed that a special convening of Congress would stultify every possibility of Democratic success in the next national campaign, and the prediction was freely made that the party's return to power would be retarded.

But that sentiment has changed, and a large proportion of the party leaders, especially among active politicians, are now of the opinion that their political salvation largely depends on the early calling of an extraordinary session. These leaders, after mingling with their constituents in various sections of the country, reached the conclusion that nothing but prompt and decisive action would give the party even a fighting chance two years hence.

The reason for this sudden and unexpected change of sentiment is found in the fact that since adjournment the free silver agitation has grown up like Jonah's gourd vine. Those in the Democratic ranks who advocate free silver are seized with an irrepressible desire to commit the party to that doctrine. Illinois took the initiative in calling a convention to determine the party's attitude on the subject. Missouri and Pennsylvania are struggling to follow this example. Minnesota and Indiana are on the verge of an outbreak. The Legislature of Tennessee has declared for bimetallism. Other States are beginning to feel the infection of the free-silver epidemic.

The Democrats urge that an extra session would place the Republicans in the attitude of incompetency and imbecility now ascribed to the Democrats of the Fifty-third Congress. The result would be, it is urged, a division of the Republicans into factions. The Democrats would have nothing to lose, and might be greatly benefited by the internal dissension in ranks of their rivals.

These arguments are now being daily laid before President Cleveland by resident and visiting Democratic leaders, who urge the great party advantage to be gained by calling upon the Fifty-fourth Congress to make necessary alterations in the present financial system.

DENY THE CHARGES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Asked to Dismiss Omaha Cases.

OMAHA, NEBR., April 22.—In the Bridge arbitrary and Iowa rate case, to come before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the roads complained against have served notice on Commissioner Utt that they have filed a petition of intervention. After reviewing the charges made by the Commercial Club as to discrimination in freight rates, the notice states that they deny many of the charges.

In the case of the Texas through rates, in which Omaha and South Omaha are particularly interested, they deny that Omaha and South Omaha shippers are subject to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage, or any preference to other distributing points. In conclusion, they say that there has been no discrimination against the complainant, and that it has no cause of action on account of alleged facts set up in its complaint against the defendant, and asks to be dismissed with its costs in this behalf expended. The case will be heard on the 29th inst. in this city at the Federal building. Commissioners Yeomans, Veazey and Morrison will try the case.

SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

An Ex-County Treasurer Accused of Filching Public Funds.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 22.—J. L. Kline and R. H. Tyler, who have been examining the Wyandotte County records, submitted a report to the Board of County Commissioners in Kansas City, that ex-County Treasurer M. W. Stewart was short $28,275 when he turned over his office to his successor, M. G. McLean, two years ago.

Mr. Stewart and his former bondsmen appear not to be worried over the report. They declare there is no ground for the claim of a shortage, and insist that an examination of the records by competent accountants will show that every dollar taken in during his four years in office was paid out and receipted for.

The same accountants reported several weeks ago that M. G. McLean, who succeeded Stewart as treasurer, was short several thousand dollars in addition to $49,000 he had on deposit in the Citizens' Bank in Armourdale, when it failed in 1893.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 22.—The elders and deacons of the Sixth and Prospect Christian Church have brought suit in the Circuit Court against Dr. I. M. NEW ENGLAND OPIUM-SMOKERS.

The East is Beginning to Understand the Chinese.

Fully 300 Chinese opium-smokers, representing New England, assembled themselves at 24 Oxford street for the purpose of finding ways to stop the Quinn bill, which is now pending before the General Assembly, says the Boston Herald.

The meeting commenced at 8 o'clock and lasted until after midnight. Every member seemed to be talking at the same time, and consequently there seemed to be more speakers than listeners.

Resolutions were passed that a petition be sent to the Assembly asking that if Mr. Quinn wanted a bill to pass against the smoking of opium, an exception be made in favor of the Chinese communities.

"There is no man under God's creation that knows the hardships which smokers endure," said one of the delegates from Hartford. "If Mr. Quinn is an intelligent and free-minded gentleman he should take conscientious consideration before he made such a law as would stop a smoker from smoking when the smoker has had the habit for thirty long years."

"We are bound to smoke, anyhow, whether we have the right or take it for granted," said another smoker from Providence, R. I. "We committed the sin before the law was made and we are compelled to sin after the law is made. We must either sin or we must stop living."

The most interesting remarks throughout the meeting were made by Li Sam, who came to the convention as representative from New Bedford. He said: "People who do not smoke will never know a smoker's troubles. I had the habit grow into me for the past thirty-seven long years. I have tried and tried again to stop smoking, but my strength failed me. At last I gathered up my nerve to try again for the last time. I decided, if I failed to do what I pledged, I would—die a fiend. Two weeks ago to-day I stopped smoking for twenty-four hours.

"My dear fellow-men, there are not enough words in Confucius' dictionary to tell you how I felt. I rather had all the devils in the great hell torment me than to take the right of smoking away from me. We smoking men do not ask the people to encourage us, but we would ask the public pity."

LAWRENCE'S OLDEST STUDENT.

A Seventy-Year Old Man Attends the Kansas University.

There are many quaint people in attendance at the Kansas State University at Lawrence, but probably the most interesting of these is a law student who is at least 70 years old. His name is Dr. Martin Van Buren Stevens. This is his second year at the university, and he expects to graduate this spring and become a full-fledged lawyer, says the Kansas City Star.

The doctor's life has been one of interesting experiences. Wilkesbarre, Pa., was the place of his birth. At the age of 20 he married a Pennsylvania girl and enlisted in the Fifth New Hampshire Regiment, Company D. He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Oberlin College in Ohio, and Doctor of Medicine at the Adelbert College, Cleveland, Ohio, in 1871. His first wife having died, he married again, this time selecting a Michigan girl, a niece of "Fighting Jim Richardson." At one time he studied theology and preached, but he soon gave it up and studied phrenology under Fowler of New York.

In a cozy little house on the hill this queer old man lives alone. He keeps everything about the place scrupulously clean. One warm meal a day he considers sufficient. The other two he carries to school with him in a small shoebox. Very little meat passes his lips—in fact he might almost be called a vegetarian. "People eat entirely too much," he says.

Last year he was somewhat conspicuous on account of the number of badges and emblems he wore on the front of his coat. There were badges of the G. A. R., Christian Endeavor, a seven-inch phrenological badge, Y. M. C. A., a medical society and C. L. S. C. Another of his peculiarities is that he carries a watch which is fully four inches in diameter. He winds it with a pair of six-inch nippers.

WALLER IS IN JAIL.

The Ex-United States Consul Conveyed to Marseilles.

MANACLED ABOARD SHIP.

Not Allowed to Communicate With Any of His Friends or Write Letters.

HE IS TO GO TO CORSICA.

His Trial Lasted Less Than Three Hours, as the Evidence Was Conclusive.

MARSEILLES, FRANCE, April 22.—The case of John L. Waller, formerly United States Consul at Tamatave, Madagascar, recently sentenced by the French court-martial to imprisonment for twenty years, and who arrived here Saturday on board the steamer Djemnah, is attracting considerable attention, in view of the fact that it had been announced that the United States Embassador has been instructed to inquire into the matter.

Waller was manacled while on board the Djemnah, but was allowed to take two hours' exercise daily on deck, guarded by a soldier.

Upon his arrival here he was lodged in jail, and it is reported that he will eventually be imprisoned on the island of Corsica. During the voyage Waller frequently asked to be allowed to write. The French officials declined to grant his request on account of his refusal to agree to show them the letter he intended to write. When before the court-martial Waller, it is claimed, refused to speak in French, and the services of an interpreter had to be employed.

Waller's nephew, 25 years of age, is said to be implicated in the proceedings which led to his uncle's condemnation, and was condemned to expulsion from Madagascar. He embarked as a second-class passenger on the Djemnah, but landed at Zanzibar without having been able to communicate with his uncle. For the present Waller is incarcerated at Fort St. Nicholas, at this port. It is thought he may again be called upon to appear before a court-martial.

HISTORY OF THE CASE.

One of Waller's Letters Fell Into the Hands of the French.

PARIS, FRANCE, April 22.—A correspondent of the Temps at Tamatave, island of Madagascar, states that John T. Waller, formerly United States Consul, was indicted on two charges, namely, violation of the order of the French Admiralty governing correspondence, and, secondly, the writing to an enemy. The evidence, the correspondent adds, showed that Waller intrusted an officer of the steamboat with a bulky letter, which was posted at Natal, addressed to "M. Tescer, merchant, Antananarivo, via Vatomandry." Unfortunately it appears the English mail was dropped at Vatomandry, but was landed at Tamatave, where the envelope attracted the attention of the authorities, who opened it and found that it contained particulars regarding the strength of the French garrison, number of the sick, importance of the outposts, etc.; also an inclosure addressed to Waller's friend, E. Underwood Harvey, editor of the Madagascar News, asking him to insert it in that paper.

This inclosure, it is stated, contained abominable calumnies regarding the conduct of French soldiers in Madagascar and denounced two of Waller's compatriots, honorable American merchants, who were going to Antananarivo as spies in pay of France. The trial of Waller lasted only 3¾ hours. Waller appealed, but the sentence was affirmed.

According to the correspondent of Le Temps, it was the son-in-law of Waller, Paul Bray, a native of Texas, and not his nephew, who accompanied him on board the steamer Djemnah. Bray was expelled from Madagascar for constant hostility to the French authorities and troops and for complicity with his father-in-law in communicating with the enemy. He was handed over to the American Consul at Zanzibar.

A POLITICAL PRISONER.

He Will Not Be Compelled to Do Hard Labor for the Crime.

TOULON, FRANCE, April 27.—M. Hanes, the marine commissary-general, by whose order John L. Waller, formerly United States Consul at Tamatave, was confined in Fort St. Nicholas at Marseilles, notified the procureur de la publique this afternoon of the disposition made of the prisoner. The procureur immediately ordered Mr. Waller to be transferred to the Civil prison at St. Pierre, where he will await the decision of the prisons board of France as to where the sentence is to be carried out.

Mr. Waller is condemned to twenty years' detention in prison, but not at hard labor. When in prison he will not be treated with rigor as his crime is regarded as being a political offense.

LONDON MARKETS.

Cheap Money Has Caused a Boom in Gilt-Edged Securities.

LONDON, ENG., April 22.—The stock market opened briskly after the holidays, but the conclusion of peace between China and Japan did little to sustain the market. The volume of business during the week was moderate. Fears as to possible European complications arising from the Japanese demand and the prospect of Japan proving a successful competitor with Europe for the trade of China caused a feeling of uncertainty. On the whole, however, the tendency was rather upward. The cheapness of money induced renewed buying of gilt-edged securities.

The mining share market was inactive, but irregular. American railroad securities attracted plenty of attention, President Cleveland's letter encouraging the buying of good bonds. The advances were: Lake Shore, 4; Milwaukee, Illinois Central and Reading firsts, each 2¼; Wabash sixes, 2; Atchison fours, Denver pfd., Erie, Northern Pacific, and Norfolk and Western, and Union Pacific and Wabash pfd., 1½. The others advanced fractionally.

Articles From the Elbe.

LOWESTOFT, ENG., April 22.—A trawler to-day brought to this place several articles taken from the body of a woman which was brought up from the deep in the trawler's net. They proved to belong to Miss Emma Schlegel, the sister of Eugene Schlegel, one of the survivors of the Elbe wreck. Mr. Schlegel is a brother of the junior partner of the firm of Behlen & Schlegel, dealers in paints and oils, New York, and was on a pleasure trip to New York when the accident occurred. The body of Miss Schlegel was recommitted to the sea.

MACEO'S WHEREABOUTS.

The Insurgent Leader Said to Have Committed Suicide While Despondent.

HAVANA, CUBA, April 22.—The whereabouts of General Maceo, the noted insurgent leader, of whom so much was expected, is unknown. According to one story his body was found in a putrefied condition near Palmorita, province of Santiago de Cuba, where the members of the expedition were beaten by the Spanish troops. Rumors are also current that Maceo committed suicide in consequence of the failure of his movement and because he has been sick ever since landing in Cuba.

Maceo's party is said to be disorganized, fourteen members of the expedition having been captured and all but four of the remainder killed.

Costigan, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, stated that the Canadian Government had been promised by the Imperial Government aid toward securing the award of $425,000, the amount agreed upon as the proper amount to be paid by the United States as a compensation to British Columbia sealers. The Imperial Government will at once, he said, communicate with Washington on the matter.

Germany's Position.

LONDON, ENG., April 23.—A dispatch to the Times from Berlin says the Vossische Zeitung blames the Government for joining France and Russia against Japan. The paper says: "Suppose Great Britain and the United States support Japan in refusing the Russian demands? Death of Cuban Rebels.

MADRID, SPAIN, April 22.—A committee of the Chamber of Deputies has decided that the same penalties shall apply to the Cuban rebels as are applicable to anarchists.

"That Puts It on Me."

Daniel Hughes, colored, was before Justice Schenkl for assaulting his father, Edward Hughes, says the Baltimore Sun.

The elder Hughes appeared before the Justice with his head bandaged. The son began to explain how he had come to strike his father with a brick. The Justice cut this explanation short and told the father to give his version of the affair, which he proceeded to do, winding up his testimony with an appeal to the Justice to "put it on the boy."

Turning to his father the son begged that he might not be sent to jail. The elder Hughes was obdurate, and said he would not ask the Justice for mercy. As a last resort the son said he did not want to go to jail as his family would suffer.

Slowly turning to the Justice the father said:

"That's true, Judge. If he goes to jail I am the one who will suffer, for I will have to support his wife and children, besides feeling the hurt of my head, and I will ask you not to be too severe on him."

The Justice imposed a fine of $1 and costs, which the son was unable to pay, and he was therefore sent to jail. As the sentence was delivered the old man shook his head sadly and said, "That puts it on me."

The Czar Likes Wagner.

Wagnerian enthusiasts are pleased to learn that the new Czar of Russia has a great fondness for German music. He has been a warm admirer of Wagner's operas for several years and is, like a good many adherents of the German school, rather extravagant both in his praise of the works of the German master and in denunciation of the Italian and French schools.—St. Louis Republic.

THE grocer sends the new brand of baking powder simply because it costs him so much less and he can make more profit by selling it than he can on the Royal. The Royal is made from the very finest materials and costs much more than any other brand, which accounts for its superiority, although it is sold to consumers at the same price.

JAPAN IS SATISFIED.

The Emperor Expresses His Feelings About Peace.

A PROCLAMATION ISSUED.

Permanent Cessation of All Hostilities Is Considered Near at Hand.

FUTURE POLICY OUTLINED.

Military Defense to Be Perfected and the People to Work for Prosperity.

YOKOHAMA, JAPAN, April 22.—An official dispatch says that Count Ito, President of the Japanese Council of Ministers, and Viscount Matsu, the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs, the two officials who negotiated the treaty of peace with Li Hung Chang and his son, Lord Li, at Shimonoseki, were received in audience by the Emperor before their return to Hiroshima. The Emperor said:

"The principal points of the treaty are entirely satisfactory, and add much to the glory of the empire. I am highly pleased at the signal service rendered by you."

The following imperial proclamation was issued this afternoon:

Through peace national prosperity is best promoted. Unfortunately the rupture of relations with China forced upon us a war which, after the lapse of ten months, is not yet ended. During this period our Ministers in concert with the army, navy and Diet have done all in their power to further our aims in obeidence to our instructions. Our ardent desire, with the assistance of our subjects, in loyalty and sincerity, is to restore peace, and thereby attain our object—the promotion of national prosperity. Now that peace is negotiated and an armistice proclaimed a permanent cessation of hostilities is near at hand. The terms of peace fixed by our Ministers of State give us complete satisfaction. The peace and glory thus secured render the present a fitting time to enlighten you as to the course of our future policy.

We are rejoiced at the recent victories which have enhanced the glory of our empire. At the same time we are aware that the end of the road which must be traversed by the Emperor in the march of civilization is still far distant and romains yet to be attained. We therefore hope, in common with our loyal subjects, that we shall always guard against self-contentedness, but in a spirit of modesty and humility strive to perfect our military defense without falling into extremes.

In short it is our wish that the Government and the people alike shall work to a common end and that our subjects of all classes strive each in his sphere for the purpose of laying the foundation of permanent prosperity.

It is hereby definitely made known that no countenance will be given by us to such as, through conceit at the recent victories, may offer insult to another state or injure our relations with friendly powers, especially as regards China.

After the exchange of the ratifications of the treaty of peace, friendship should be restored and endeavors made to increase more than ever before the relations of good neighborhood.

It is our pleasure that our subjects pay due respect to these, our expressed wishes.

Will Make the Exchange.

YOKOHAMA, JAPAN, April 22.—Chief Secretary Itemiyeji of the Foreign Office has been appointed Japanese plenipotentiary to exchange the ratifications of the peace treaty. He will proceed to Che-foo, where the exchanges will be made.

HE STRUCK WITH A CANE.

The Preliminary Examination of Captain Gilbert H. Brokaw.

He Is Charged With Assaulting a Reporter With a Deadly Weapon.

The preliminary examination of Captain Gilbert H. Brokaw on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon was commenced before Judge Low last night. Samuel M. Shortridge appeared for the defendant and Garret W. McEnerney represented the people, Prosecuting Attorney Roberts not being present.

There was considerable legal sparring between the learned counsel, and the spectators were treated to several clever sallies that are rarely heard in a police court. Honors were about even.

The proceedings were opened by Attorney Shortridge, who asked who represented the people.

The Judge replied that Mr. McEnerney appeared as special prosecutor.

"I want the records to show it," said Mr. Shortridge. "In the absence of the Prosecuting Attorney I object to proceeding with the case. It is not only an irregularity, but a fatal defect." The objection was overruled.

The complaining witness, Alf Dixon, reporter on the Examiner, testified to the assault on the afternoon of March 26 in the office of the Oceanic Steamship Company on the water front. When the defendant struck him in the face he dropped his cane on the floor and when he ran outside the captain followed him and struck him on the head with the cane. No words were spoken by either of them.

In cross-examination he admitted that he first swore to a complaint for battery and a question as to who induced him to swear out a warrant for the higher crime was not allowed. Another question as to the witness threatening to "burn up" the captain in the Examiner previous to the assault was also disallowed.

T. Gregory, reporter of the CALL, who was present at the time of the assault, gave his testimony and the prosecution rested.

Attorney Shortridge spoke of the weakness of the case. The offense, if any, was at most a mere battery, and it was apparent to him that there never should have been a more serious charge. The first impulse of the complaining witness and the first advice given him resulted in filing the first complaint for battery. What reasons, what new advice, what controlling influences caused the abandonment of the first proceeding he knew not, but he could imagine them. Some one who had a feeling for reporters induced the complaining witness to prefer the higher charge.

It was apparent that to constitute that sort of crime there must be the intent and act. The mere naked act amounted to nothing. It was the intent to do bodily harm. The learned counsel characterized the affair as nothing but a scuffle and both parties had regretted it ever since, and submitted that a nominal fine for the battery would meet the ends of justice. The use of the cane did not warrant the inference that the defendant used a deadly weapon. It seemed ridiculous to say so. He was willing to plead guilty to the charge of battery rather than prolong the affair if the felony charge was withdrawn. He therefore moved for a dismissal.

Attorney McEnerney said he was totally opposed to the whole scheme, and contended he had proved the defendant guilty of the crime. There was no excuse for the assault, and he held that the cane was to all intents and purposes a deadly weapon.

The Judge denied the motion to dismiss.

For the defense William Manning, clerk in the office of the Oceanic Steamship Company, Captain John Silovich and J. A. Lockhard, watchman, all testified in effect that the complaining witness had his cane in his hand when he ran out of the office after being struck by the defendant, and turned round facing the captain, who was pursuing him, raised the cane, when the defendant grasped it out of his hand and struck him over the head with it.

The further hearing of the case was continued till to-morrow night.

THE LAW OF LIFE.

The Rev. A. C. Hirst Preaches a Sermon on the Duty of Man.

The Rev. A. C. Hirst preached on "The Law of Life" to a very large congregation in Simpson Memorial M. E. Church Sunday night. He spoke of the life we live and said that what we have to accomplish in limited space of time should be accomplished to the glory of God. Speaking of the Bible he said that it laid down fundamental principles that apply to all conditions and climes. That the lawmakers in their efforts to circumvent lawbreakers had prepared so many laws, too many, and as a result there was confusion by the law, and that there are too many laws was probably the reason. Why, there are thirty-eight murderers in the jails of this county who have not had justice dealt out to them. He said that in all stations in life, in all business, man should carry his religion with him and that whatever he did he should do in the glory of the Lord.

Speaking of the coming woman he said that she had been held in the background, but that now was her opportunity to show what she can do. He said it would be charged that she was coming with the ballot in her hand. She came, he said, with the ballot to teach men how to use it. Addressing the young women of his congregation he said that it was in their power to change the social relations so that young manhood would come to them only in social purity. He declared that San Francisco is not a city of homes, and lacks that refining influence that is found in the home circle, but he expressed the hope that the time will soon come when it will be what it should be, a city of homes.

HE WAS TIRED OF LIVING.

G. E. Haynes Poisoned Himself in Golden Gate Park Yesterday.

One Accidental and Two Sudden Deaths Swelled the Morgue List.

A suicide, an accidental death, and two sudden deaths formed the record at the Morgue yesterday.

The suicide was G. E. Haynes. He was found in the park with a partly emptied bottle of chloroform, another of crystalized ammonia, and two others, the contents of which will not be known until a chemical analysis has been made.

The deceased was a young man, fairly well dressed, and was, according to the Coroner's deputies, a manufacturing dentist. On the back of an Omnibus-saloon card, 33 Third street, he left the following note:

APRIL 27th.

To whom it may concern: Dr. R. H. Cool is indebted to me more than $200 for wages due. Curses on him, and may he die as I have—by his own hand. My account will be found at No. 33 Third street (Sandersfeld) by any one who cares to investigate. I am discouraged and hungry. HAYNES.

The note was dated ahead of time, so Haynes must have come to the conclusion to hurry up events.

The suicide used to frequent a saloon at 33 Third street, but he did not drink much, and always paid for what little he took. He was in the saloon yesterday at noon, and when leaving said he would probably never return. He was very despondent at times, and was particularly so yesterday over his inability to obtain lucrative employment. Up to a short time ago he worked in the office of Dr. Brush, a dentist, but his pay was not large, nor was his position a permanent one.

In the saloon Haynes sometimes spoke of an uncle of his name who worked in the United States Mint, but he used to say his relative was rich and he would not, therefore, call upon him for anything while in his impecuious condition. It was suspected that Haynes was addicted to the use of morphine, and if this is so it in a great measure explains his fits of despondency. He was a native of the State of Maine, where he has relatives.

Michael Waters was the accidental death. He was an Irishman, 45 years of age, and lived at the corner of Sixteenth and Harrison. He was employed as a teamster by Kelso & Co., and was at their quarry, on the corner of Church and Hancock streets, yesterday morning. When the wagon was filled Waters mounted his seat, but the horses started off before he was ready. Losing his balance, he fell to the ground and the wheels passed over his head, crushing it to a pulp. Death was instantaneous.

Henry la Sage, an Englishman, 55 years of age, was found dead in his bed at 116 Leidesdorff street yesterday. He retired as usual last Sunday night, and when he did not get up as usual the following morning his room was forced open. Death is supposed to be due to natural causes.

Felix Corona, a Mexican, aged 36 years, dropped dead in the hallway of the house at 1318 Dupont street. He was walking toward his room when he was seen to stagger and fall. Death is supposed to have been caused by disease of the heart. There have been so many murders, suicides and accidental and sudden deaths of late that the Coroner's deputies are worked to death getting jurors together and holding inquests.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

How a New York Dude Economizes With a Walking Stick.

A prominent young lawyer in this city was recently remonstrated with by a friend because he invariably carried a cane in business hours. "It has a frivolous appearance and may hurt you professionally," said his friend. "People will not credit you with sufficient steadiness and application if they see that you are addicted to such a dudish habit."

The young lawyer replied that he did it on the score of economy. "Before I carried a cane," he said, "I lost on an average a dozen umbrellas a year, which at $10 apiece means $120. This cane cost me $1 50. I have not lost an umbrella since I bought it, over a year ago. You see I get used to having something in my hand, and when I leave a restaurant or car I instinctively look around for that something. Before I got used to the cane I never thought of the umbrella unless it happened to be raining, and if it chanced to be a borrowed umbrella the indignation of the lender when I told him I had lost it was worse to bear than the pecuniary loss. I have come to the conclusion that this cane is worth its weight in gold to me every year."—New York World.

BLOOD-STAINED COAT FOUND IN BERKELEY.

The Garment Supposed to Be Theo Durrant's.

STORY OF THE FINDING

Another Witness Appears Against the Suspected Student.

SAW HIM NEAR THE CHURCH.

It Was 8:15 O'clock the Night of the Second Murder—A Girl With Him.

The links in the chain of circumstantial evidence against Theodore Durrant are slowly becoming stronger. Sunday three young ladies appeared before the Chief of Police and identified Durrant as the man seen by them near Emmanuel Church at 9:15 o'clock the night of the Williams murder. Last evening a man went to Chief Crowley and identified Durrant as the man he had seen with a young lady almost in front of the church at 8:15 o'clock on the fatal evening.

And, more important than this, a Berkeley constable has found a lady with whom, he says, Durrant left a coat shortly after Blanche Lamont's disappearance. The coat, it is said, was wrapped up, and when the lady opened the bundle yester ay she found that the garment was spotted with blood. The constable says he has informed Chief Crowley of the discovery of the coat.

While Durrant has shown no particular signs of breaking down his gay manner has left him and his face has hardened.

The man who has been brought forward to make Durrant's guilt almost certain is James P. Hodgdon, the adjuster of freight claims for the Southern Pacific Company. He is a man of high standing and the police consider his evidence one of the most valuable points yet found in the case of Minnie Williams.

Mr. Hodgdon lives at 109 Bartlett street. Detective Bohen learned a few days ago of a man who had told several people that he had seen Durrant in front of Emmanuel Baptist Church with a young woman about 8:15 P. M. Good Friday. Detective Bohen obtained Hodgdon's address yesterday and last evening Detective Seymour called on the newly discovered witness. Hodgdon accompanied Detective Seymour to the office of Chief Crowley, arriving there shortly before 8 o'clock.

His statement is as follows: "My name is James Hodgdon. I live at 109 Bartlett street and I am in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company. I left my house about 8:15 o'clock Friday evening, April 12. My house is a few doors from the Emmanuel Baptist Church. As I left the house I saw a young man and a young lady standing near the church. They were near the church, about 200 feet from Twenty-third street. When I first saw them it seemed to me the young man was trying to take some liberties with the girl. As I approached them they became quiet, but I looked at the man closely, but did not pay so much attention to the girl. I noticed she was very small and wore a loose black cape or shawl. The man answered the description of Durrant. I passed them and went on to get a cigar at a store on the next corner. When I came out the couple had disappeared."

When Mr. Hodgdon had finished his statement Chief Crowley ordered Durrant brought out of the prison so that Hodgdon might see if he could recognize him. When Durrant was brought to the Chief's room Mr. Hodgdon identified him at once. He said he was confident that Durrant was the man he had seen, that his face, coat, hat and general appearance was the same, except that his impression was that the man he had seen was a trifle taller than Durrant.

Following is the story of the bloody coat, which will be thoroughly investigated to-day:

Late yesterday afternoon a lady living in the neighborhood of Parker street and Dwight way, Berkeley, brought a black Prince Albert coat to the business center of the town and asked for a constable.

Constable Brotherton was pointed out to her, and she gave him the bundle, saying that it had been left at her house by a man answering the description of Durrant one day about the time of the first murder. She said she was standing in her front yard when a nervous appearing man stepped up and asked if he could leave the coat he had on with her for a few days.

Not denying him the privilege he took it off his back, wrapped it up, left it with her, and then started for the hills.

The man not returning for the parcel after the lapse of ten days, the woman became suspicious, and yesterday afternoon, in the presence of her daughter, opened the package, and, to her utter amazement, found the front and sleeves covered with stains. Upon close examination it was found that they were blood stains, which the owner of the coat had attempted to wash out by means of cleaning fluid.

From the places stained the garment must have been unbuttoned when the blood was splashed on it, as the flap which is usually bottoned in the style of a coat was covered with stains the entire length.

The coat bears the name of Nordwell, a Bush-street tailor.

On the inside of the garment, near the waist, is a patch of Farmer's satin, so neatly put in that it must have been done by a tailor. Near the back pocket there is another similar patch.

The coat was taken to Dr. Rowell immediately after being placed into the hands of Deputy Constable Murray, and he will make an examination of it to-day to determine as to whether the spots which appear on it are blood.

Dr. Rowell, when seen late last night by a CALL representative, was very reticent about communicating information relating to the discovery of the blood-stained coat. He said: "I am unprepared as yet to make any statement whatsoever regarding the matter. There may be truth in the reports and they may be false. It is not through any desire on my part to keep the matter from the public, but owing to the position in which I have been placed, it would be impolitic for me to make any statement bearing on the case. As soon as anything develops I shall only be too glad to communicate it to the press. If I am to make a microscopical examination of the coat I shall call Dr. Eastman into consultation, for the case is of too great importance to be undertaken alone."

DURRANT ARRAIGNED

Damaging Evidence Given at the Police Court Examination.

Two hours before the time set for the preliminary examination of Theodore Durrant, charged with the murder of Minnie Williams, Judge Conlan's court was crowded to suffocation, and a restless, motley crowd surged through the corridor without, vainly trying to gain an entrance to the precincts of a police court where a man accused of a heinous crime was about to have a hearing.

Three times before the trial opened the police cleared the place of loungers, thus making respiration possible, but the places of those expelled were quickly filled by others, and throughout the examination the room was packed like a sardine-box. At the McAllister entrance to the City Prison 500 or 600 people had gathered before half-past 10, and waited patiently in the vain hope of catching a glimpse of the accused man, as he passed from his cell to the courtroom above.

He was taken into court, however, by another route, but the disappointment was not acute enough to send the loungers home, and all day they remained about the entrance, with occasional futile efforts to run the gantlet of the police in the corridor leading to the courtroom.

It was two minutes after 11 when Durrant appeared in court, escorted by Captain Douglass and two officers. He shook hands with his counsel, General Dickinson and Eugene Deuprey, who had entered the room a few minutes before, and then took a seat directly behind his lawyers and in close proximity to the chair occupied by Captain Douglass.

Shortly after Prosecuting Attorney Barnes entered, accompanied by his assistant, Wakeman, and closely followed by Judge Conlan. Later Chief Crowley arrived, and during the forenoon session remained an interested observer of the proceedings.

Durrant looked pale and somewhat haggard as he feebly shook hands with his attorneys, and dropped into the chair placed for him by Captain Douglass. There was not, however, the slightest indication of nervousness, and the remarkable self-possession which has characterized all his actions since the day of his arrest did not desert him now. It was a kind of self-possession that borders closely upon stolid indifference. Not once during the day did he relax his rigid attitude to catch the answer of a low-voiced witness. Not once did he speak to his attorneys unless first spoken to. When an insane woman forced her way to the witness-stand, and by her erratic maneuvers put the crowd on the qui vive, bringing the attorneys to their feet, and unnerving for the moment the Judge himself, Durrant sat calm and unconcerned, without so much as a flitting expression of interest, gazing blankly at the black-robed figure on the witness-stand, with about the same degree of interest that is manifested by the Sphinx as it gazes over the sands of Egypt.

About the table near which the prisoner sat was scattered a heterogenous collection of gruesome things to be used in evidence, gathered from that blood-stained sanctuary where two young lives went out into the darkness by the hand of an unspeakable monster.

There was the library table with its sickening evidence of the awful crime, the study door with its shattered lock, a bit of soiled lace, a purse found in the possession of the accused and the pieces of an ordinary table knife, mute witnesses all of one of the most atrocious crimes ever recorded in the criminal annals of any country.

At seven minutes after eleven the bailiff yelled for order and Judge Conlan called the case.

Both sides answered ready and District Attorney Barnes opened for the people.

Stewart Merrill was the first witness called. His examination was conducted by Attorney Barnes.

"Where do you reside?" was the first question asked.

"In San Francisco, at 613 Clay street."

"What is your business?"

"Photographer."

"Did you take these pictures," (exhibiting two or three photographs of the interior of the blood-stained edifice on Bartlett street).

"I did; yes, sir."

The witness then identified each one separately.

"Where did your camera stand when you took photograph No. 2 of the library?" interfered General Dickinson.

"Three or four feet outside the room from the threshold of the door. It may have been three and a half feet."

Among the exhibits were photographs of the floor and north and south walls of the library in the church, and one of the victim, Minnie Williams, after the autopsy. The latter gruesome picture represented the dead girl in a horizontal position, the body being nude from the waist up, showing the knife wounds in the breast and delicate neck, and also the stitches taken from the breast down the entire length of the abdomen after the autopsy.

"Where was that picture taken?" asked Mr. Barnes.

"In the receiving vault at Laurel Hill Cemetery on the morning of April 18.

Nothing further of importance was elicited.

Mrs. Susan Morgan was next called.

Before her examination began General Dickinson asked that she be instructed by the court to answer all questions only so far as she could within her own knowledge and not to give any information from hearsay.

"I am a married woman and reside in Alameda, on Pacific avenue," responded the witness in answer to Prosecuting Attorney Wakeman's opening interrogatory.

"Where were you residing at the time of Minnie Williams' murder?"

"At 1225 Versailles avenue."

"Did you know Minnie Williams?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did she ever live with you?"

"Yes, sir; about one year."

"What was she doing with you?"

"Making her home with us."

"When did you see her last?"

"On the morning of the 12th of the present month."

"What was she doing then?"

"I left her wrapping the furniture in papers preparatory to our moving."

"Did Miss Williams go with you to reside at the place where you moved to from Versailles avenue?"

"She did not."

"Do you know where she went?"

"I was told she went to the city."

The defense objected to the question, but the court allowed the witness' answer to stand.

"Are you acquainted with the defendant, Theodore Durrant?"

"I saw him at my home in Alameda. He called to see Miss Williams."

"When was that?"

"Last summer."

"Was that on Versailles avenue?"

"No. We were then living at 2124 Alameda avenue."

"What was Durrant doing while he was at your house?"

"He was there about half an hour. Part of that time was spent in waiting for Miss Williams."

"Did you hear him say anything particular while he was there?"

"While I was in the room they talked on commonplace topics."

"Did you see Durrant on the 11th of the present month?"

"I did not."

Witness was shown the picture taken of Miss Williams after death, but she was unable to identify it.

Clark H. Morgan followed his wife to the stand. His examination was conducted by Attorney Barnes.

"How long did Miss Williams make her home with you?"

"About ten months."

"Were you and your wife on friendly and affectionate terms with her?"

"We were. She was regarded as one of the family."

"Did you ever meet Durrant at your house in Alameda?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever meet him?"

"Yes, sir. It think it was first at a reception given at Dr. Vogel's house by the young people of Emmanuel Baptist Church."

"Who introduced you to him?"

"Miss Williams."

Witness was shown the picture of Miss Williams after death, but could not identify it. Neither could he identify the purse supposed to have been that of Miss Williams, though he recognized the car ticket found therein as being one he had given her four days before her death.

A. E. Williams was the next witness called. The bailiff shouted his name, and while the father of the murdered girl was slowly making his way to the stand the courtroom was thrown into a state of intense excitement by the frantic efforts of a neatly attired woman of about 30 years of age as she pushed her way through the dense crowd in an endeavor to reach the chair close beside Judge Conlan, set apart for witnesses. As she stepped upon the stand the clerk arose to administer the oath, under the impression that the intruder was a bona fide witness, and this impression seemed general in the courtroom. it being taken for granted that a mistake had been made in calling the name.

As she commenced to speak, however, it was evident that her purpose in appearing was prompted by something more potent than a dry subpena.

Her face flushed and the muscles about the hard little mouth twitched convulsively. The suppressed hum of many voices died away as she waved her hand for silence and everybody leaned forward in an attitude of expectant excitement.

"I appear here in the judgment of God and not in the judgment of mankind," she began, but her voice being drowned in the only partly suppressed murmur of excitement and curiosity which her strange and unlooked-for appearance had created, she repeated her initial announcement. This time she said: "My name is Lucy Laura Gould Williamson and I am here in the judgment of God and not in the judgment of mankind."

"Who are you?" asked Judge Conlan.

Again Miss Williamson started to tell in whose judgment she had come, and by this time the court began to realize that the woman was the victim of a mania of some sort and he ordered the bailiff to escort the woman down from the witness-stand and out of the courtroom.

Lucy Laura Gould Williamson insisted on having her say, however, and, as she waved an envelope over her head, she continued, speaking rapidly and half coherently:

"I am here in judgment for God and I pronounce Theodore Durrant innocent. I have tried him and found him not guilty—"

"Get this woman out of here," thundered the court.

"I say I am here with Christ's wisdom," proceeded Miss Williamson, undaunted, "and I pronounce him not guilty. Beware how you prosecute this man," she almost shouted, as a burly officer stepped to her side and made a motion as though to take her arm.

"Do not touch me," she said. "I will go, but I leave this in evidence," handing the letter she had carried in her hand to the clerk.

"I will go," she again said to the officer, as the latter made a motion to hasten her exit. "I'll go, but do not shove me. I leave the judgment of God with you."

The letter which she left with the clerk of the court reads as follows:

To the Citizens of the City and County of San Francisco. To the Public Officials—RESPECTED GENTLEMEN:

The coming woman, gifted with high spiritual powers and for whom the world has been waiting, stands here in your midst. She is by the force of circumstances, to make herself known; first, in the Police Court of San Francisco, for she has come to judge the hearts of men and women through the wisdom given by Jesus Christ.

No man in the city and county of San Francisco is worthy to sit in judgment during the trial of Theodore Durrant. Therefore I, Lucy Laura Gould Williamson, declare, with the authority of God, that these law proceedings must be brought to a close with the reading of this letter. No attempt must again be made by any person to arrest Theodore Durrant, or to again hold him guilty of murder. I, Lucy Laura Gould Williamson, through the spirit of God-given truth, do declare Theodore Durrant to be found innocent through the judgment of God; and I am henceforth responsible for his actions.

With greatest respect to all parties, and with justice to the prisoner, Theodore Durrant, I am yours, LUCY LAURA GOULD WILLIAMSON.

As the woman was being escorted from the courtroom Chief Crowley came forward to the press table and made the following statement:

"About 10 o'clock this morning," said the Chief, "this woman came to my office and said that she had important evidence to submit.

"I told her that if her evidence was for the prosecution she could make a statement to me. She answered that it was for the defense. Then I told her that she had better see Dicknison or Deuprey, attorneys for the defense. She expressed her intention of so doing and went on in a rambling way about being empowered by Jesus Christ to try the prisoner Durrant by an occult process of her own. She had done this and found him innocent. This fact she desired to communicate to the proper authorities, hence her call at my office. The woman is probably insane, but I had no idea that she would appear at the hearing."

When the excitement incident to the Williamson scene had spent itself order was resumed and the hearing was continued.

A. E. Williams was then sworn.

After the preliminary questions witness was shown the photograph taken of his murdered daughter after the autopsy.

"Do you recognize that face?" was asked.

The witness was in doubt, and Mr. Barnes started to describe the circumstances under which the photograph was taken.

An objection was interposed by the defense, but the court allowed the question accompanied by the explanation owing to the peculiar character of the picture.

The witness then made a closer study of the face, and affirmed positively that he could identify it as that of his dead daughter Minnie.

The pocket-book was then offered in evidence, and was positively identified by the witness as the one he had given his daughter shortly after Christmas last year.

The purse was marked people's exhibit F.

"When did you last see your daughter?" was next asked.

"On Friday, the 5th of April."

"You did not see her on Good Friday?"

"No, sir."

"Were you acquainted with Durrant before your daughter's death?"

"I met him first about five years ago."

"Had you seen Durrant for two or three months prior to the inquest?"

"I had not."

Frank A. Young, a baker, 1315 Park street, Alameda, was next called. He had known Minnie Williams three years prior to her death. He was shown the celluloid tablet found in Miss Williams' purse containing an address, and asked if he had ever seen it before.

"I saw it on Thursday afternoon prior to Good Friday."

"Under what circumstances did you see that tablet?"

"I wrote the address on it at her request on the Thursday afternoon in question."

He also identified the purse.

A recess was then taken until 2 P. M.

Sergeant William F. Burke was the first witness called on the reconvening of court at 2 P. M.

"Did you visit the house where Theodore Durrant resided?" asked Attorney Barnes.

"I did, sir; on the Sunday following the murder."

"Did you take any garments from the house?"

"I did, sir. I took an overcoat, and in the pocket found a bunch of keys and a purse. The purse contained a car-ticket, etc."

Witness was shown the purse and identified the same. Likewise the car-ticket.

"At the time I took the coat," witness continued, concerning the identity of the car-ticket, "the mother of the defendant asked me to let her examine the pockets of the coat."

The defense objected to witness telling anything about what Mrs. Durrant said, and Sergeant Burke continued:

"I examined the pockets of the coat and, taking out the pocket-book, shook it and the car-ticket fell to the floor. Officer Shear noticed it and I picked it up and examined it. Afterward I made an examination of the outside compartment in the pocket-book."

Witness examined the overcoat taken from the defendant's house and, identifying the same, the prosecution offered the garment in evidence to be marked exhibit H. The hat was likewise identified and put in as exhibit I. The witness identified the bunch of keys as being the same found in Durrant's clothing, with the exception of one key, which he said had since been placed on the ring. The keys, without the one in question, were put in as exhibit J.

The thirteenth key being removed from the bunch was shown witness and he said it had been given to him on the 13th of the present month by one George King. He did not know where the key was from.

"Now, sergeant, did you visit the church on the afternoon of April 13?" continued Attorney Barnes. "Did you see the body, and what were the circumstances leading up to the discovery of the body?"

"I did, sir. Between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock I went to the church with Officer Lewis. There I found the Coroner and his messenger and Officers Feeney and Reed. I saw the body lying on the floor. I saw the wounds on the throat and on the wrists. I also saw the Coroner take from the mouth a piece of cloth. There was a pool of blood under the head and one under the table. I also saw a stick of wood under the body, about fifteen inches long."

Two soiled strips of linen cloth were shown the witness, and he identified them as being the same or similar to those which he saw taken from the throat of the dead girl.

"I think," he said, "it was the Coroner's messenger who took the rags from the girl's throat."

Witness also identified the broken pieces of the table-knife found on the body.

The cloth and knife were offered in evidence as exhibits K and L respectively. The stick found under the body of the dead girl was likewise identified and put in as exhibit M. Another stick of about the same length and size was pronounced by witness to be the same he had seen Officer Reed take from the table in the library. That was marked as exhibit N.

A number of partly rusted silver-plated caseknives, the same as that which was found broken on the dead body of Minnie Williams, taken from the kitchen of the Emmanuel Baptist Church, together with a table from the library, were examined and identified by witness. He showed also where and how the second stick spoken of as exhibit N had been taken from the table. It was glued on the frame and served as a side support to the drawer.

This stick was taken from the table to show its similarity to that used by the murderer in crowding the piece of cloth down the dead girl's throat. It was apparent both came from the same table.

The caseknives and two paper napkins were put in as people's exhibit O.

"Sergeant, what was the condition of the library door when you arrived there?" asked Attorney Barnes.

"The lock was broken off."

"Did you ever see the lock?"

"I saw it in the Chief's office."

"Have you ever seen these," and the witness was handed the portion of an ordinary brass lock and a small block of wood.

"Yes, sir. I picked them up on the floor of the library and I saw them subsequently in the Chief's office."

"Do you know where the balance of the lock is?"

"I do not."

"Did you hear any one say where it was?"

"We object," said Mr. Dickinson.

The objection was sustained and Mr. Barnes asked:

"Do you know how the other part of that lock could have been lost?"

"Any one could have taken it. The room and church were open to the general public at the time and any one might have picked it up and carried it away out of curiosity."

"Who were present at the time you wrapped this lock up in paper?" asked Attorney Dickinson.

"There were three officers?"

"Were there any of the Coroner's officers present?"

"The Coroner's deputy and messenger were there."

"Could you identify any one else who was in the room at the time?"

"No, sir; I could not."

Sergeant Burke was recalled by Attorney Barnes and questioned as to the location of the wash-basin in the back part of the church.

"Did you examine that washroom?"

"I did, sir. My attention was called to it by Sergeant Reynolds. I found blood stains on it and on the walls."

"Where is that wash-basin?" asked Judge Conlan.

"It is back of the minister's pulpit, almost opposite the rear entrance to the church."

"Is that the only wash-basin in the church?" continued the court.

"All that I know of."

Attorney Dickinson then took the witness in hand.

"What was the position of those blood stains?"

"On the walls, above the basin, and on the basin itself."

"Did you take any precaution for preserving those stains as evidence?"

"No, sir, I did not. Sergeant Reynolds was in charge, and I did not think anything about it."

"Was there any examination made to ascertain definitely as to whether those stains were of blood or from something e lse?"

"Not by me, sir."

"Did you make any subsequent examination of the basin and the blood stains you s peak about?"

"No, sir."

"Did you examine the towel hanging upon the wall near the basin?"

"I did not."

"Did you notice a soapdish, a toothbrush or anything of that kind near the basin?"

"I did not."

Miss Frances Willis of 2009 Howard street was next called.

"Do you know Theodore Durrant?" was asked after the usual preliminary.

"I am slightly acquainted with him.

"Have you seen him recently?"

"I saw him on the Alameda train at Park street on April 8. I rode with him to the Grand-street station."

"Did you converse with him on that day?"

"I did."

"It is the same Theodore Durrant that is here in the room now?"

"Yes, sir."

"There can be no doubt about its being the same man and that he was on the train with you on the 8th of April?"

"No, sir, I think not."

Maggie Fitzpatrick, a girl about 16 years of age, residing at 133 Twenty-sixth street, was called.

"Where were you on Friday night, the 12th, between 9 and 9:15?"

"I was near the corner of Twenty-second and Mission streets."

"Who were you with?"

"With Miss Emma Struven and Miss Louise Struven."

"Who did you see there?"

"When he passed us he said, 'Flora! Flora!'"

"Wait a moment. Who passed you?"

"That man there," looking toward the defendant.

"What did he say to you again?"

"'Flora! Flora! Come here.'"

"What did you say?"

"I did not say anything, but Louise Struven said, 'What?' and I said, 'Don't speak to him; he only wants to get us to talk to him.'"

"Did you recognize his face?"

"I did not get a close look at it, but I am positive it was that man."

"How was he dressed?"

"He had on a dark hat and long black overcoat."

"Did he seem excited when he spoke to you?"

"Yes; the way he said it seemed like he was agitated."

"How old are you?" asked Attorney Dickinson.

"Fifteen, sir."

"Did you notice which way the man whom you thought was Durrant came from when he addressed you and your companions?"

"I did not, sir."

"Did you notice which way he went?"

"Yes, sir; he went down Mission street."

"You say you did not get a good look at the man's face?"

"I did not get a close look at his face, but I think I can recognize the man Durrant as the one who spoke to us."

Louise Struven, one of the girls with Maggie Fitzpatrick, was sworn, and while identifying the hat and coat worn by Durrant and testifying to the height of the man who accosted them she was unable to pick Durrant out from among those seated at the lawyer's desk facing her.

Mrs. Mary M. McCoy, of the corner of Seventeenth and Mission streets, was sworn and testified that on the night of April 12, as she was going down Twenty-third street, between 7 and 8 o'clock, she saw a young man and woman standing near Emmanuel Church on Twenty-third street. The girl seemed to be coaxing for something and moving her hands. "Just as I passed them," she continued, "I heard the man say, 'You are a coward.' I said to myself 'them do be lovers——'" But the defendant's counsel objected to what she said to herself, and Mrs. McCoy was requested to confine her statements to what she saw and heard.

"Did you hear anything else?"

"No, sir; not after I heard him say that she was a coward."

"Where were you going when you met them?" asked Attorney Dickinson.

"I was going home, sir."

"Did you notice what time it was when you reached your house?"

"I did not, sir. I was so tired that I dropped into a chair and went to sleep."

"What is your business, Mrs. McCoy?"

"I keep a laundry, sir, and I was tired that night and walked slow."

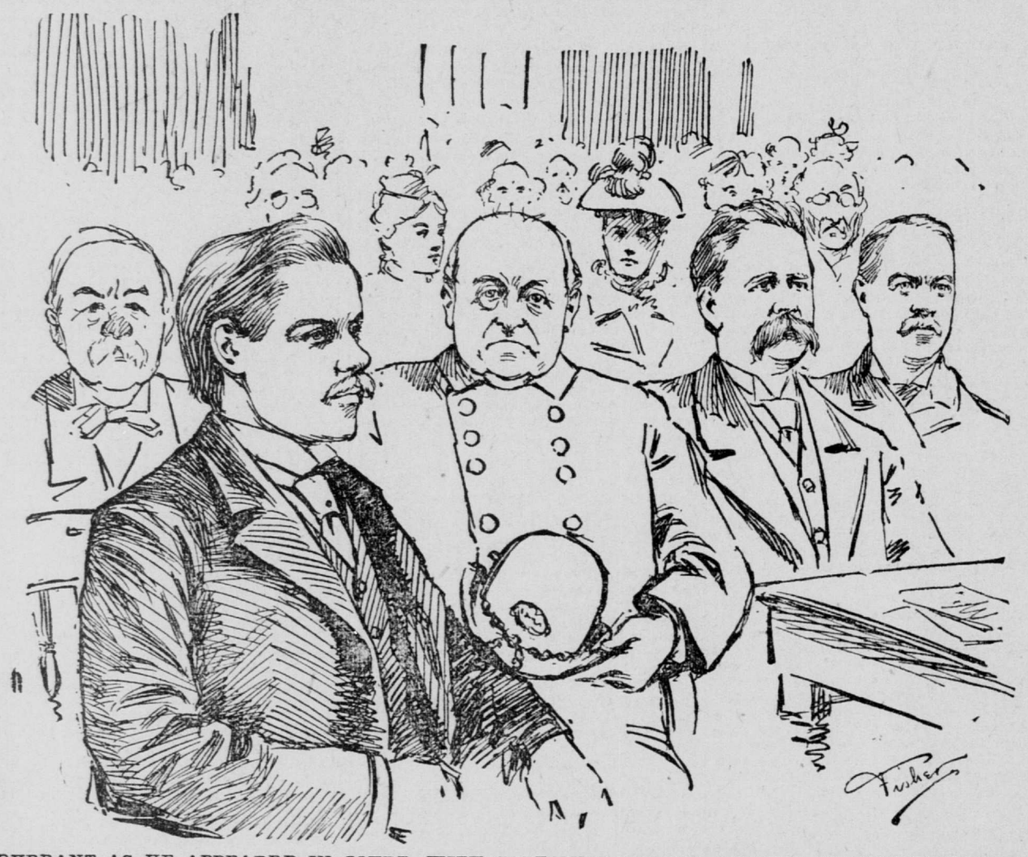

"Did you see the faces of the two young persons by the church?"

"No, sir. It was too dark for my eyesight. I noticed, though, that the man had a soft hat and long dark overcoat on, and the girl was dressed in dark."

"You are sure you did not hear anything else, madam?"

"Yes, sir; I am sure nothing else was said that I could understand. As I told you, the girl seemed to be coaxing for something. I thought to myself—" and she managed to get it all out before the attorneys could check her—"that they were lovers, and that she was afraid to go home, don't you know."

The old lady was kept on the stand a few minutes longer, and after her dismissal court adjourned until this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

PASSED RESOLUTION

Baptist Ministers Express Sympathy for Emmanuel Congregation.

The misfortune which has befallen Emmanuel Church was the topic discussed at the meeting of the Baptist Association, held at the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday morning. Sympathy was expressed for the church members in their affliction, and only once was the name of the pastor mentioned, and then it was in the form of an interrogation.

Rev. M. P. Boynton opened the subject by saying: "I think it eminently fitting that we, as members of the Baptist denomination, express our sympathy for Baptist Emmanuel Church congregation. They are not to blame for what has happened. The church is of our denomination, and it would be a comfort to its members if they could feel that the ministers were in sympathy with them."

At this point Rev. I. S. Abbott asked, "You include the pastor?"

Rev. M. P. Boynton replied, "Of course I include the pastor. The church as an embodied organization requires our sympathy."

Rev. A. L. Dietz hastened to explain that the ministers had no sympathy with the crime nor with the manner in which the church had been desecrated, but that ministerially they were filled with sympathy for the church members in their affliction.

Dr. Bush drew attention to the fact that a week had passed since the tragedy, and it only seemed fitting that the Baptist ministers of San Francisco should express some feeling in the matter of the Emmanuel church members, and should signify their intention of standing by their brethren.

"If they decide to continue in the church," said Dr. Bush, "it seems to me that the Baptist Association should appoint an all-day Baptist meeting to fast and pray and show that all the Baptists are in sympathy with the congregation in their trouble. It seems a duty to show that we are loyal to these brethren. If they decide to worship in a fresh place we must stand by them."

Rev. Mr. Dietz said that it would be better to pass a resolution to that effect if the sense of the meeting was one of sympathy. Silence followed this suggestion. Then Rev. Mr. Boynton said, "Brethren, I do not want to push this matter into forcing a discussion, but it seems to me that we owe to ourselves as members of the Baptist Ministers' Association just as much as we owe it to the members of the Emmanuel Church to stand by them and show the public we are loyal and sympathetic. I move that a committee be appointed to frame resolutions."

This motion was seconded and carried apathetically. Rev. Mr. Boynton and Rev. Dr. Abbott were appointed. The following resolutions were read and unanimously passed:

To the Emmanuel Baptist Church—DEAR BRETHREN: In this dark hour of your distress, we, the Baptist ministers' conference of San Francisco and vicinity, do heerby express our deepest sympathy. We trust that our Heavenly Father will guide you as a church into a bright and happy future. We also desire to render any assistance in our power when you resume existence as a church. Brethren, our prayers are with you.

HYDRAULIC MINERS.

Permits Granted to Work Mines in the American River District.

At a meeting of the California Debris Commission yesterday permits to mine by hydraulic power were granted to Porter Phillips, William and W. J. S. Bacchi and David Croft of El Dorado County, and Joseph J. and A. A. Hoffman of Placer County. Authorizations to construct impounding dams for hydraulic mining were granted to James Ward avd William McDonald and William Henning & Co. of Placer County, and William F. Coe, J. C. Day and Jay E. Russell of El Dorado County.

When the dams are properly constructed so as to prevent the escape of debris and slickens into the rivers permits to mine the property will be granted. All of the mining property considered by the Debris Commission is on the watershed of the American River.

COAL FROM THE LUNGS.

Several Tons of It Breathed Out in a Lifetime.

We breathe oxygen in and coal out. Experiments show that eight ounces troy of solid carbon are given off by a pair of human lungs every 24 hours. That would be 6½ tons in a life of 75 years. What would that amount of carbon be worth in the form of diamond? A diamond is pure carbon.

The price of diamonds concerns very few people, but the condition of the lungs is a matter of supreme importance in this season of changing weather. Unless the lungs be strong they cannot expel the carbon. A cold attacking them directly weakens them.

Any depression, though it seems to affect only one organ, must be overcome by bracing the whole body. For this purpose the doctors prescribe stimulants.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky is highly prized by the medical profession, because it rouses the latent energy of the body, creates a keen appetite, and is invigorating and nerve-soothing. If the use of it were followed by an injurious reaction, the doctors would not commend it. The fact is, that Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky stimulates the organs to do their work properly, so that all ground gained is held.

Hence, it is a standard medicine; a household remedy of proven value. It is especially useful in the spring to fight those obstinate colds that so often develop into pneumonia and bronchitis.

Bond the City and pay its debts.

Crime comes and goes, but virtue stays with us.

Impeach the traitors in the Board of Supervisors.

Treachery to party means dishonesty to the people.

The dignity of train robbery is degraded by the robbing of streetcars.

Local development that waits for outside capital will wait a long time.

People who brood over horrible murders are courting suicide or the asylum.

The healthy mind is that which is able to force its thought into healthy channels.

It is right to take an interest in the murder case, but don't get morbid over it.

A city that cannot pay its debts ought to close up and go out of the city business.

Corruption is generally at the bottom of a coalition among Supervisors of opposite political faiths.

Fine art is an infant industry in California that ought to have praise, patronage and protection.

A "solid eight" composed of Republican and Democratic Supervisors is a proclamation of rascality.

There were no silurians among the pioneers and there shouldn't be among their descendants.

Now that the fiestas of Los Angeles and Santa Barbara are out of the way that of Santa Rosa has the whole road.

From the crop of Half-million Clubs that are sprouting all over the State we are bound to reap a big harvest of settlers.

Men who claim to represent the Republican party in the City Government are in honor bound to keep the pledges of the party.

As soon as Mendocino shows an ability to play a lone hand on railway building, there will be plenty of partners willing to assist.

The dignity and prestige of the Republican party have been dragged in the dust by the traitors who represent it in the Board of Supervisors.

What party is to be held responsible for the men whom the hybrid "solid eight" are putting into office after turning out men of tried competency?

The Republican party must defend itself and its responsibilities to the public by punishing the traitors who represent it in the Board of Supervisors.

No combination of Supervisors of opposing political faiths, for the evident purpose of carrying through concerted schemes, can be defended by honest men.

The inconvenience of surname has been experienced by a cousin of Jim Stokes, who gets a great deal of attention because his servant-girl's brother got drunk.

If Denver is dissatisfied with the hard transportation conditions to which its unfortunate geographical position has given rise it can pick up and move to California.

In asserting that the Monroe doctrine has no validity in international law, Senator Hill evidently intended to prepare the public mind for his retirement from politics.

The squabble in the Democratic party over the silver question is the worst wasting of breath on record, for the party will have no power to deal with the question either way.

Curio hunters are advised that the cobblestones in the streets of San Francisco might be taken up by them and treasured along with the flints used by the men of the stone age.

Unless the Republican party punishes the traitors who represent it in the Board of Supervisors it must bear the disgrace and contumely which their acts have brought upon it.

The "eruption" of an island off the shore of Mendocino County has no more startling significance than the furnishing of further evidence of abundant natural gas in California.

Perhaps the main reason why the advanced woman offends so many people is that she is progressing so rapidly she has to move by leaps and bounds and hasn't time to notice whom she jumps on.

The Democratic party may do as it pleases with its renegades in the Board of Supervisors, but the Republican party cannot afford the disgrace which its own renegades in that body have brought upon it.

If ever the Republican and Democratic parties had a reason for temporary combination, to punish political crookedness, the conduct of the renegades who represent them both in the Board of Supervisors has furnished it.

The organization of bodies all over the State which shall co-operate with the Half-million Club is a step in the direction of achieving an ambition similar to that of Archimedes, who said that if he had a lever long enough he could move the world.

The money problem in this country is not a circumstance to that which confronts the rulers of India and the impression grows that unless there is a speedy increase in the price of Indian products the attempt to force the gold standard there will result in a collapse, a catastrophe and perhaps a cataclysm.

In marrying Mr. Curzon, Miss Leiter's friends have anxiously explained that he is not a Lord and therefore that by marrying him she is not becoming a Lady, but we cannot forget that if he lives long enough he will become a Lord, and that he is very poor and Miss Leiter very rich—and an American.

SHAME CAST TO THE WINDS.

The "solid eight" of the Board of Supervisors proclaimed themselves aloud yesterday when, without any explanation, excuse or charges, they passed an order dismissing seven City officers and appointing others in their stead. It was in vain that a member of the minority protested against the outrage and demanded that charges be made against the holders of the offices. He was contemptuously ignored, and the shameless act has gone on the records of the City.

Not even party spoils or civil service reform can be urged to excuse this action by the "solid eight." The Board of Supervisors is composed of eight Republicans and four Democrats. The Republicans are: King, Benjamin, Hughes, Dunker, Morgenstern, Taylor, Spreckels and Hobbs; and the Democrats are: Scully, Hirsch, Wagner and Dimond. The "solid eight" are: Scully, King, Benjamin, Hirsch, Hughes, Dunker, Morgenstern and Wagner—five Republicans and three Democrats—and the minority is composed of Dimond, Taylor, Spreckels and Hobbs—three Republicans and one Democrat.

In electing eight out of the twelve Supervisors the Republican party came into control of the Board of Supervisors, and is therefore responsible for the acts of the majority of the Board. The very fact of a combination of five Republicans with three Democrats to form a "solid eight" who shall vote together constantly makes it impossible to imagine an honest purpose on their part and makes it impossible for the minority of the Board to act with them.

In all the political scandals that have afflicted the City this is the most conspicuous and disgraceful. We all remember the earnest protest from the public against the election of dishonest men, and we have fresh in mind the strenuous efforts of many good citizens to defeat the two old parties by forming nonpolitical organizations for the purpose of electing clean men to office. The Democratic party had betrayed the people, and it was feared that the Republican could not be trusted. But the Republican party pledged itself solemnly to elect worthy men, and it was faith in that pledge and in the stern integrity and clean history of the Republican party that broke the strength of the non-political movement and caused the election of a Republican majority in the Board. A feeling of security arose. Now a majority of the Republican members have proved renegades from the party and traitors to public duty, and have dragged their party in the mire and dashed the hopes of the people to the ground. It is the most disgraceful combination of scandalous elements ever found together in our municipal affairs, and it comes at a time when the proud and energetic men of the City were pressing forward with high hopes and an earnest purpose to make San Francisco one of the greatest cities in the world.

Disgraceful as this is, it would be vastly more disgraceful and absolutely ruinous to permit this scandalous state of affairs to continue and flourish unchecked. While it is every citizen's duty, whatever his political belief may be, to take a hand in purging his fair City of this shame that has fallen upon it, it is more directly the duty and responsibility of the Republican party to take the lead. By whatever means these renegades can be reached, let the work proceed. Now, if ever, is the time to hold up such men to public scorn, as a punishment to them, as a check upon their future exercise of an evil power, and as a warning to others who may be tempted to betray so sacred a thing as a public trust.

Supervisor Scully, who hitherto has voted consistently with the "solid eight," declined to vote on this motion to dismiss tried and competent officers, but in the absence of his history in the Board and of his protest and opposing vote, he has failed to keep his name out of the mire.

It cannot be expected that men who would act with so open shamelessness could be induced by a popular protest either to resign or reform. The proceedings to cripple their power for harm must come from without, and it is the clear duty of the Republican party, both for the sake of its own fair name and for its responsibility to the public, to take prompt and determined action in the premises.

AN UNSOUND CONDITION.

Nearly every resident of the City seems to have been transformed into a theoretical detective by the recent awful and mysterious murders, for the officers and newspapers have been overwhelmed with theories. It is natural for the people to have opinions, but when it comes to serious elaborations of theories they have comparatively little value, except in a purely literary way, are rarely of any assistance in the actual work of running down the crime, and when undertaken by persons not specially trained in this difficult line of literary work are invariably foolish, annoying and superfluous.

All this voluntary detective work proceeds from two causes. One is that species of vanity which finds expression otherwise in shrewd guesses at the involved plots of stories and dramas. Another is a popular misunderstanding concerning the actual work of ferreting out a crime. That word "ferreting" explains the whole case of the real detective. A naturalist, if asked to give the best method of bringing a rat out of its hole, will apply his scientific knowledge to the case, and by an elaborate course of reasoning devise some ingenious scheme wholly theoretical and more than likely impracticable. But a ferret turned loose upon the same business will pursue the rat bodily and bring it forth. It is well, therefore, to leave the hunting of rats to ferrets and the discovery of criminals to men qualified both by instinct and special training to do the work best.

The popular tendency to interfere in this dreadful case shows that the average mind is given over to its contemplation. This is a vice, and as such is deplorable; and its encouragement by the newspaper publication of private theories is vicious. The law has a machinery of its own for such cases; and when it is evident, as in this case, that the most careful and intelligent work is being done by the machinery of the law, there is no excuse whatever for interfering with its operation.

To what extent the press in decency may go in such a case in organizing its reporters into a detective corps is a matter to be measured by the publisher's sense of his responsibility to the public. If his independent detective work hampers that of the police and inflames the public mind, then clearly his course is not taken either with a view to assist the law or to contribute a healthy element to the moral tone of the community. It will not do to say that a newspaper should give the news without regard to all other considerations. That would mean to say merely that the publisher is willing to cripple the law and degrade the moral sense of his readers if by so doing he can sell a few more copies of his paper.

In its treatment of the great double tragedy in this City the CALL has aimed simply to give such news as it could give without doing harm. In this it has used such discoveries made by the police as they were willing to give out to the press, and has supplemented it with such independent work of its own as was necessary to make a complete, reliable and intelligent story of the affair. It has had no prejudice for or against any person suspected of the crimes. If the circumstances point more strongly to one person than another, it is that person's misfortune and not the CALL'S fault. There has been no attempt on the part of this paper to make out a case against any one, or to "dig up" evidence in support of any theory. Least of all has the CALL gone at any length into or to any extent gloated over and paraded those pitifully unprintable features with which the case is burdened.

Let every sensible person, therefore, drop the case from his mind. The law now has it in hand, and that is sufficient. All the real and reliable news of the case will appear in the CALL hereafter as formerly, and there it will stop. This is a great City, a noble State and a great country, in which important things are happening every day. Let us turn now to this wholesome record and thereby drag our minds out of the noxious depths into which they have fallen, and turn our faces to the great throbbing world which is passing in the full light of heaven before us.

REPUBLICAN RESPONSIBILITY.

In American politics the party defeated at the polls may, if it choose, retire from political work and wait until the next campaign opens; with the party in power, however, the reverse is true; that party must be vigilant and active to have its pledges carried out by its representatives in office. To it applies the wisdom of the proverb, "make hay while the sun shines." It cannot ignore a single political issue. It is responsible to the people for good government and cannot shift or evade that responsibility without paying the penalty at the next election.

The truth of its responsibility to the people in this way cannot be too strongly enforced upon the Republican party of San Francisco. The demand of the progressive element of the community for public improvements, makes it imperative that the City Government should show itself worthy to be intrusted with such work and capable of carrying it forward with energy and economy. It is known that the City Government is under Republican control, and if there is any failure in the Government to fulfill the expectations of good citizens and public spirited men, the whole party will be sure to suffer the effects of that disappointment and will enter the next campaign with a loss of prestige that will greatly endanger its chances of success.

Those officials who represent the Republican party on the Board of Supervisors and in other City and County offices, are particularly charged with the duty of keeping the party pledges. They should bear in mind they were not elected on their individual popularity. They were elected because they were nominated by the Republican party and recommended to the people as men who could be relied upon to fulfill every pledge made in the Republican platform. It was the strength of the party organization, the influence and arguments of the party press and the cordial support of all loyal Republicans, that gave them office; and therefore if they have either manly honor or ordinary political wisdom they will respond to the demands of the party, be true to their campaign promises and keep faith with the people.

The responsibility of power, however, is not confined solely to those who hold office. The leaders of the Republican party, the great Republican clubs and the stalwart Republican newspapers that urged the people and the taxpayers to elect these men to office also owe something to the community. They should give every Republican official fair warning that he will not find any party support if he breaks his pledges, and on the other hand they should give him every commendation and assurance of support if he will keep them.

These truths must not be lightly set aside as commonplaces. They are pertinent to the issues before us. They concern the practical affairs of the City. They refer to matters of present interest. It is by applying them that the Republican party can give to the people of San Francisco a good government and set forth upon the work of municipal improvement with the confidence and support of the taxpayers. The CALL speaks for the whole community when it demands that the representatives of the Republican party, in office or out of office, shall bear in mind the great responsibilities imposed upon it by the confidence of the voters at the last election, and shall be diligent so long as it has the power, to use it for the public welfare, for progress, for economy and for improvement.

WITHOUT A RIVAL.

The people of San Francisco can find abundant cause for satisfaction in the thousand evidences of awakening enterprise throughout all the broad region known as the Pacific Coast. Rivalries there may be between other cities and other localities, but for San Francisco there is no rival. Holding the commanding position on the coast, with an easy supremacy over the whole trade of the Pacific Ocean, she has no temptation to oppose or belittle the enterprises of other places, but has, on the contrary, a thousand inducements to encourage them, foster them and promote them by every means in her power.

It was the extraordinary advantage of her position with reference both to the continent of North America and to the Pacific Ocean that led Bret Harte to refer to San Francisco as sitting "indifferent to fate." The aptness of the phrase has been everywhere recognized. No caprice of fortune, no process of fate can take from this city the lordship of the Pacific Coast. Only by the folly, the ignorance or the laziness of her own people could she lose it, and even then she could easily regain it as soon as a wise, resolute and energetic generation of men rose up to take control of her commerce and her industries and shape the course of her history.

It is because of this easy supremacy that she is pre-eminently fitted to be the leader and the helper in Pacific Coast enterprises. Whatever tends to build up any part of the Greater West from Washington to New Mexico, serves to advance the greatness of San Francisco. Step by step our population will increase with that of the whole coast. We cannot any more effectually promote the progress of our own City than by promoting that of every other city in this part of the Union. Our interests are identical with their interests, and as other flourishing cities to the north and to the south of us approach a population of a quarter of a million we approach a population of a million.

The full understanding of this identity of interest between the metropolis and the coast, will do a great deal in confirming into permanence the glow of harmony that is now animating the people of California and uniting them for enterprise and action. When once it is made clear that San Francisco has no jealousy of any other community and no interest to serve opposed to that of the State at large, there is certain to be a cordial co-operation in all great undertakings. That time, according to all evidence, has now arrived, and the era of progress has already opened.

THE CALL'S NEW PRESS.

The splendid new press which the present proprietor of the CALL ordered as soon as he took charge of the paper is on the way across the continent and will soon arrive. Until it does arrive and is started we beg that our subscribers will have a little patience if they receive the paper somewhat late. The circulation of the CALL has so quickly outgrown the capacity of the machinery bought with the paper that the present embarrassment could not have been avoided. Our consolation is that the delays will not continue long.

AROUND THE CORRIDORS.

Ned Murray, who came down from his mine at Oro Fino in Siskiyou the other day, was telling about the bad quality of the whisky they used to have over in Sawyers Bar before the wagon road was built over Salmon Mountain. "Over at the Black Bear mine was an Arkansawyer named Billy Ford, who had been cutting timber for the Black Bear, and felt at home. Once, the day before Christmas, he went into the superintendent's office and said: 'Want to get some money; want thirty or forty dollars; like to go over to the bar and get good and full; I ain't been good and full since last Christmas; of course, I've been on one or two little jamborees — Fourth of July and such times—but that ain't what I want; what I want is to get good and full so I'll feel as if I done my duty and go back to work having some respect for myself.' 'How do you know when you're good and full, Billy?' asked the superintendent. 'Oh, easy enough; soon's that Sawyers Bar whisky begins to taste good I know I must be blamed drunk.'"

Louis Dean of Reno, one of the big cattlemen of Nevada, who is stopping at the Russ, was telling last evening about some of the advantages of competing railroads to the cattle business. "The charges for a carload of cattle from Reno down to the Bay, a distance of 230 miles," he said, "is $70. The charge from points 300 miles further East, or over twice as far, is only $15 a car more. It would probably be more than that if the traffic would bear it. Down south, from Capistrano, not far from San Diego, we were charged some time ago $128 for each car to San Francisco, but from there to Denver, which is over twice as far, we were charged no more for the cattle-cars, although they were thirty-six feet in length, while those over the Southern Pacific here were only twenty-seven feet long. There was competition East. Now that the profits in cattle-raising in Nevada have come down very much competing roads and a reduction in freights will make a great difference to us."

Road Commissioner Marsden Manson has been up to Tehama County with Mr. Irvine, at the request of the county authorities, to assist and advise them as to carrying out their work in building a road from Red Bluff to Manton. Yesterday speaking of the work of the commission he said: "The law is broad and well drawn, and contemplates work tending to be useful to every country home in California. It is of great importance to the State, and I was very glad to see the CALL start the proposition to build the boulevard down the peninsula. We are here now to get from the Southern Pacific authorities rates for the distribution of road-building material from Folsom to whatever points it may be required. We expect to investigate the geology of every county to find the most suitable and accessible road-building material, and to look into the various water supplies for the purposes of sprinkling and watering the roads."

They were talking about the counties in California in which there are no railroads at the Lick yesterday, and some one said that Sierra was one of the benighted. "What, Sierra?" said M. H. Mead, who is an ex-Sheriff and ex-Senator of that county. "Why, Sierra has two railroads, the Central Pacific main line and the Nevada, California and Oregon Railway." But when the matter was looked into, it was found that the Central Pacific overland line had one and three-quarter miles of track in Sierra passing across the southeastern corner, without any station in the county, while the California, Nevada and Oregon Railway had three-quarters of a mile over the northeastern corner, with one station in Sierra at Evans' place for passengers for Long Valley.

A FIESTA EDITION.

The Los Angeles Herald issued a special Fiesta number last Wednesday which covered the subject very completely. The descriptive articles were well written, and the edition as a whole was very attractive. The improvements which have been introduced since the Herald passed into the hands of Mr. Bradbury are notable in every department.

WEIGHS TWO POUNDS.

A One-Month-Old Baby Boy Who Can Make a Bed of a Cigar-Box.

The Child Is Doing Well and Will, No Doubt, Live and Grow Fat.

In a little cottage on Bright-street hill, Ocean View, there is a diminutive specimen of humanity in the shape of a baby boy, the son of Mrs. M. E. Bonnell. The child is just 1 month old and tips the beam at two pounds.

The child, although it appears to be quite vigorous, has not gained in weight perceptibly since its birth. It is less than seven inches in length, has a waist measurement like that of a boy's wrist, and its head seems no larger than a china teacup.

Its arms are veritable pipestems and its hands marvelously small and delicate. It can be hidden from view in an ordinary cigar-box, and on one or two occasions, for the benefit of visitors, a bed has been made for the boy in such a receptacle, wherein he has slept for hours with a smiling face and untroubled conscience.

Mrs. Bonnell is a young, well-developed woman, and has three children. She is convinced that her month-old boy will live to be a comfort to her in her old age, and at present there is nothing apparently to wreck her hope in that direction. The child is doing nicely, and the indications are that it will continue to prosper.

Mrs. Bonnell is a poor woman, and for several months she has been dependent upon relatives for support. This was due to the desertion of her husband, who, Mrs. Bonnell says, is living with another woman on Tehama street. She has looked for him repeatedly in vain.

"I would like to find him," said she to Secretary McComb of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children yesterday. "He has not provided for me for over a year, but so long as he was with me I did not complain. Some years ago he met a woman whose name I do not wish to give just now, and a few months ago he went to live at her house. He is there yet and refuses to see me. If I am forced to take the step I will have him arrested on the charge of failure to provide."

The officers of the society have been furnished with Bonnell's address and an effort will be made to-day to have him return to his family. If he refuses he will be arrested and prosecuted.

FOUGHT OVER A SIGNBOARD.

A Milkman's Advertisement Annoys a Theater Watchman.

As befits the watchman of a temple of Thespis, J. B. Fleming, who sees that all goes well about the East End Theater, has an artistic soul. Fond of beautiful things, Mr. Fleming's sense of art revolted when he saw the signboard put up by William E. Duncan over a new milk depot now in course of construction just across the street from the theater. He remonstrated with Mr. Duncan, and so strongly that the latter swore out a warrant yesterday before Alderman Negley, charging him with aggravated assault and battery, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. According to Mr. Duncan, Fleming, unlike the iconoclasts of old, wreaked his vengeance not on the offensive picture but on the author and owner thereof. This is Mr. Duncan's story, narrating Mr. Fleming's efforts on behalf of the esthetic.

"Fleming objected to a new signboard just put up by me. He said it was a disgrace to Collins avenue. I told him it was none of his business what the sign looked like, and asked him to go away. He refused, and when I threatened to call a policeman he struck me in the face with his fist, knocked me on the head with a brick and attempted to cut me with a knife."

Mr. Fleming gave bail for a hearing next Tuesday. Though his violent efforts on behalf of the beautiful do not meet with the sanction of the residents of Collins avenue it must be said that most of them think his action was very excusable. They argue that the East End should not be defaced with inartistic signboards, and they will put in a good word for the champion of art.

SILVER MEN ARE ACTIVE.

The First Committeeman in This City Has Been Appointed.

LAWYER CHILSTROM CHOSEN.

Being a Populist, He Must Now Find a Republican and a Democrat.

The bimetallists do not propose to lose any time in their work of organization. Already Enoch Pepper, chairman of the executive committee of the State Silver League, has appointed a worker for free coinage in the person of P. O. Chilstrom, an attorney, who has been prominently connected with the People's party. Mr. Chilstrom has been selected as the first committeeman from San Francisco, and he is now engaged, according to the instructions sent to him by Chairman Pepper, in looking about for the men whom he is to associate with him on the committee.

Previous to the return of Emissary Alva Udell to Los Angeles that gentleman was informed by wire of the withdrawal of John R. Berry, L. M. Holt, Charles L. Eager and M. Dromgold from the committee to make room for San Francisco men. He had a talk with Attorney Adrian C. Ellis before he left, but whether Mr. Ellis will be committeeman No. 2 is not settled.

The fact that Mr. Ellis has been an active Democrat—an old Southern Democrat—in the past will not militate against his selection as a Silver League committeeman in the least, because the free-coinage men are not drawing party lines tight. They hope to make up the silver party from all the others, and are therefore taking a Republican here and a Democrat there, as well as the more easily reached Populists, in making up the State Central Committee of seventy-five. The committee of which Mr. Chilstrom has been made a member is better known as the Committee of Fifteen, and is the executive committee of the new movement.

The plan of the bimetallists is to start out in each county with a "general county committee of three," and such a committee they hope to form by associating a Populist, Republican and Democrat together. It might be said of Mr. Ellis that he could hardly now be selected as a Democrat, at least if the very letter of Chairman Pepper's type-written instructions is to be followed, because Mr. Ellis, since President Cleveland's connection with the gold power seemed to be indicated in the last big bond contract, has kicked clean over the traces of his party and avers that he has cut loose.

In this connection a recent visit may be mentioned of Mr. Chilstrom to Morris M. Estee, the Republican candidate for Governor in the last campaign. Mr. Estee has published a pamphlet in which he has taken an emphatic stand for silver. That was right in line with the ideas of the bimetallists, but Mr. Chilstrom's visit furnished Mr. Estee with an opportunity for saying that he "did not want anything to do with the Republican machine in this State any more."

The end aimed at is the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and it does not matter what the political means used are so long as that end is realized.

The membership of these county general committees will be increased later on. The basis of representation in them which the executive committee has established in the country districts is one member for every fifty votes polled at the last election. The plans of the new party contemplate the organization of ward and township leagues, too, and the incidental co-operation of all the presidents of such subleagues as a "board of presidents," with the general committees.

Chairman Pepper has written to Mr. Chilstrom with reference to the coming silver mass-meeting here, at which President A. J. Warner of the executive committee of the American Bimetallic party and Senator Stewart of Nevada are booked to speak. If General Sibley can get back from Pennsylvania in time he is certainly to be on the programme as a speaker. Committeeman Chilstrom will commence preparations at once for the event.

The platform of principles of the Silver League is being circulated and canvassed for in the form of a pledge of membership. The position of the bimetallists is plainly defined, and the three closing paragraphs make interesting reading. They are:

We believe that in the effort to secure public reforms it is the part of wisdom to consult the state of public opinion and to unite in taking up that question first upon which there seems to be the greatest probability of securing the affirmative action of a majority of the voters.

We believe that public opinion is now ripe for action upon the measures of reform which it is the object of this league to accomplish, and that success in effecting these reforms will be easy if those who think alike can be induced to vote alike.

We believe it to be a present duty, enjoined alike by patriotism and philanthropy, for all voters to ignore their present party affiliations, and, for the time being at least, to unite in electing to office those only who are unequivocally pledged to—at the earliest practical moment—give the people financial legislation of the kind herein outlined.

A manifesto calling upon all Populists to concentrate their whole attention upon the financial question has been issued by the party leaders in Washington, D. C. It bears the signatures of Lafe Pence, O. M. Kem, T. J. Hudson, William Baker, W. A. McKeighan, William V. Allen, John Davis, W. A. Harris, Jerry Simpson, John C. Bell, James H. Kyle, Haldor E. Boen, H. E. Taubeneck, J. H. Turner and General James B. Weaver. These names are familiar to Populists, being of men either representing the party in Congress or standing well at the top.

CHRIST'S RELIGION.

Its Power In Sustaining the Burden of Life.

The Rev. Dr. W. D. Williams, Plymouth Church, preached Sunday morning on "The Life of Christ in Our Life," and said: Parents are sorry for what their children do; Christ is sorry for what we are. His life in our life adds love to prudence. The sustained burden of each day makes the burden of the next day easier to bear. The living Christian is a mediator between Christ and the uninstructed soul. The Son of God came from heaven to earth in order that the sons of men might go from earth to heaven. Alas for us if the ladder of science were the only "steps up to heaven."

That is true Christian life which gives us sympathy with every form of human life and enables us to work most successfully for its advancement. Religion that carries us away from our fellow-men is not the best type of Christ's religion. Socially we are woven into the fabric of society, where every man is like one thread in a piece of cloth. And no man has a right, by an immoral or un-Christian act, to draw out and thereby mar the well-woven fabric.

Men hear only what they are capable of hearing. Some ears only hear the lowest elements of music. The better parts are nothing to them. It is not in them to like it. A prowling burglar is incapable of appreciating disinterested benevolence, and a cold, selfish life cannot understand a large, loving, Christlike principle. It is the eye and not the horizon that determines what we can see. It is life in the soul and not environment which enables us to discern the power and glory of the life of Christ in ours and in other lives.

SOME NEW BOOKS.

Recent Additions to the Shelves of the Free Public Library.

The San Francisco Free Library Bulletin for April, just issued, shows that a large number of valuable books have recently been added to the shelves. Many of these will be of value to those who are interested in electricity. There is on this list the titles of 186 books on electrical engineering, electric bells, electric light, electric railways, electro-metallurgy, telegraph, telephone and phonograph. The list also shows six additions on religion and philosophy, fourteen on social science, two on philology, twelve on science and useful arts, ten on general literature, three on geography and description, fourteen on history, nine on biography, fourteen fiction, thirty-nine for the young and fifty-eight for reading by the fifth, sixth and seventh grades pupils of the public schools. The library has now upon its shelves 80,323 books.

NOBILITY AND COMMONERS.

In the Days of the Tudors Sharp Caste Lines Were Not Drawn.

A story in one of the magazines about a woman named Divver, who haunted genealogists and experts in heraldry until she satisfied herself that her family name was De Vere and immediately adopted that aristocratic patronymic, affords no end of amusement to paragraphers as illustrating the height of absurdity in the quest of ancestry, says the Boston Transcript. But may not the worthy Mrs. Divver have been justified in her action? It is very probable that Divver is a plebeian deformity of De Vere, which time, custom, carelessness and an indifference to descent brought about. Names suffer just such mutilations and attrition in the course of time and are ground down to an indistinct sound, losing edge and accent in the process. We once heard of a man who signed his name Simmer without the slightest suspicion that genealogy would have justified him in writing it Seymour.

This very beautiful and euphonious name is treated with barbarity by many who bear it, who pronounce it "Seemore," utterly oblivious that it comes from St. Maur, in which form it is now written by the Duke of Somerset, whose heir is Lord Seymour. This family of Seymours, by writing the name in its ancient and authentic form and conserving its concentration as Seymour in one of their titles, undoubtedly are moved by the purpose of letting the world know how they would have it pronounced. They are a very old race, associated with Saint Maur in Normandy before the Conqueror invaded England. They are as proud as the proudest. When Sir Edward Seymour joined William of Orange at Exeter, the latter said: "I think, Sir Edward, that you are of the family of the Duke of Somerset." "Pardon me, sir," responded the aristocrat of aristocrats, speaking as the head of the elder branch, "the Duke of Somerset is of my family."

If a man or woman in America thinks it worth the time and trouble to trace descent in search of an ancestor, it is quite possible that he or she may make a discovery gratifying to family pride. Social lines have been much more closely drawn in Great Britain in the last two centuries than they were in the times of the Plantagenets and the Tudors. It was no uncommon thing, four hundred years ago, for the sons of nobles to go into trade in association with men who had made their way from very humble beginnings. The sons of country knights were often glad to be taken into the counting houses and households of rich London merchants. Marriages often followed that united the tradesman's family with old, historic lines. Very kindly relations sprang up between the palaces and "the city."

Even monarchs did not disdain to mate with ladies of no higher rank than simple gentry. Edward IV married Elizabeth Woodville, who, though the daughter of a Baron, was the widow of a simple knight when the King, who was always taken by pretty face, met her. The mighty Queen Elizabeth had among her near kinfolks on her mother's side some good-natured, everyday country people who bore the name of Brown, and who when she came to the throne visited London in the expectation of nepotism.

The great Queen was more Tudor than Brown—by the way Owen Tudor himself was but a plain Welsh knight who made himself a lucky marriage—and she sent her country relatives back with an intimation that court life was not their sphere, and with no sinecure to console them.

Dr. Doran conjectured that the slang phrase, "Astonishing the Browns," long in vogue in England, may have had its origin in this incident. The Browns were types, for there was many a plain country gentleman who might with genealogical justification "call the king his cousin." All this has changed. Caste has hedged itself in within the last two centuries; classes do not mingle so much as they did in the time of the Tudors, which is the best period for Americans to study when in search of ancestors. If a lady or gentleman with a taste for ancestors wants to gratify it, it is only an embittered enemy of the Heraldry Office who will seek to thwart the endeavor.

Last Duel on English Soil.

The last duel—the last fatal one, at least—was fought in a field in Maiden lane, in a solitary part of Holloway, in 1843. The district acquired considerable notoriety from the event. It was the duel fought between Colonel Fawcett and Lieutenant Munro. The former was killed. The duelists were not only brother officers, they were also brothers-in-law, having married two sisters.

The Coroner's jury, on the inquest, returned a verdict of willful murder, not only against Lieutenant Munro, but against the seconds, also. The latter, however, were acquitted. Munro evaded the hands of justice by seeking refuge abroad. Four years later he surrendered to take his trial at the Old Bailey. He was found guilty and sentenced to death. He was, however, strongly recommended to mercy, and the sentence was eventually commuted to twelve months' imprisonment.

The neighborhood in which this duel was fought is no longer solitary; a wide thoroughfare, known as the Brecknock road runs through it, and a rifle ground beside the Brecknock Arms appropriately indicates the place where the final shot was fired.—Chambers' Journal.

"Indeed, sir," replied Donald. "It is a very proud thing."

Then, after a pause, he inquired:

"Beg pardon, sir, but will he be able to keep both places?"—Tid-Bits.

IT WILL SOON BE EXECUTED.

Supervisors Asked for a Franchise for a Route in This City.

The lease of China Basin for terminal purposes for the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway was approved by the board of directors of that corporation yesterday.

Another matter of importance was settled at the same time, when a resolution was unanimously adopted asking the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco to grant a franchise over streets leading from China Basin to the San Mateo County line for the new railway.

The directors held a morning session, and from the large amount of business before them proceeded directly to consider the lease and the franchise.

Attorney E. F. Preston, legal adviser of the board, was present with the lease, which had been drafted by a committee. He submitted the document, and after an hour's discussion its conditions were accepted and approved by the board.

The lease was satisfactory to each and every one of the directors. It provides for the transfer of a depot site from the State to the valley road as follows:

Commencing at the intersection of the south line of Channel street with the east line of Kentucky (Kentucky street being eighty feet wide); thence east at right angles with the said line of Kentucky street to the inner line of the seawall and thoroughfare established by act of Legislature March 15, 1878; thence southerly along said inner line of the thoroughfare to the northerly line of Fourth street (Fourth street being eighty feet in width); thence northwesterly along said northerly line of Fourth street to the easterly line of Kentucky; thence north along said line of Kentucky street to the point of beginning; containing twenty-four and one-quarter (24¼) acres of land, more or less, which said parcel lies adjacent to two or more public streets designated upon the official map of the city and county of San Francisco.

The conditions are that the lease will run through a term of fifty years from May 1, 1895, to May 1, 1945, at a yearly rental of $1000. At the end of fifty years all improvements and structures upon the China Basin site shall revert to the State.

It ise xpressly stated that the valley road directors, or their successors, shall not assign the lease or any interest therein to any other person or corporation; that the premises shall be used solely for the purposes of terminal facilities. Should the site become subject in any way to the control or dominion of any person, company or corporation now having railway terminal facilities on the bay of San Francisco, the lease shall forthwith terminate and all rights thereto immediately cease. A provision calling for immediate construction of the railway from San Francisco is introduced as follows:

And the said party of the second part does hereby further covenant, promise and agree that it will proceed within six months from the date hereof to improve said demised premises, and to construct such improvements as and for the use for which the same are demised as hereinbefore defined.

That the party of the second part will proceed withing six months from the date hereof to construct its railroad, and thereafter with reasonable diligence to equip and operate the same. Also that it shall construct and have in operation not less than 100 miles of road within five years from the date of the execution hereof, and actually use said premises in connection therewith as its railway terminal.

The final proviso deals with possible changes in the future in Channel street, and collection of tolls and dockage at the railway company's wharves in the following language:

It is further agreed that should Channel street be widened at any time, and should any portion of the premises described in this lease be within the line of said street so widened, then such portion shall be thereby expressly exempted, and hereby is so expressly exempted from the operation of this lease, and the improvements thereon erected by the party of the second part shall be removed from such land so required at its sole cost.

It is agreed by and between the parties to this lease that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect the right of the people of the State of California, or the Board of State Harbor Commissioners, or any successor or successors of said Board of State Harbor Commissioners, from collecting dockage and tolls at the rates and charges now or hereafter to be established by said Board of State Harbor Commissioners, its successor or successors, at any seawall, pier, slip or wharf constructed about said demised premises, nor shall anything herein contained ever be construed to give the second party the right to any dockage or toll facilities, either at or upon the harbor embankment line as established by law, or within said line, or upon any part of the within described premises, without such payment of the rates heretofore or hereafter to be established according to law.

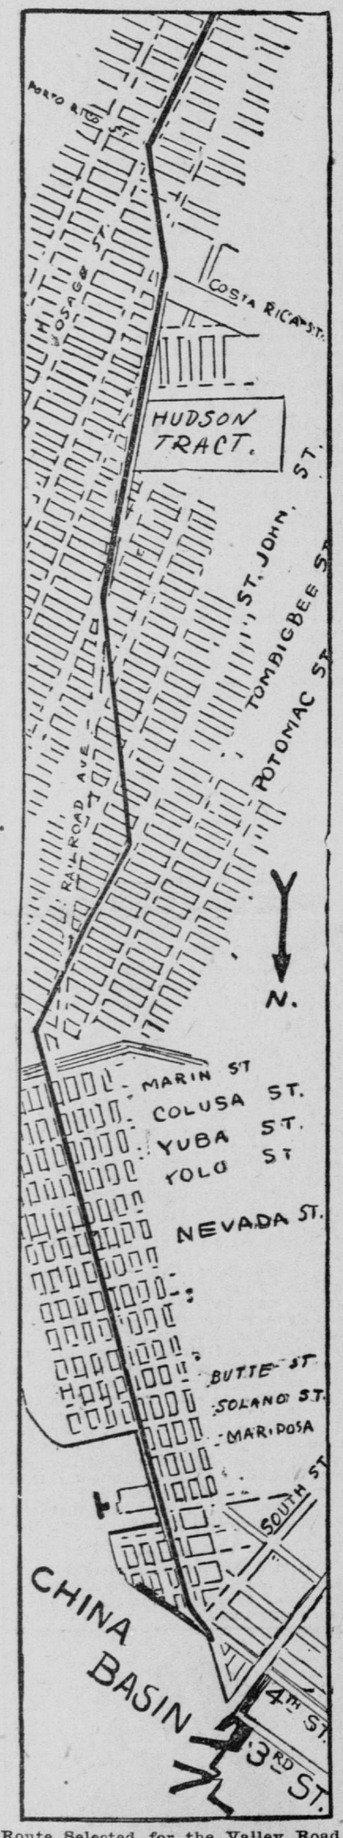

That the valley road directors approved this lease after mature deliberation is proof that they intend pushing ahead with their work, and so give San Francisco a competing line into some of the richest lands of California. They accept a binding agreement that the valley road shall not for fifty years pass into other hands, and this of itself shows how clear is their position with regard to preserving the integrity of the great enterprise. While engineers and workmen will be building the new road down by the San Joaquin River, another force will be occupied on China Basin and the bay shore route through San Mateo and the Santa Clara Valley to meet the line running through the heart of California.

All that remains now to close the lease of China Basin is for the Harbor Commissioners to pass resolutions to execute it and the valley road directors to pass resolutions accepting it. Just as soon as Governor Budd comes to town the Harbor Commissioners will hold a meeting, at which the lease will be signed by him, Mayor Sutro and Commissioners Colnon, Cole and Chadbourne.

The directors decided to ask the Supervisors for rights of way through the city over the following streets:

From Fourth and Illinois streets across Fourth, along Illinois to the southwest side of First avenue south, formerly known as Honduras street; P street south, formerly known as St. John street; from the southwest side of First avenue south to the north line of Twelfth avenue south, thence in a general southerly direction across Twelfth avenue south, Thirteenth avenue south, Parnassus avenue, Latonia street and Thornton avenue to Railroad avenue opposite the center line of Twenty-first avenue south; thence along Railroad avenue to the north line of Thirty-sixth avenue south; thence in a general southerly direction under Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth avenues south, J street to the east line of J street, thence along Evart street to the county line, with the rights to lay and maintain a single or double track of standard gauge thereon, and to operate thereon a railroad propelled by steam, electricity or other power for the transportation of freight and passengers for the term of fifty years from date.

The petition was considered by the Supervisors, and referred to the Street Committee for consideration.

DOUBLE MURDER REVIVED.

Lawton's Suit for Divorce Reopens the Forgotten Tragedy.

The Accused Woman Has Filed a Cross-Charge and Is Making a Stubborn Fight.

The old story of the double killing on May 7, 1892, on Connecticut street, Potrero, resulting from the alleged infidelity of the wife of the man whose brother lost his life, was revived in Judge Sanderson's court when the case of Michael Lawton vs. Mrs. Mary Lawton was called yesterday.

Lawton, who was employed by the Union Iron Works, was keeping house on Connecticut street, and had as a boarder Edward Daley, also employed by the same firm. Lawton confided to several of his friends that his wife was intimate with his boarder, and on the morning of May 7, 1892, took his brother John, Fred Klinck and John and Frank Carroll to his home to witness acts which would prove his statement. The party was warned by Lawton when to appear on the scene by the pushing of a lath through a hole in the side of the house.

As soon as the signal was given the men, led by John Lawton and Frank Carroll, broke open the door of the room occupied by Edward Daley. Three shots were heard and John Lawton dropped dead, Frank Carroll fell back mortally wounded, and the third bullet was imbedded in the wall.

Carroll died a few days later. Daley was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to three years at San Quentin. All of these facts came out yesterday in the application of Michael Lawton that he be given an absolute divorce from his wife Mary.

As soon as the application was filed Mrs. Lawton applied for temporary alimony, on the ground that counter-charges would warrant the final decree of the court awarding her permanent support. She was allowed $40 per month by Judge Sanderson, but Lawton failed to pay and was imprisoned for contempt of court.

Mrs. Lawton has entered counter-charges of extreme cruelty and is fighting the case. Testimony for the plaintiff was partially heard and the defendant will present her side of the story to-day.

Cigar-Makers' Convention.

Reports were received last evening at the agitation board meeting of Cigar-makers' Union No. 228 showing that delegates had been elected to the Cigar-makers' State convention from unions No. 228 and No. 248 of San Francisco, No. 291 of San Jose, No. 253 of Oakland, No. 332 of San Diego, No. 225 of Los Angeles and No. 238 of Sacramento. The reports showed that the unions were all alive to the necessity of inducing the public to patronize home industry. The convention will meet at lower Metropolitan Hall on Saturday, May 4, at 1 P.M. Arrangements were also completed for the mass-meeting at Metropolitan Temple on Monday evening, May 6. The presidents of all the labor organizations have been invited to act as vice-presidents of the meeting, and the following speakers will address the assemblage: Judge J. K. Rodgers, M. McGlynn, John Gelder, James H. Barry, W. McArthur, T. F. Burns and Chairman of Committee M. L. Gable.

FOR many years the Government has given its orders for Royal Baking Powder in preference to all others, it being found by the official examination, superior to the others in strength and purity and the only baking powder that will keep and retain its strength in the climates of the various countries to which it is sent by the departments.

AN EASTERN CRITICISM.

What F. S. Bicknell Thinks of the Local Spring Exhibition.

A FAMOUS OIL PAINTING.

One of Boston's Pet Artists Declares California Art Work Strong.

It is seldom that an Eastern artist of practically international reputation has a chance to see what local California artists can do, but this was possible when Frank A. Bicknell of Boston, an exhibitor at the Paris Salon, the Philadelphia Art Club, the Boston Art Club and the National Academy of Design of New York came through here on his way to Japan.

Mr. Bicknell leaves for Japan to-day on the Coptic, but for the last three or four days he has been in the city and has, as is natural for a man in his profession, circulated more or less among the artists and was present at the opening exhibition, as a guest of F. M. Vermorcken.

It was only a transitory view of the exhibition that Mr. Bicknell obtained, but even from that standpoint his criticisms should be valuable to local artists. In discussing the exhibition Mr. Bicknell said: "There is in the exhibition the nucleus of a strong collection if the wealthy men of the West would but interest themselves in California art work. Unfortunately for the exhibition of the Art Association, the walls upon which the pictures were hung were injurious in color and effect. Judging from the pictures hung I presume that California has strong native talent, and especially do I prefer Keith's landscapes. They are local in tone and color and strong in technical handling.

"In an exhibition so broad in its method of acceptances there must necessarily creep in many bad things. There were many bad things in this exhibition, but barring the reasons that may have influenced the hanging committee—and there are reasons why the hanging committee, being the jury, should have been broad in the matter of acceptances—there were in the exhibition evidences of strong work.

"It seems to me that for the encouragement of local art work here some of the Eastern methods should prevail. It would not be difficult, nor would it be expensive, to obtain for the Art Association a very valuable collection of casts, which would enhance the value of an exhibition subsequently made by the Art Association. I do not think that it is wise to sacrifice quality to quantity, and it seems to me that this is done by the Art Association in its spring exhibition."

The value of this criticism to California art is due to the standing of the critic, and Mr. Bicknell is "strong" enough to be a competent judge. He is a native of Maine, and under A. H. Bicknell—a man to whom he was in no way related—made his first studies in Boston. In 1889 he went to Paris to study under Bouguereau, Fleury and Ferrier.

For four years Mr. Bicknell did hard work in the Latin quarter and during that time proved his ability. In 1892 he exhibited in the salon "The Old Apple Orchard," which was at the time praised very highly by Figaro and the art critics of the French city. In 1893 he exhibited an etching, the "Old House at Chartis," which was one of the admittedly cleverest things done by an American artist in Paris.

After his Paris student work Mr. Bicknell went through France, Holland and Germany, stopping a while at Venice and then going back to the south of England. Thence he returned to America. When he came back it was not difficult for him to find recognition, as is made evident by the fact that Boston, New York and Philadelphia promptly recognized his ability.

There are on the line at the National Academy of Design to-day three pictures by Bicknell and there were three on the line at the Boston Art Club exhibition, which has just closed. In the water-color exhibition by the Boston Art Club, now open, he has also a picture on the line. His "The Meadows Near Chartis" is lined in the Philadelphia Art Club to-day.

"Along the River Oise" is probably one of Mr. Bicknell's strongest pictures. It was lined at the Columbian Exhibition in Chicago, and subsequently at the National Academy of Design in New York.

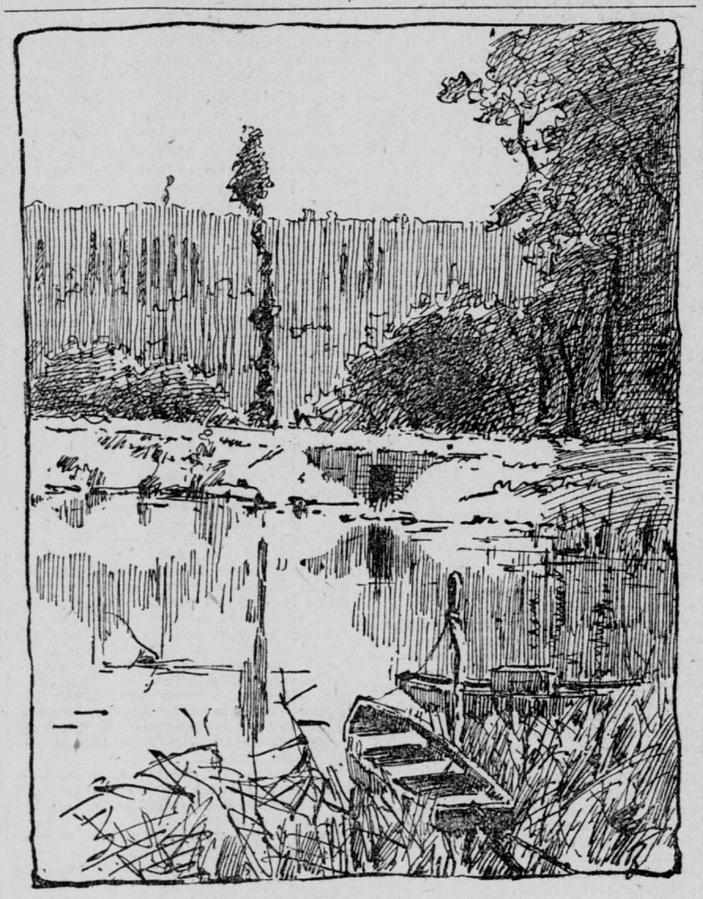

In person Mr. Bicknell is rather tall and slender, with dark hair and very light mustache. Somehow he does not strike one as a man of artistic temperment until he begins to talk about the art work of other men—he seldom talks about his own work—then he brightens, and underneath the conventional gentleman you find the artist.

From San Francisco Mr. Bicknell goes to Japan, and his method to be pursued there is unlike any American artist who has heretofore done Japanese work. Of course he is going at this time of year for the purpose of reaching the blossom season, but his general idea is to be, if possible, more realistic than heretofore has been the scheme of American artists.

It is possible that he may return to San Francisco, in which case there is no doubt that many of the local artists will take advantage of the invitation, which will be broadly extended, to have a look at his studies. Then it will be the province of the California artists to criticize Mr. Bicknell's work, as Mr. Bicknell has, with the authority of training and ability, criticized the work of the local artists at the spring exhibition.

J. C. S. Parcher, who accompanies Mr. Bicknell, is a man strongly interested in art work, and has a studio with Mr. Bicknell in the towers of Madison-square Garden. The two studios are described by one of the best artists in New York as being "complete as to light and perfect in equipment."

When the Coptic leaves this afternoon there will be a very representative crowd of artists and Bohemians to bid good-by and a prosperous voyage to Mr. Bicknell and Mr. Parcher.

VETERAN POLICE SKETCHES.

Captain Henry S. Healey, clerk to the Chief of Police and Board of Police Commissioners, was born in the county of Beauharnais, Quebec, Canada, on December 18, 1835. He served through the Civil War in the Ninth Indiana Infantry. From October, 1863, till May, 1865, he was superintendent of the depot commissary at Chattanooga, Tenn., and from the latter date till May, 1867, he was in the quartermaster's department at Atlanta, Ga. He came to this city to the same department in 1872, and remained till 1876. He was appointed to the police force on May 22, 1878. In March, 1879, he was engaged with Captain Lees in investigating the Tibbey frauds in connection with the opening of Montgomery avenue and the widening of Dupont street. He was assigned to duty in the District Attorney's office in December, 1879, and he remained till December 31, 1887, when he was made a sergeant and assigned to duty in the Chief's office. He was appointed to his present position on July 9, 1894, vice Hall, dismissed. He has the rank and pay of a captain.

Sergeant Mier Lindheimer was born in Klingenberg, Bavaria, on May 27, 1829. He came to this city in the "fifties" and started a shoestore. He continued in this business till August 16, 1862, when he was appointed on the police force. On December 27, 1878, he was made a sergeant. After doing patrol duty for about a year he was assigned to the position of desk sergeant in the prison. When Captain Stone was doing detective work Lindheimer had charge of the prison. During the incumbency of Chief of Police Cockrill he was presented by the Chief with a gold star suitably inscribed. He is still on prison duty.

As a matter of useful information it may be stated that whenever a cooking receipt calls for a baking powder the "Royal" should be used. The receipt will be found to work better and surer, and the bread, biscuit, rolls, cakes, dumplings, crusts, puddings, crullers or whatever made, will be sweeter, lighter, finer-flavored, more dainty, palatable and wholesome.

PLAYS AT THE THEATERS.

Several of Last Week's Attractions That Are Still Drawing Well.

A COMEDY AT MOROSCO'S.

The Elks Welcomed Back a Popular Singer — Svengali's Wig.

Emmet and his company began their second week's performance of "Fritz in a Madhouse" at Stockwell's Theater last night. The play is bright and amusing and it receives on the whole such a satisfactory rendering that as might have been expected, there was a large house present.

Several new songs were introduced, and, although there was no change in "Fritz in a Madhouse," Emmet and clever little Baby Sinnot received the usual liberal amount of applause and the clever character actor Harry Liston won the approval of the audience as before. This actor plays the part of a half-educated Englishman, and it is only in accordance with his careful and finished acting that his accent should be wonderfully correct.

The dialects of the stage, as a rule, are fearful and wonderful things, resembling anything rather than the tongue they are supposed to copy. The usual Cockneyisms of the American stage, for instance, have about as much resemblance to the tongue that prevails among the real 'Arrys and 'Arriets of East London as the futile attempts of English actors, who want to play a down-eastern part, have to the language "as she is spoke" in the New England States.

"Fritz in a Madhouse" runs all this week at Stockwell's, after which the theater will be closed till its formal opening as the Columbia.

"A Country Sport."

Peter Dailey and his clever company are still proving a drawing attraction at the California Theater. Several new songs were introduced last night, and it was intended to produce a short burlesque on "Trilby" into the last act. The wig-maker proved faithless, however, and Dailey, declaring that Svengali's strength, like Samson's, lay in his flowing mane, preferred to defer the burlesque to appearing minus his flowing locks. It is expected that the wig will be there to-night and that no other untoward accident will happen to prevent the first San Francisco appearance of "Trilby."

Next Monday "The American Girl" will be presented at the California Theater. This play will be well mounted, and will be presented by a carefully selected company.

Ysaye, the celebrated violinist, will reopen the Baldwin on Monday evening, May 13. This gifted artist has unquestionably been the sensation of the musical season in the East, as far as the concert platform is concerned, and his advent will be eagerly looked for by music-lovers.

Morosco's Opera-House.

"A Barrel of Money" is rather a departure from Morosco's usual style of performance, as it partakes of the farce-comedy nature. However, it gave some members of the stock company an opportunity of showing their versatility.

Miss Hall, who is accustomed to play the oppressed and depressed heroine, made a very bright little tom-boy, without being at all loud or coarse; in fact her Roxy carried the whole performance and kept the fun going the whole time. The late villain's place was very fairly taken by Fred J. Butler as Harrison Swift, while W. L. Gleason looked the part of a perfect wreck to perfection.

The most telling scene was where the manager of the mill, about to blow the building up with dynamite, was stopped by Roxy, who seizes the bomb and throws it into a barrel of water. The villain in turn seizes her, and, fastening her to the hand of the mill, sets the machinery going. Just when the audience expect to see her mangled before their eyes her lover rushes to the rescue and the curtain falls on a grand tableau.

Miss Hall's dresses were particularly pretty and the staging of "A Barrel of Money" was good. George Augustus and his "ma" caused some merriment, though the "ma" was overdone.

Miss Morrisey's Reception.

Miss Tillie Morrisey's admirers turned out in great numbers to welcome her back to the Orpheum last night. It is about four years since this popular singer appeared in San Francisco, and the Elks and other friends seized the opportunity to give her an ovation.

The Golden Gate Lodge of Elks No. 6 were there in a body, most of them escorting ladies. The following gentlemen composed the reception committee: John E. Chretien, chairman; C. W. Nevin, J. P. Dunne, H. V. Schlam, J. H. Banfield, J. O. Reis, ex-officio exalted ruler.

When Miss Morissey appeared she was greeted with applause loud and prolonged from the crowded house. She sang "It Was Thus to Be" very prettily and in response to a thundering encore rendered a yodling lullaby, after which numerous floral tributes were heaped upon the stage, among them being a lyre seven feet high, from the Elks. This was adorned with streamers bearing the four mottoes of the order, which were fastened with handsomely engraved glass medallions. When this had been presented the fair singer sang "Auld Lang Syne," to the great satisfaction of her hearers.

Redding and Stanton appeared in a new playlet, "A Pair of Lunatics," which was smartly acted, though its ending was so abrupt as to suggest the pruning-knife. McBride and Flynn appeared in some comical Irish specialties and aroused considerable laughter. Several old artists, as well as Stanton and Redding, who came on again and won favor, were the Binns, Stewart, the Electric Quartet, etc.

"Little Robinson Crusoe."

At the Tivoli the clever extravaganza "Little Robinson Crusoe" still finds popular favor. The dialogue has now been abbreviated, the business runs with perfect smoothness and everything is now going with vim and spirit.

One of the features of "Little Robinson Crusoe" is the pretty scenery. It would be difficult to imagine a more effective and original-looking stage setting than the scene in the native village.

The beach scene is also extremely picturesque. All the strength of the Tivoli company is in requisition and the extravaganza promises to meet with continued popularity.

The Water Carnival.

Several new features were introduced into the Water Carnival last night, among them the Bannoch brothers, musical clowns. Next week important changes will be made in the arena under the direction of two local artists.

THE FIRST'S ELECTION.

A Plan to Retire Lieutenant-Colonel Bush Should He Fail of Being Elected Colonel.

As the election in the First Infantry Regiment approaches discussion of the two candidates for the office of colonel is increasing among the officers of the line and field. As has been announced Colonel W. P. Sullivan will run again for his old position at the head of the regiment, but contrary to the usual order of things he will have an opponent in his second officer, Lieutenant-Colonel H. P. Bush.

According to the talk among the regimental officers Colonel Sullivan is sure of again being elected to his present position, for he can count on at least four of the seven companies of the regiment besides on one of the majors. Lieutenant-Colonel Bush is an ex-captain of Company H and Sullivan's supporters concede this company to him in order to give him in perspective all possible votes. He is also conceded the votes from Companies G and C, the Nationals, as it is understood that on account of his efforts to get the seven companies into the same armory, which efforts if successful would deprive the Nationals of the use of their armory on Ellis street, Colonel Sullivan is not in much favor with the officers of those companies. These two companies are therefore also conceded to Colonel Bush. Major Burdick, the junior battalion commander, will also vote for Colonel Bush, but this, so the officers say, makes up his whole strength in the regiment. It includes ten votes. From the other four companies and Major Jansen Colonel Sullivan feels sure of thirteen votes, and consequently of his position.

Colonel Bush's term as lieutenant-colonel will expire early next month, and should he prove unsuccessful in his candidacy for the commanding officer's position it may go hard with him in his own, for there will certainly be an opponent against him for his present place should he desire it again. The individual who will run against him is not definitely known, but it will probably be one of the senior staff officers of the regiment. Colonel Bush is now East, but before his departure he formally notified Colonel Sullivan of his intentions regarding the position of commaning officer of the regiment.

Argon and Bacteria.

A French scientist is making investigations regarding the part the newly discovered gas "argon" plays toward bacteria. The new gas which has so long been a part of our atmosphere without our knowing it, has been combined with oxygen, hydrogen, chlorine, phosphorus, sulphur, potassium, sodium and many other elements without any result. So far as the scientist can ascertain, "argon" has no effect chemically upon the higher animals. It may, however, be necessary to the nourishment of bacteria, and this is what he proposes to find out.

Supposing "argon" not to be necessary to man and necessary to bacilli, sterilization will be rendered much easier and the door be opened to all sorts of bacteriological possibilities.—New York World.

THE RAW SUPERVISORS

Rough Politics at the City Hall by the Solid Eight.

GOOD OFFICERS DEPOSED.

Their Places Filled by Men Who Are Incompetent or Worse.

THE MAYOR'S VETO DEFEATED.

The San Joaquin Road Petitions for Right of Way Into the City.

The ax of the solid eight of the Board of Supervisors was swung yesterday, and seven official heads fell in the basket. The movement was swift and effective, and the meeting of the municipal fathers adjourned amidst confusion. There was a good deal of excitement, some serious accusations of the corrupt use of power thrown out and an exchange of caustic insinuations between the rival factions after the members had vacated the chamber.

The question of removals came up on a motion of Supervisor King, seconded by Supervisor Wagner, and provided for the dismissal, after May 1, of certain municipal employes and the appointment of their successors.

It was known that a nefarious combination had been made and that some removals were in contemplation, but it was scarcely believed that the hardy politicians of the solid eight would go to the extent of displacing first-class officials for the purpose of giving positions to men who were incompetent, or worse.

The first change provided for in the resolution was that John S. Enos, the capable and vigilant Prosecuting Attorney of Police Court No. 1 should be deposed, and that Charles A. Forbes should be appointed his successor. Mr. Enos was at one time Labor Commissioner, and made so excellent a reputation that all who have held office since that time have been compared to him, those interested wishing that his equal might again appear in that office. In every public trust held by Mr. Enos he has discharged his duties faithfully, yet in defiance of the civil service spirit of the age, and the ethics of decent politics, Mr. Enos was turned down to make way for a favorite of the solid eight.

E. H. Wakeman, who has served the city and county well as prosecuting attorney in Police Court 3, had to give way to one Edmund P. Mogan, who boards at Supervisor King's hotel.

No cause for complaint was found against J. H. Roberts, prosecuting attorney of Police Court 4, yet without a pretext or cause Mr. Roberts was dismissed. William H. Madden was appointed to the position.

These were the three most important changes made by the solid eight in their blind effort to bring disgrace upon the public service of the city. Other changes were made as follows: M. M. Dugan, head janitor new City Hall, successor George L. Murdoch; A. J. Sadler, janitor Auditor's and Treasurer's offices, successor Joseph Fitzpatrick; J. A. Sullivan, night watchman new City Hall, successor Herman Kihn; J. M. Dolan, driver police patrol-wagon, successor P. Stevens.

"I should like to know the reason for these removals," said Supervisor Hobbs, pale with indignation, "as no charge for incompetency or otherwise has been brought against these employes. As chairman of the Building Committee I think I should be consulted as to the removal of my clerk. It is evidently a combination of the three Democrats with five Republicans against a helpless minority."

"I call the gentleman's attention to the fact," said Supervisor Dimond, "that I am a Democrat and propose to vote against the resolution."

"The gentleman from the First," cried Hobbs, shaking his finger at King, "is a Democrat, though he was elected on the Republican ticket."

The solid eight evidently did not intend to treat their colleagues in a decent or proper manner, and so rushed their scheme to a conclusion.

The cry of "question" was raised by Wagner, with others in the chorus, and the vote was taken with the following result:

Ayes—King, Benjamin, Hirsch, Hughes, Dunker, Morgenstern, Wagner.
Noes—Dimond, Taylor, Spreckels, Hobbs.

Supervisor Scully excused himself from voting, though he has always stood with the solid eight.

As the roll was being called and as the personnel of the detestable "solid eight" was disclosed, some one started a ripple of derisive handclapping, and it spread throughout the meeting chamber, the people in the lobby scoffing audibly at such action by such pothouse politicians and ward statesmen.

The San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway Company, by Claus Spreckels, president, and Alexander Mackie, secretary, sent the following communication asking for a right of way through the city as outlined:

Beginning on the northeast side of Fourth street, opposite the junction of Fourth and Illinois, thence across Fourth, along Illinois to the southwest side of First avenue south, formerly known as Honduras street, P street south, formerly known as St. John, from the southwest side of First avenue to the north line of Twelfth avenue south; thence in a general southerly direction across Twelfth avenue south, Thirteenth avenue south, Parnassus avenue, Latonia street and Thornton avenue to Railroad avenue opposite the center line of Twenty-first avenue south; thence along Railroad avenue to the north line of Twenty-sixth avenue south; thence in a general southerly direction under Thirty-sixth avenue south, Thirty-seventh avenue south, Thirty-eighth avenue south, Thirty-ninth avenue south, J street to the east line of J street; thence along Evatt street to the county line, with the rights to lay, keep and maintain a single or double tracks of standard width thereon, and to operate thereon a railroad propelled by steam, electricity or other motive power for the transportation of freight and passengers for the term of fifty years from date.

This communication was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The reasons of the Mayor for vetoing the Church-street franchise were given in the following communication:

Gentlemen—On February 14, 1895, the Market-street Railway Company filed its application for a street-railway franchise along Church street, commencing at Sixteenth street, at its intersection with Church street, thence running along Church street to Ridley street, and along Ridley street to Fillmore street.

The petition was accompanied by a draft of the proposed franchise.

On March 23, 1895, your honorable board considered such petition, and, in accordance with the Legislative act of March 23, 1893, resolved to offer the privilege sought for therein for sale at public auction.

Thereupon a notice was published in the San Francisco Daily Report, setting Monday, 3:30 P. M., April 15, 1895, for the reception of bids in open session of your honorable board.

At the date and place last named the petition was finally considered by the board, and order 2858 was passed, therein accepting the bid of the applicant and granting the franchise to it for $605.

This last order (2858) is now before me for my approval as Mayor, according to the consolidation act.

In this respect section 68 of tnat act, being our fundamental law, declares in substance as follows: Every ordinance or resolution of the Board ot Supervisors providing for "the granting of any privilege" shall, after its introduction be published for five (5) days and after its passage "shall, before it takes effect, be presented to the president of the board for his approval. If he approves, he shall sign it; if not, he shall, within ten (10) days, return it to the board with his objections in writing."

On April 17th inst. a request was made by me to Hon. John A. Russell, clerk of this board, for a copy of said order 2858.

Thereafter complying with my request he has forwarded me a copy of the same.

This order thus sent me on its face purports to grant a privilege over certain public streets in this city to a corporation.

It therefore becomes a subject for the cognizance of the Mayor and his approval is essential to its validity.

The Legislative act of March 23, 1893, is merely a mandate of the law commanding that franchises shall be sold instead of being subject to the mere caprice of the granting authority.

There is nothing in its language or in its spirit to take away from the Mayor his power or responsibility over the disposition of municipal franchises.

Hence, as all these proceedings have occurred while I presided over the board and are within my knowledge, and as the law imposes on me the duty of action in relation to this order, the same has been duly considered and my assent thereto is withheld.

The municipality on October 3, 1893, passed order 9240, declaring the conditions "on which railroad franchises may be granted in this city."

These conditions are set out in ten sections, which are supposed to contain all things necessary to be observed and complied with on the one hand by the grantors of the franchise, and on the other by the parties in whose favor the grant is made.

Section 1 of order 9240 specifies the franchise to exist for a definite number of years, but the franchise under consideration states that the term shall run coequal with the terms of some franchise owned by the Market-street Railroad Company.

Section 2 provides that the road may be operated by various means, but that, prior to electricity being used, the consent of the Board of Supervisors shall first be obtained. Order 2858 (the present franchise) quotes sections of the general law about constructing and repairing tracks, and which are more clearly set forth in sections 3 and 6, but leaves out as of no importance the portion of section 2 above quoted.

Section 3 of order 9240 defines the methods of operating roads according to various means of propulsion; it specifies that for cable roads the width of the slot shall be three-fourths of an inch, and refers again to that portion of section 2 giving the Board of Supervisors authority, after the granting of the franchise, to erect poles along the route.

This part is ignored and omitted in section 3 of this franchise and the width of the slot is increased to seven-eighths of an inch.

Section 8 of order 9240 specifies that the rights conveyed are (first) subject to the general laws now in force, or such other laws and regulations as may hereafter be made; (second) that yearly statements shall be made and 2 per cent of the gross receipts shall be paid to the credit of the Street Department fund; (third) that $40,000 must be expended within one year on construction, etc., after the passage of the order; (fourth) and the construction of the road be completed within three years from and after the passage of the order, the cars to be run at specified intervals, also specifying the liability of the company for subsequent street improvements. This franchise or order 2858 ignores items 1, 2, 3 and 4, and quotes a portion of the general laws regarding paving, etc., between the tracks, unless otherwise ordered by the Board of Supervisors.

Section 5 of order 9240 authorizes the authorities to pave or sewer, but so as not to obstruct the free passage of the cars. Omitted in this franchise.

Section 6 of order 9240 says it shall not be lawful to run cars at more than eight miles per hour. Section 6 of this franchise says nothing about rate of speed, but requires the company to file a promise to permit mail-carriers to ride free.

Section 7 specifies the rate of tax per car. Not mentioned in this franchise.

Section 8 says work to be commenced within one year from passage of order, and to be completed within eighteen months thereafter. This franchise is silent on this point.

Section 9 requires that bonds be filed to guarantee the carrying out of the terms of the franchise. This franchise exacts no bonds.

Section 10 requires materials necessary in the construction of the road to be of California manufacture, but this franchise is silent on that point.

It is shown above, this franchise, as granted, does either not embrace the conditions required by law, or does contain them in an altered form.

Before the passage of this franchise the agents of the Market-street company had forcibly seized the blocks embraced within the grant and, through its agents, in the midnight hour, tore up the pavement and commenced laying its track until stopped by the authorities.

The burglar who enters your house at night and abstracts your property cannot escape punishment by coming into court and offering to pay for the stolen property, nor should a corporation which has committed grand larceny be permitted to come before the Board of Supervisors and offer to pay for a privilege which it had unlawfully appropriated beforehand.

The street should first have been restored to its original condition, and then, if a franchise was asked, it should, under these circumstances, have been refused, or if granted at all should have contained all the legal restrictions set forth in order 9240; but under no circumstances should a franchise have passed verbatim as submitted by J. L. Willcutt, secretary of the Market-street Railway Company, and enclosed in his letter to the board dated February 14, 1895, and drawn up by the shrewd lawyers of the law department of the Southern Pacific of Kentucky, leaving out nearly all the restrictions imposed by law and by the regulations of your honorable board.

For the above reasons, I, as president of this board, object to order 2858 and hereby veto the same.

Respectfully submitted.

ADOLPH SUTRO, Mayor.

Taylor moved that the veto take the regular course, and Wagner moved an amendment to have it placed on file. Taylor explained that it was unusual to place vetoes on file. Wagner insisted on his amendment, which was carried by a vote of eight to four.

Relative to the action of the last Legislature in repealing the revenue law of 1873-74 providing for the collection of taxes for city and county purposes between the second Monday of July and the first Monday of August, extending the time of collecting taxes to the first Monday in October, thus precluding the possibility of paying municipal indebtedness for the first four months of the fiscal year, as heretofore, City and County Attorney Creswell wrote to the effect that the new act, dated March 28, 1895, unmistakably repealed the old one, and the law must be enforced and obeyed. He held that if any derangement of the municipal finances should result from this action of the Legislature the responsibility must rest with the lawmakers. The Assessor had commenced making assessments of personal property under the act of 1873-74 prior to its repeal. According to the old law the expenses of the government of the city for the first few months of the fiscal year were paid as they accrued from the taxes collected from July to August. The communication was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

City and County Attorney Creswell gave an elaborate opinion on the much-discussed water question in answer to questions propounded by the Water Committee. After the reading of the opinion, which is appended in condensed form, it was referred to the committee now struggling with the water rate:

Question—Has the Boord of Supervisors the power to provide for and create a water fund for the sole and only purpose of paying demands for water supplied for municipal purposes?

Answer—The power to gather revenues and divide them into separate funds was granted by the consolidation act and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto. These acts name the funds that shall be created and how the money in each shall be used. A water fund or a hydrant fund is not one of the funds created by these acts. The Board of Supervisors can only do what these acts give it the right to do. The right to create such a fund not having been given no power exists for the creation of such a fund.

Question—What is the effect of section 6 of the act of March 7, 1881, wherein it provides for the establishment of equal and uniform water rates, and in that connection whether or not the provision of section 10 of Resolution No. 10,049 (third series Municipal Reports 1893-94, appendix, page 111) wherein a sliding scale of water rates is fixed, based on the amount of water used, is equal and uniform, also whether under section 1, article XIV, of the constitution of this State the board has the power to fix water rates without regard to the provisions of section 6 of said act as aforesaid.

Answer—The effect of section 6 of the act of March 7, 1881, is to prevent consumers of water being charged different rates. Section 10 of Resolution No. 10,049 provides an equal and uniform water rate. Rates are equal and uniform when every one using the same quantity of water under like conditions is charged the same. The constitutions of most of the States require that taxation shall be equal and uniform. It has always been held that this provision "does not inhibit the Legislature from, nor deprive it of, dividing the objects of taxation into classes, but only commands it to impose the same burden upon all in the same class. (Case of City and County of Sacramento vs. Charles Crocker, 16 Cal., 123.)

The objection cannot now be urged that meter rates and house rates, when different, are not fixed as the constitution requires is because the Supreme Court in the case of the Spring Valley Water Works vs. the City and County of San Francisco, decided in 1890, held that the rates might be different in such cases.

Section 6 of the act of 1881 is constitutional. The Supreme Court decided that "water rates must be fixed by the Board of Supervisors pursuant to the premises of the act of 1881."

The Finance Committee presented an elaborate report on the condition of the finances of the city, and requesting the City and County Attorney to petition the Supreme Court for relief. This action was based on the declaration of the contractors furnishing the city with supplies and material, to the effect that they will cease furnishing the same after April 30 unless provision is made for their payment. The opinion of the City and County Attorney relative to the decisions of the Supreme Court, to the effect that all liabilities incurred and required to support the government must be met by the revenue provided for that year, and that all expenditures in excess thereof are illegal and cannot be paid out of the funds of any succeeding year, was recited at great length. Continuing, the report said:

There will be a deficiency of about $350,000, of which $140,000 is for salaries carried forward from the preceding fiscal year, the salaries for June of that year being paid out of the revenues for the year. The deficiency proper for this year will aggregate in addition about $210,000. This, with the deficiency of $210,000 of former years will make a grand total of about $500,000, all of which, with the exception of salaries of $140,000 noted, and expense of the board of election commissioners for the last two preceding elections of $207,000, are for material and supplies required for the conduct and maintenance of the public institutions.

Our merchants, annoyed and subjected to great loss and inconvenience, have determined that the municipality shall not be maintained by their goods, wares and merchandise unless their demands for the same are recognized as valid claims against the city and county and are therefore compelled, as they are expected to know the law and condition of the treasury, to refuse to furnish any supplies after the 30th day of this month.

The report concluded by urging the necessity of immediate action, and a resolution was adopted to the effect that it is the duty of the board to take all means in its power to prevent such an unfortunate condition, imperiling the maintenance of our government; also that the City and County Attorney be requested to take such proceedings as may be required to bring about a speedy decision as to whether demands for material can be allowed and payment provided for in the levy of the succeeding year; also to represent to the Supreme Court the necessity of obtaining a decision in the matter on or before April 30, as after that date no supplies will be furnished.

The following petitions were referred to the Committee on Streets:

Property-owners on Broderick street protested against the grading of that thoroughfare, between Union and Filbert and Filbert and Greenwich streets, and property-owners on View avenue, between Twenty-first and Elizabeth streets, protested against the remacadamizing of the avenue. Property-owners on Cherry street, between Washington and Jackson, petitioned for sewer connections, and L. Andre called attention to the dangerous condition of Stockton street, between Post and Sutter. A petition from property-owners on O'Farrell street, between Scott and Devisadero, protested against the manner in which the Market-street Railway Company laid its rails on this street. Baldwin & Hammond tendered a deed from the Crocker Estate Company to the city and county for certain property on Beulah street, to be dedicated for the purposes of public thoroughfares; other petitions referred to the regrading of Leavenworth street; release of contract for paving Broderick street, between Post and Geary; removal of a house that obstructs Lynch street, between Leavenworth and Hyde.

A resolution was adopted whereby the Mayor as ex-officio president of the board was relieved of the labor of certifying by his signature as each bill passed by the board the fact of the passage so that the Auditor and Treasurer may be advised of its passage be repealed.

Supervisor Hirsch introduced a new ordinance to regulate the speed of streetcars during certain hours on certain streets.

It provided that no street railroad car shall be propelled on California street between Kearny and Market; Clay street, between East and Kearny; Howard street, between Seventh and East; Jackson street, between East and Montgomery; Kearny street, between Market and North and East streets; Mission street, between Seventh and East; Montgomery avenue, between Union and Montgomery streets; Polk street, between Post and California; Post street, between Dupont and Market; Sacramento street, between Kearny and Market; Sutter street, between Dupont and Market; Third, between Market and Folsom; Washington street, between Montgomery and East; at a higher rate of speed than six miles an hour, between 4 o'clock and 7 o'clock P. M.; also that all franchises hereafter granted must come under this law. The penalty for violation of the order is a fine of not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

The resolution was referred to the Health and Police Committee.

A resolution was introduced by Supervisor Dimond in regard to the order, which requires all street railroad companies to adopt and place a buffer or appliance to dummies of street railroad cars to prevent loss of life, as provided in order 2072 of the board. Under this order it is provided that no streetcars should be operated unless each car with dummy attached be provided with a suitable buffer to remove obstacles from the track. The guards now in use were approved by the Health and Police Committee.

Mr. Dimond's resolution called for a reconsideration of the order, as the buffers so adopted have not been effective; also that the attention of the railroad company be called to the provision of the order, and that they be required within thirty days to file with the board a photograph or plan and description of the buffer proposed to be used, which will be required to push and pull any person or obstruction on the track on one side thereof, and on approval by the board of the buffer to put the same into use within sixty days.

A resolution was introduced by Supervisor Spreckels that Adolph Sutro be granted permission to use wooden poles and wires on California street from Central avenue and Williamson street for the Sutro electric railroad to the ocean beach. In the original franchise it was stipulated that iron poles should be used, but upon purchasing the ones that had been erected by the Market-street Railway Company Mr. Sutro wanted permission to use them. The resolution was adopted.

Bids were opened for the printing of the delinquent tax lists. There were three bidders—the Bulletin, Post and Report. The bid of the Bulletin was 13 2-5 cents, the Post 10 cents and the Report 13 cents. The matter was referred to the Printing Committee.

When the bituminous-rock ordinance, in which it was represented there was a "job" in behalf of the Southern Pacific Company, and the passage of the same over the Mayor's veto, came up, Supervisor Hobbs moved that it be passed.

Supervisor Hughes thought the order was not properly drawn and he was of the opinion that the Mayor had made some sensible suggestions which would bear looking into.

There was a slight misunderstanding as to Mr. Hobbs' motion at first, and an explanation had to be made as to how the vote should be cast.

After matters had been explained a vote was taken, with the result that the veto was sustained. The "solid eight" recognized the fact that they lacked a vote, and so fell in line gracefully.

The Market-street Railway Company invited the Board of Supervisors to examine the new wire guard for street railroad cars which would be on exhibition to-day.

Colonel G. H. Mendell presented a demand for the payment of his services as a member of the board to devise and provide a system of sewerage for the city.

SHE IS NOT MRS. FORSYTH.

The Young Woman Found at San Jose Was Mrs. M. H. Moore.

SHE IS NOW IN THIS CITY.

G. W. Forsyth Sticks to the Belief That His Wife Was Drowned.

Mrs. G. W. Forsyth, the young woman who mysteriously disappeared recently, has not been found either in San Jose or Watsonville, as variously reported. She is still missing, and her husband still sticks to his belief that she is held down by rocks or some other obstruction beneath the ocean waves.

The woman who was taken for Mrs. Forsyth in Watsonville and in the Garden City proved to be quite a different person—a Mrs. M. H. Moore, who lives at 118½ Ellis street, in this city. Mrs. Moore went down to Santa Cruz County on some private business and suddenly became the victim of most extraordinary circumstances. Telegrams flashed all around her, all the country folk heard of her—as Mrs. Forsyth, of course—and everywhere she went she was an object of curiosity. Sheriffs and constables were at her heels with all kinds of scrutinizing glances, and after such an experience she was glad to be home again last evening.

"I was angry at first, but it made me mad," said she, "the way I was annoyed. When I went into one town and left my horse at the barn the hotel proprietor came to me with a serious face.

"'They want you,' he said, shaking his head.

"Then he told me that I was Mrs. Forsyth and had run away from my husband. I said my name was not Forsyth, but Moore, and told him there must be a mistake. But the whole town was out to see me—men, women and children. There was a telegram before me in Watsonville. It read, 'Arrest her regardless of expense.' I registered my right name at the hotels, but the sheriff, or constable, or whoever he was, would insist that I was Mrs. Forsyth. The story was started that I was looking for my runaway husband and he asked me about it. I told them my husband died in St. Louis two years ago and I was a widow, but he was not satisfied. One time I was Mrs. Forsyth, running away from her husband, and the next thing I was searching for my contract husband. I came back to the city and the first thing I did was to call on Mr. Forsyth.

"He told me he did not send the telegram to arrest me at Watsonville and knew nothing of what had taken place to annoy me so much."

The missing woman is not 21 years of age, while Mrs. Moore says she is 28. There is a slight resemblance in their faces, though the full face of Mrs. Forsyth, which did not happen to be photographed for the country officers, bears no resemblance to that of Mrs. Moore.

G. W. Forsyth, the disconsolate husband, was only too glad last night to be able to state that it was not his wife who had been found in the country, for he still places absolute faith in her loyalty to him, and it was a great relief to know that she had not run away.

"I am convinced that my wife is drowned, and is caught somewhere by the rocks or spikes of some lumber in the water. I traveled all along the main shore looking for her body, and searched the Golden Gate and ocean beach. The lighthouse-keeper told me she could not wash out to sea, and might be found on the Berkeley shore.

"She was not a member of Emmanuel Church, and I don't think she was ever there. She attended the First Baptist church on Eddy street probably a dozen times, but was not a member of the congregation. My wife was a Methodist and used to go to Mr. Filben's church on California street. I don't expect to ever see her alive. I'm sure she is dead."

A WORLD OF DECEPTION.

Manufacturing Sham Reputations for Skill in Flood and Field.

Dummy Trout, Deer and Panther for Men Who Draw the Long Bow.

In the rear of a blacksmith's shop on Pacific street, above Dupont, a peculiar business is carried on. The casual visitor who penetrates this dingy retreat is confronted with a carpenter's bench, a turner's lathe and a shelf stocked with paintpots. The occupation of the tenant of this peculiar den seems a blending of studio and curiosity-shop. But it is a business man who runs it, and one who makes his living by the weaknesses and vanities of humanity.

He is a tall, venerable-looking person, long haired, and wears a little woolen cap perched on the top of his head. He is a native of Birmingham, and served his time as an apprentice to a bogus ancient armor factory in that city of shams. There is a humorous twinkle in his deeply set eyes, and a cunning, mysterious smile visits the thin lips, as if the man knew lots of stories about other people which he could tell if he chose and which would make them ridiculous.

"This is my busy time," said the ancient. "The fishing season keeps me hard at work. You don't see any rods or creels or implements of that nature about here, of course not. Yet I am an angler of anglers, and have made more reputations than the sporting reporters who publish with unhesitating faith anything the fisherman tells him."

Now, the visitor, looking very naturally incredulous at this statement, the ancient pursued his discourse:

"You see every Saturday the pictures of fishermen with monstrous fish hanging up beside them, or clusters on the ground, or hanging from their wagon. that is to 'make assurance doubly sure.' You see, I am a reader of Shakespeare, and bring the camera's evidence to those oral declarations about phenomenal catches, which the public are loath to believe. Doubting Thomases will be confronted by these pictures, and the angler will say, 'Go to, go to; dost thou not see the sun itself corroborates my anecdotes of success in brook and lake?' and so this nefarious mendacity prospers. Now take a peep at my stock in trade."

This odd character then threw open a closet furnished with a most astonishing collection. There were trout of all sizes roughly hewn in wood, then covered with paper, which was painted to imitate the scales of the fish.

"Just pose here," continued this strange being, "and let me hang a couple of dozen of these sham trout by your side. Now imagine yourself in fishing costume, with a rod in your hand, and then tell me if any of your friends who beheld a photograph made of you with those details, could deny your right to the title of a fish killer who might give St. Peter himself odds and beat him out at the close of a day's angling.

"Do people really condescend to these low and base artifices to win fame as wonderful anglers? Do they, eh? Well, it is a blessed thing they do, or else this old man would have a hard time of it getting along in the world. It grows on 'em, too. Fishermen who were content at first with an ordinary string of trout, now want their dummies as big as I can make 'em."

"Surely, you did not land that monster!" says a friend who has seen the picture. "Oh, slick jaw, what a fisherman you must be!"

"What better proof do you want than the picture?" says the other fellow, and then when the famous angler appears 'on 'change' he is treated and cigared by those who want to know what fly he used, and all the thrilling history of this remarkable achievement.

"As soon as the fishing season is on the wane the deer season comes in. I have a fine trade in this line, and keep in stock everything from a spiked buck to a stag of ten. Hunter leaning on the slaughtered deer, hunter packing a slaughtered deer to his house, hunter in the act of skinning slaughtered deer—it is all the same to me: I can pose 'em with a selection from what I call my deer park, and I defy any one to tell the deception. Pshaw, talk about the newspaper men making reputations! I have built up more hunters and anglers than any sporting reporter that ever lived. I have got this basement full of deer, and will have them all brushed up and painted fresh by July 4.

"You observe this block of wood I am working on now. That's not going to be a deer. No, sirre; something greater and grander than that. I will tell you a secret. There is a young clerk in an English insurance office who writes home to his friends in Kent about the wild beast that are found in the suburbs of San Francisco. That piece of wood, sir, is going to be a panther, and that young gentleman, clad in buckskins, is going to pose with that panther, brought down by his trusty rifle, lying at his feet. It will send a shudder through that quiet English home; and maw and paw and all Harry's sisters, and cousins and aunts will write to him to be careful of himself and keep far away from the jungles of Bernal Heights. If his salary is raised next May, which is doubtful, I may have an order for a grizzly bear; but panthers in effigy come expensive and I am inclined to think he'll rest some time on that. Come round and see me when you want to get your picture in the paper with anything dead beside you—from a brook trout to a lion," and the old cynic grinned satanically as he turned to add more crimson to the gills of a colossal steelhead.

COMEDIES IN GERMAN.

Clever Presentation by University of California Students.

Members of the German Literary and Dramatic Club as Amateur Actors.

Union square hall was tastefully decorated last evening with the yellow and blue of the University of California and over the stage was strung in letters of gold the words, "German Students." The occasion for this was the fourth annual entertainment by the German Literary and Dramatic Club of the University.

There were present to witness the performance the relatives and many friends of the members of the club besides a large number of classmates.

After the overture Professor Putzker, who has charge of the German class at the University, numbering over three hundred, was presented to the audience and in a happy speech said that studies occupy nearly all the time of the students and that their time is taken up with serious subjects, but somehow the twenty-five members of the dramatic club found time to study a play or two to present for the gratification of their friends. This, he said, was a splendid method for the students to familiarize themselves with conversational German, and the members of the club had, in their rehearsals, acquitted themselves so well that they deserved to have their names printed in letters of gold on the programme.

The members of the club are the Misses Cook, Kuhls, Knerr, Kreuz, Kalman, Mehlman, Henrici Michaelitschke, Parker, E. Sanderson, C. Sanderson, Wilson, Williams and Mrs. Dr. Miner.

Messrs. A. H. Allen, Baun, J. S. Drew, W. J. Drew, Girzikowsky, Hus, Larsen, Perry, Reinhart, Rosenthal and Wharff.

The curtain rose for the presentation of a German comedy entitled "A Criminal's Accomplice," a lively comedy with bright, spicy dialogue and rapid action. It is the story of Froelich (A. H. Allen), a pensioned registrar, who, with Minna (Miss Mehlman), his wife, occupied rooms in a quiet neighborhood. Charlotte (Miss L. Parker), the wife of a tailor, and as talkative as a fishwife, pays a visit to Minna, and she no sooner leaves than Froelich enters and finds himself in trouble about his pension. His wife leaves him to go to market, and during her absence an unknown man (J. S. Drew) rushes in and asks for protection from the police. He is secreted, and after a time allowed to make his escape, but in so doing drops a pocketbook, which Froelich picks up to prevent Lorenz the tailor (Mr. Hus) from gaining possession of it. Froelich believes that he by this act is the accomplice of a criminal, and his life is a torment. Herman, a magistrate (A. H. Allen), visits the house to present Froelich a medal for having rescued a child, but the self-accused accomplice escapes through a window. There is, however, a happy termination. The Unknown turns out to be a lover who was escaping from the wrath of an angry father. Everything is explained and Froelich secures his medal.

Miss L. Parker, who is an American and in the freshman class, had a most difficult part on account of the rapidity with which she was forced to deliver her lines, but while her intonation is marked with a American accent, she manifested a wonderful command of the foreign tongue. Her acting, for an amateur, was remarkably good. The other characters were well sustained and the players showed that they had devoted much attention to character, lines and situations. Their effort to please was loudly applauded.

This was followed by another comedy entitled "The Announcement of the Engagement of ——," written by Ernst Wichert.

The following was the cast:

Frau von Grumbach	Miss A. Krenz
Maluine, her daughter	Miss E. Sanderson
Franz von Grumbach, her nephew	W. F. Larsen
Adelaide Hoppstengel, governess	Miss C. Sanderson
Andreas Langehaus, an inspector	E. E. Girzikowsky
Gretchen, servant	Miss L. Reddington

This, as amusing as the first one, should have been presented on a larger stage as for want of room the participants were unable to display their ability to act. Still, as a whole, it was very creditably rendered and there was in this also evidence of careful study. These participants were also loudly applauded, and by none more so than by Professor Putzker, who, after the fall of the curtain, expressed himself as very proud of the success scored by his pupils.

Calling a clerk a "clark" is ordinarily reckoned an English affectation in this country, but here is the new Standard dictionary giving no less than twenty-one eminent American authorities for pronouncing it that way, and among these are the names of Wendell Phillips and George William Curtis, who were generally regarded as having been masters of correct English as it should be spoken by Americans.

THE cook should examine carefully the label of the baking powder and see that she is not imposed upon. If the grocer sends anything but the Royal send it back, as one cook did five times until she got the Royal. The only safe way is for the cook to have the finest things to work with, and the Royal is not only the finest but the most economical to use, because it goes so much further.

OPEN FIGHT ALL AROUND.

Ship-Owners Take an Active Hand in the Sailors' Strike.

OPPOSITION TO THE UNION.

Pope & Talbot and Mighell to Join Issues With the Association.

The strike of the Sailors' Union is nearly at an end, and if it is not concluded shortly it will not be the fault of the shipowners. A movement was begun yesterday by the shipowners, totally irrespective of the association, which promises to bring the conflict to a crisis. It may be, too, that the movement bodes no good for the Shipowners' Association as it is, and there will probably be a change in that organization within a very few days.

The American ship Sterling, bound for Philadelphia, obtained a crew last Friday and all arrangements were completed for the sailing of the vessel yesterday. The crew had signed regularly enough, but when it came to going to sea the sailors thought that they could escape the duties of a voyage and still hold the advance of $15 a man. The men, under the guidance of the counsels of the union, claimed that the vessel was going on a coasting voyage, inasmuch as she was going to make a stop on the Sound. They further held that as they had been paid an advance of $15 each the owners of the vessel had violated the shipping laws of Uncle Sam, and therefore they were not only entitled to come ashore, but were also entitled to damages from the ship.

The Sterling's owners took the matter to the United States District Attorney, who telegraphed to Attorney-General Olney. Yesterday afternoon a dispatch was received from Olney saying that the trip of the Sterling was a continuous one, and that the advance was perfectly legitimate. But the crew had deserted and there was no way of getting them back.

Two firms have held out from joining the association. They are Pope & Talbot and Mighell & Burdrow. They handle more sailors than all the shipping firms put together outside of Goodall, Perkins & Co., and their action means much to the Sailors' Union and to the Shipowners' Association. It was rumored yesterday that both had put all their ships into the association. There was an "if," however, in the contract, and that "if" was John Cane, the shipping agent—the man who shot the union sailor on Friday night.

Pope & Talbot have been among the greatest friends the union has had, but the last act of Secretary Furuseth did not suit the firm and from the inception of the strike they have hired non-union men through the agency of Cane.

Mighell has had Cane in his employ since the strike of two years ago, and Cane has always found men for his ships. While Mr. Mighell is a director of the Shipowners' Association, he has only one ship in the organization, and he is the managing owner of at least a dozen. If he and Pope and Talbot go into the association, it will mean an addition of at least $300 a month to the dues of the organization. They will only go in on the condition of Cane supplying their vessels with men, and this means a change in the personnel of the office. The Shipowners' Association, through its directors, has not yet acceded to the demand, but it is said that the two firms will come very near carrying their point.

PEREMPTORY ORDER ASKED.

Heirs of John T. Hope Want T. W. Moore to Make an Accounting.

Application was made yesterday to Judge Coffey for a peremptory order commanding Thomas W. Moore to appear in court and render an accounting of moneys collected by him belonging to the estate of John T. Hope.

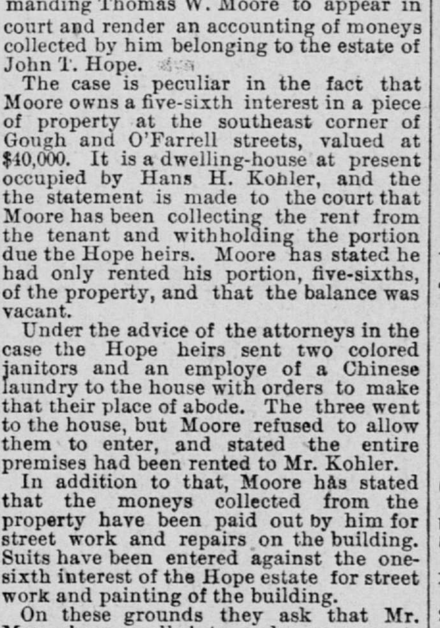

The case is peculiar in the fact that Moore owns a five-sixth interest in a piece of property at the southeast corner of Gough and O'Farrell streets, valued at $40,000. It is a dwelling-house at present occupied by Hans H. Kohler, and the the statement is made to the court that Moore has been collecting the rent from the tenant and withholding the portion due the Hope heirs. Moore has stated he had only rented his portion, five-sixths, of the property, and that the balance was vacant.

Under the advice of the attorneys in the case the Hope heirs sent two colored janitors and an employe of a Chinese laundry to the house with orders to make that their place of abode. The three went to the house, but Moore refused to allow them to enter, and stated the entire premises had been rented to Mr. Kohler.

In addition to that, Moore has stated that the moneys collected from the property have been paid out by him for street work and repairs on the building. Suits have been entered against the one-sixth interest of the Hope estate for street work and painting of the building.

On these grounds they ask that Mr. Moore be compelled to make an accounting.

It is said that at present there are more than 100 callings, occupations and professions open to women, and the list is constantly increasing.

OUT AT THE RACETRACK.

Midas Showed His Competitors How to Skip Around the Ring.

MT. AIR WAS A SURPRISE.

Nervosa and Gypsette Gelding of the Elmwood Stock Farm Both Won.

But for the poor start she got Joan would have won galloping.

Nelson, away from the post very badly, ran a fine race.

Sweet Alice again bled slightly, which undoubtedly contributed to her defeat.

Had Lulu not been interfered with in the stretch she would probably have beaten Nervosa.

The Elmwood stock farm captured the first two races, both winners being ridden by Bob Isom.

The Charlotte filly ran her race at the post. She showed plenty of speed in all of the false starts.

At present Tommy Lottridge has Rear Guard in better form than he has ever before shown in California.

When Contribution is beaten in 1:08¾ for the five and a half furlongs it is about time the old fellow's dickey legs had a rest.

Crescendo, the crack two-year-old, is now quartered in San Jose, where he will remain until the string of Naglee Burke starts East early in May.

By the handy manner with which Mt. Air reeled off the short six furlongs in 1:13 he showed himself to be very much of a "coming around" horse.

It is certainly very hard to keep a line on the horses of the Elmwood stock farm. Were Mr. Boots a betting man the peculiar running of his horses would certainly be questioned.

Jockey Hinrichs was again seen in the saddle yesterday, having returned from the Los Angeles race meeting, where he did some very clever work in the saddle. Hinrichs had the mount on Tar and Tartar on the last race, and he had not entirely recovered from his journey on the cars, or else the brown gelding's stable folks were very badly fooled in him.

Some day when fate decrees that racing shall be no more at the Bay District track, and its gates are forever closed, prying humanity will probably search through the different buildings and club-houses and may discover the remains of some departed dead, that not a straggling fragment of a pool ticket nor a bookmaker's dust-begrimed sheet would aid the Coroner revealing their identification. I do not refer in particular to the racing yesterday, although in fact it was hard as usual, and might be called tough, but all in all it is getting to be racing that is hard to beat. It is a question whether long-continued race meetings of the duration of the present one are prolific of prosperity to the average race-goer. I think not. Yesterday was the one hundred and fiftieth day of the meeting, and I doubt very much whether most of them that passed out of the gates after the last race had one dollar and fifty cents in their pockets—that is, those that put up that very essential article, the American silver dollar, to enter therein.

Whenever jockeys are in great demand for consultations in regard to who will win the race, it is a pretty sure indication that form is at a discount. And yesterday I noticed that at last, Little Pete, the Chinese plunger, has had to come to it, for I saw him in earnest conversation with one of the knights of the pigskin very close to the noted end stall in the saddling paddock.

A brief review of the races yesterday points to the fact that but one favorite out of the six won, and that one was fortunate in having but two horses to contest against.

The fields in the different events were small, the time was good, and the band played its usual selections for the benefit of the scantily filled balconies.

After cutting up his customary wicked pranks at the post in the opening race, a six-furlong spin, Nelson, the 8 to 5 favorite, finally got away last. He made a fine run through his field, but the effort was too much for him, and in a drive through the stretch the one-eyed horse was beaten by both Nervosa and Lulu, the former getting the decision by a neck.

Getting away in front, in the two-year-old run, a four and a half furlong jaunt, the Gypsette gelding, with 7 to 2 against him, led all the way and won by half a length from Joan. Ida H, a daughter of Ben Ali, was a good third, this being her maiden effort.

The 3 to 5 favorite Midas, carrying but 93 pounds, made Nebuchadnezzar and Annette, the only other starters, think they had forgotten how to run in the first mile race, for he passed them nearing the half and won, romping in 1:41¼. Nebuchadnezzar was second.

"If she doesn't bleed she will walk in," they said about Sweet Alice, who opened favorite for the fourth race. Many thought she would again be troubled with her old failing and put their coin on Nellie G, sending her to the post equal favorite with Nellie G.

Well, Sweet Alice bled, but the joker had been overlooked, for Mt. Air, with 15 and 20 to 1 against him, trailed the sweet thing to the stretch and then went on and won easily, running the short six furlongs in 1:13. Sweet Alice lasted long enough to beat Nellie G a length for the place.

Old Contribution, the 11 to 10 favorite for the fifth race, a five and a half furlong dash, had to make way for younger blood. Mollie R, the 9 to 5 second choice, raced out in front with the aged and crippled sprinter, and downed him handily, winning by a length. O'Bee, who was strongly backed, was a fair third.

According to rumor the horse that defeated Tar and Tartar in the last race would have to step lively, yet he was beaten a block in 1:41¾. Tar and Tartar was a 7 to 5 favorite at post time, with Hinrichs up. Rear Guard, the heavily backed second horse, led all the way and won by five lengths. Tar and Tartar finished in front of Brodhead for the place. Possibly Tar and Tartar's next performance may show whether the stable had cause for disappointment. MULHOLLAND.

A SPORTING MELANGE.

Champion Handball Players of the World to Meet in Cork.

The Olympic Club's Swimming, Boxing and Baseball Matches.

The local champions of handball have been firing hot shot at each other for some weeks past, and not very long ago Champion Harlow woke up one bright and sunny morning and repaired to the house of a friend, to whom he said he had had a most wonderful dream.

"I dreamt," said Champion Harlow, "that I met and easily defeated Champion Riordan, and that my friends went wild with joy over the result. I feel now as if I was really qualified and competent to accomplish that trick under the light of day."

Harlow's friend acquiesced and the result was that a challenge appeared next day from Harlow to Riordan, which more than took the latter by surprise. Riordan in reply sends the following to the CALL for publication.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21, 1895.

Editor San Francisco Call—DEAR SIR: In reference to the article published in your sporting column of to-day's CALL, I wish to state I have positively declined to play any game of handball in the San Francisco handball court. In regard to Harlow's challenge, I will agree to meet him best five in nine, 21-point game, for $100 or $200 per side, game to be played in the Union or Occidental handball courts. I have my own money to back me whenever the former sees fit to make a match. Yours respectfully, JOHN RIORDAN.

The lovers of handball cannot understand Riordan's action in refusing to play in the San Francisco ball court. If Riordan had broad-gauge ideas he should certainly agree to meet Harlow in any of the courts. There is no doubt that he will be accorded fair play in any court.

Lawlor, the Irish champion, who is at present in New York, has accepted a challenge from James Fitzgerald of Cork, Ireland, to play a rubber for $250 a side and the championship of the world, the rubber to consist of fifteen games and each game to contain 21 aces, to be finished in one day in the Cork racquet court, Grattan street. The challenge appeared in Dublin Sport on April 6, directed to the leading players of the world. Henry Armstrong of J. J. O'Brien & Co. has just received a letter from Lawlor, stating that the latter has accepted the challenge for a match where endurance will cut a prominent figure, and that he will soon depart for his native country.

Grattan court is 84 feet in length and 41 feet wide, having no back wall.

L. W. Blankman of Potter Valley has sent word to the CALL that a man named Ryan is engaged in killing deer for their hides. To escape from the heavy snow on the mountains the game have wandered into the valley, and are now being slaughtered by Ryan and other poachers. There is no doubt that Commissioner Emeric will send a deputy to the place in question when he receives further particulars.

A special meeting of the Olympic Gun Club will be held in the wheelmen's compartment of the club on Wednesday evening for the purpose of discussing a game and fish preserve.

The Olympic Club boxing tournament will be held in the gymnasium of the club on May 28. It will be open to amateurs in good standing. There will be six events of four rounds each. Only first-class boxers need apply for place.

The Imperial Club of Colma has matched Joe King and Henry Peppers (colored) for a twenty-round fight, to take place on the evening of May 26. The pugilists have signed articles to box at 158 pounds, which weight it is extremely doubtful that either man can reach and be in good fettle. King recently left this city for Bakersfield, where he engaged in farming for a time. His employer sent word to the champion boxer of Bakersfield—a blacksmith—that he had a raw recruit on his ranch who could do some fighting, and that he would have no objection to match him against any man in the county. The "iron man" quickly accepted the challenge and a fight was arranged. It took place in Bakersfield, and Mr. Blacksmith went gently to sleep in the second round. The latter's friends are still wondering who that plowman could have been and where he made his escape to after the war was over.

The Olympic Club tournament will take place on the evening of May 21 and the bill of aquatic fare reads: One hundred yards' open race, 100 yards' maiden, 50 yards' open, fancy diving, plain diving, tub race, candle race, quarter-mile race. Superintendent Kennedy, alias Linquist Tom, is now talking up a relay race from the foot of Mission street to the Oakland mole, a distance of about four miles. Kennedy is of the opinion that there can be selected from among the natators of the club ten able-bodied fellows who can give a good account of themselves in a race of this kind against any ten amateur swimmers of the State.

MADDEN WHIPS CONNORS.

Twenty-Five Rounds Fought Before the Seaside Athletic Club.

FOR BANTAM CHAMPIONSHIP.

Fitzsimmons Thinks He Is Not Being Treated Right by the Florida Club.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., April 22.—There was only a small crowd at the Seaside Athletic Club's arena when the sports began this evening. The first bout was between Alf Hanlon of England and "Shadow" Maber of Australia. They were matched to box six rounds. Maber was declared the winner on points.

The next bout was between Jake Skelly of Brooklyn and Johnny Gorman of Long Island City, eight rounds at 127 pounds. The fighting was hot and it was declared a draw.

The big event of the night was then in order. It was a twenty-five round go between Johnny Connors of Springfield, Ill., and Jack Madden of Brooklyn at 105 pounds for the bantam championship. Madden seemed to have a shade the best of the early rounds, though in the sixth round both were bleeding at the nose and in the succeeding rounds it was give and take in a lively manner.

In the eleventh Madden's stock went up again when he jabbed Connors five times without a return. Madden had the fight in hand from this time on, though Connors made a game attempt to force the fighting in the twentieth.

Round 25—Both men clinched, and Madden led with his left, but was stopped. He sent his left into Connors' stomach without a return. Madden jabbed Connors in the mouth three times, and got in the wind with his right and left on his opponent's jaw. Throughout the fight there seemed to be something wrong with Madden's right hand. The referee declared Madden the winner.

FITZSIMMONS COMPLAINS.

He Says He Is Not Being Treated Fairly in Florida.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—Bob Fitzsimmons expressed the belief that Joe Vendig is trying to give him a shade or two the worst of it in the arrangement for his fight with Corbett. "Manny" Friend, who represents Fitzsimmons, said:

"Our money is up, but the Florida Athletic Club has not made its guaranty of $5000, and unless it does so shortly we will take decisive steps. It looks as though they were a little bit afraid that they cannot pull off the fight and want to crawl.

"We understood that the money had been posted long ago, but to our surprise Stakeholder Phil Dwyer says it is not.

"If the Florida Athletic Club thinks it can peddle this fight about and dispose of it where it wants to it will get fooled. We shall have something to say about that. We are ready to fight, but certainly want all the parties to live up to the articles of agreement, which Vendig has not done."

CORBETT WANTS THE FIGHT.

He Will Meet Fitzsimmons in Any State in the Union.

CINCINNATI, OHIO, April 22.—Referring to the hitch with the Florida Athletic Club Champion James J. Corbett, who is filling a week's engagement here, says:

"I will meet Bob Fitzsimmons in any State in the Union. Joe Vendig has my permission to transfer the scene of operations to Texas, Colorado, Louisiana or any other State. I will meet Fitzsimmons before any club in the country, but it must be for a purse. I will not go out of America to take Fitzsimmons on, and if it is not possible for us to come together here, I will go to England and fight Peter Jackson.

"He has first call for a meeting on foreign soil. I once refused to go to London to settle with Jackson, and if I took Fitzsimmons there he would have the deadwood on me and say: 'He was afraid of me. He would not meet me in London.' It is any place in America for Fitzsimmons and any place in the world for Jackson. That is my platform. I heard that Fitzsimmons had his money up, but this is the first intimation I have had of trouble for the Florida club."

SPECIAL THURSDAY RACE.

An Important Event for Horsemen at Montgomery Park.

MEMPHIS, TENN., April 22.—A special race, which is sure to prove the most interesting event of the spring race meeting at Montgomery Park, is announced to-night by the New Memphis Jockey Club for Thursday, April 28. It will bring together the crack representatives of the best stables at the park, including Cash Day, who defeated Libertine last week; Rey el Santa Anita, who stands at the head of Baldwin's string; Henry Young, who distinguished himself at Little Rock, and has pulled off some good stakes at this meeting, and Chris Smith's fast mare, Yo Tambien.

The race will be a sweepstakes special weights, $100 each, play or pay, at one mile, with $600 added, with entries and weights as follows:

Rey el Santa Anita 110, Cash Day 103, Henry Young 101, Yo Tambien 90, Lobengula 75.

Pools are now being sold as follows:

RACES AT GILROY.

Opening Meeting at the Track of the Tribune Cyclers.

SAN JOSE, CAL., April 22.—The Tribune Cyclers of Gilroy held their first race at the racetrack near that place yesterday. There were two events on the programme, a mile and a half-mile handicap.

The mile handicap was won by George Lewis in 2:42, William McDonald second. The half-mile handicap was run in two heats, and won by Roy Lennon, Frank Reeve second.

The Tribune Cyclers were but recently organized, and the club's membership is rapidly increasing. It is the intention of the club to hold a series of road races the coming summer.

GRASS VALLEY TARGET SHOOT.

Auburn Cracks Meet Defeat at the Hands of the Local Team.

GRASS VALLEY, CAL., April 22.—A competitive target shoot took place Sunday at Sheridan range, one mile from this city, between teams of men from Company D of Auburn and Company H of Grass Valley, before more than 1000 spectators. The range is pronounced by experts one of the best in the State, being fitted with telephones and every required convenience. A strong northeast wind was blowing and greatly reduced the score.

The Company D team made a total score of 383, and was beaten by only eight points, the result being in doubt until the last man shot. After the shoot Company H drilled in honor of their visitors. The local company entertained their guests with a ball at their armory Saturday night and a dinner yesterday.

The return match will be shot at Auburn in about four weeks.

The race was run off, but Buck Edie was never in it. In the second race a length did not separate the first horses and the judges were put to their wits' end in placing them. LITTLE LESTER CAMP.

A Poor but Charitable Woman Offers to Give the Incurable a Home for a Time.

The publication by the CALL of the facts in connection with the deplorable case of Lester Camp, the eight-year-old incurable, now at the Children's Hospital, has borne good fruit.

It will be remembered that the officials of the Children's Hospital recently notified Secretary McComb of the Humane Society to remove the child, as no one stood ready to pay the charge of $3 a week for his support.

Mrs. Gurley of 148 Sixth street sent a letter to Secretary McComb yesterday notifying him that she would take care of the child for a month at least. "I would keep him longer if my means would permit," added she, "but in that time, perhaps, some good man of wealth will take Lester's condition to heart and place him above want until he is called hence. You may send the child to me at once, and for four weeks at least I will take good care of him."

Secretary McComb is still looking for the boy's father, who is working in the city somewhere. If he can be found provision will be made for keeping the boy at the hospital.

Like a Machine,

Which kept in order runs smoothly and regularly, so the bowels keep up their action if measures are taken to keep them in good working order. This infers, of course, that they are out of order. The surest recourse then is to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a laxative mild but effective, which is also a remedy for dyspepsia, malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney trouble.

CARS THAT CARRY DEATH.

The Combine's Trolleys Are Examined and Are Found Wanting.

VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

The Civic Federation Proposes to Prosecute the Company.

The Civic Federation, which has been reorganized, proposes to prosecute the Market-street Railway Company for violating the laws made for the protection of life and limb. The federation held an adjourned meeting yesterday afternoon in assembly-room, Mills building, at which I. J. Truman presided.

The committee on appointment of special committees to perform the work of the federation as outlined in the plan adopted at the previous meeting reported through Rev. E. R. Dille the following names:

Civic feducation—H. N. Bevier, George T. Gaden, M. S. Woodhams, J. K. Jones.

Enforcement of laws—E. R. Dille, J. M. Reynolds, M. V. Samuels, C. O. Burton, Mrs. R. M. French.

Municipal affairs—I. J. Truman, Wallace Bradford, E. McClish, C. C. Terrill.

Police Department and Police Court—Thomas Filben, D. Gilbert Dexter, C. O. Burton, Hobart Chetwood.

Elections—M. Lowenstein, M. McGlynn, E. B. Stewart, M. P. Boynton.

Sanitation and public safety—J. Cumming Smith, Mrs. L. P. Williams, Dr. Hanson Irwin, W. I. Kip.

Rev. Mr. Filben reported that the committee to whom was referred the matter of levying an assessment had decided that it was impracticable to levy one at this time, but suggested the appointment of a finance committee to raise funds to carry on the work of the federation.

The chair named the following as the finance committee: E. R. Dille, C. C. Terrill, H. M. Bevier, J. Cumming Smith, D. Gilbert Dexter, Thomas Filben, George T. Gaden, M. P. Boynton and Chairman Truman.

Rev. Mr. Dille suggested that the federation ought to issue a folder in which should be set forth the objects of the association, and that such a document would be of much value when the finance committee called upon citizens for assistance.

Mr. Terrill said that the printing of these folders would involve expense, and that he was opposed to contracting any more debts until former obligations had been met.

Rev. Mr. Filben was of the opinion that the cost of printing would be small, and as it would be one method of raising means to meet debts pending, it should be authorized.

It was after some further discussion decided to print the folder of information, and H. N. Bevier, George T. Gaden, M. S. Woodhams and J. K. Jones were named as a committee to prepare it.

John M. Reynolds, who was appointed at a previous meeting to inquire into the killing of persons by streetcars, reported that he had made a careful study of the subject. He then read order 2072, which provides that all streetcars shall be provided with fenders of a triangular shape, and that such should not be more than one and one-half inches above the track. He said that he had visited the Board of Supervisors and found that the pattern used by the Market-street line was the one generally approved. At Market and Third streets he took the number and measure of fenders of forty cars and found that not one had a fender in compliance with the law.

He called on the Mayor and requested him to have the ordinance enforced. He also wrote a letter to the Mayor and one to the Grand Jury on the subject. He attended the inquest over the body of Eugene H. Langford, killed by an electric-car on Kearny street, and furnished a list of questions to ask of witnesses in order to establish the fact that the cars did not have proper fenders.

In conclusion Mr. Reynolds said that the motorman had been charged with manslaughter and that he had asked the Grand Jury that an indictment be presented against H. E. Huntington, W. L. Willcutt and T. H. Vining of the railroad company for gross negligence in failing to provide means on their cars to prevent life from being crushed out of human beings. He said that if the Grand Jury did not act some one should take steps to have these persons prosecuted. He said he also asked the Grand Jury to cite the Mayor and the Chief of Police to explain why they did not have the law about fenders enforced.

Mr. Reynolds' action was indorsed and the report referred to the committee on enforcement of laws with power to act. It was further added that the committee should push the matter with the utmost vigor.

Mr. Terrill said the federation should do something to compel the authorities to have the cars construct triangular fenders, as required by the ordinance. Such, he said, would turn people who might fall in front of a car to one side. They might injure, but would not kill.

Chairman Truman said that he had been summoned before the Grand Jury and explained the danger of streetcars.

IN MEMORY OF FROEBEL.

Birthday of the Educational Reformer Remembered by Pastor Stebbins.

Frederick Froebel's birthday was remembered at the First Unitarian Church Sunday morning. It was the one hundred and thirteenth anniversary of the birth of the great German apostle of the kindergarten system, and many ladies interested in this method of education were in attendance. The occasion afforded the pastor, Rev. Horatio Stebbins, an opportunity to make an effective application of the lesson of Froebel's life and work. He said:

Michelet calls Froebel the greatest teacher of children and the greatest reformer of teachers. After a period of more than 100 years his influence is beginning to be felt, destined never to cease. Froebel's genius invented a series of employments, wonderful, unique, simple, yet based upon the fundamental principles of the human mind, and his conception of education is gradually permeating the air of common opinion.

When it was proposed to introduce the plan here a School Director said he did not want to turn the school into a nursery. The prejudice was so great in some quarters that it took a pious turn and played an important part in a mean church fuss. There is more religion in Froebel's system than there is in some church creeds. Froebel himself was a God-intoxicated man and affirmed that all education was founded in religion.

The W. C. T. U. of Iroquois, Ont., recently sent to Ottawa a protest against the door of the postoffice being left open on Sunday for the accommodation of boxholders.

WEATHER BUREAU REPORT.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE. WEATHER BUREAU, SAN FRANCISCO, April 22, 5 P. M.—Weather conditions and general forecast:

The warm fair weather of the past three days has continued throughout the State to-day, the temperature in the interior valleys being above ninety degrees at all stations except Sacramento, where it reached eighty-six degrees. This is the hottest day of the season, and accompanied, as it was, by a very dry atmosphere, it will cause the deficiency in rainfall to be more manifest than previously. Conditions to-night, however, indicate that the warm wave is about over and cooler weather is probable in the northern portion of the State to-night, becoming cooler Wednesday evening in the southern portion of the State. Tuesday will be cloudy, but probably without rain.

The following are seasonal rainfalls to date as compared with the same date last season: Eureka 39.99, last year 50.38; Red Bluff 27.07, last year 19.15; Sacramento 22.98, last year 13.85; San Francisco 23.98, last year 16.11; Fresno 12.69, last year 6.17; Los Angeles 15.38, last year 6.46; San Diego 11.39, last year 3.98; Yuma 2.97, last year 2.16 inches.

Forecast made at San Francisco for the thirty hours ending midnight, April 23, 1895:

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—The stock market to-day, taken as a whole, was strong, and the volume of business was quite large. At the opening of business prices moved irregularly within a narrow range, but speculation soon became strong and an upward movement was inaugurated, which continued in force until about 11 o'clock, when the market again became unsettled and rates quiet. The coal shares were notably strong and active, the buying therein being due to reports of a basis of agreement was nearly reached by the coal-carrying roads, and that to-day's meeting of operators was likely to reach a settlement.

The advance in the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago stocks was continued to-day, notably in the preferred, which sold up 2½ per cent to 28¼, closing 27½; the common rose 1 per cent to 8½, reacting ½. After midday the general market continued active and buoyant and some material advances were recorded, but about 1 o'clock eased off a fraction and the dealings became quiet. The market continued in this tone until the final trading, when the speculation became steady.

The late losses were only partial and a majority of the list is up on the day, notably Pullman 3 per cent, Oregon Short Line, Iowa Central preferred, 2½; Louisville and New Albany preferred, 2¾; Leather preferred, 1⅝, and Lead preferred, 1 per cent. The losses are fractional, except for Cordage guaranteed, which is down 1 per cent. The market closed fairly steady.

The bond trading during the day was strong and the total sales were $3,661,000, which is the heaviest business done in any one day for more than a year past. The transactions in Atchison 4's were $666,000 and a gain of ¼ per cent was made on the day. The buying of bonds was induced largely by the action of the English bondholders' meeting to-day in announcing the reorganization plan. Government bonds, strong; State bonds, dull; Railroad bonds, strong.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 22.—After a wild spurt at the opening and a slump in the middle of the session wheat closed 1⅜c higher for May. Heavy buying largely by shorts caused the advance. May corn closed ¾c higher, May oats ⅛c lower and provisions at a slight advance. Wheat started up with a wild rush, opening trades being at 1½c advance. Every one wanted to get May at 61½c and July at 62½c, and sellers at such tempting advance over Saturday's price were few. Almost instantly 62c was being bid for May and 63c for July, and it was owing to that it was found possible by the greater number of the brokers having buying orders to find plenty of sellers.

The onrush to buy had obtained such an impetus, however, that 62¼c and 63¼c for May and July respectively were paid before the trading got into a regular swing. The last-named prices proved the culmination point of the advance, and it took only five minutes from the start to reach it. The excitement gradually subsided, and, having done so, the crowd began to look around for the cause of their alarm.

Liverpool sent quotations of an advance there of from 1½d to 2d per cental. Showers had visited the large area of the winter wheat country since Saturday; then the Western receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth numbered 417 carloads, compared with only 178 carloads a week ago and 145 on the corresponding day of the year before.

On the increase in ocean passage and the visible supply decrease of about 700,000 less than had been looked for, the price of May slumped to 60⅜c in an irregular and unwilling style; but buying on a large scale set in again and carried the price up to 61⅜c, at which it closed. July closing at 62⅜@62½c. Many million bushels of long wheat, perhaps as much as 30,000,000 bushels, must have been sold to-day. Shorts, where their presence was comparatively unsuspected, have developed themselves in the cornpit in large numbers.

The demand for that long time neglected cereal was surprisingly brisk when the market opened, as an advance of 1c in May and July at the start will indicate. The first prices were 48⅜c and 48¾c respectively, compared with 47½c for May and 47¾c for July at the close on Saturday. Those prices were quickly raised to 48⅞c for May and 49½c for July, and they proved to be the highest points of the day's range. Subsequently there was a decline in May to 47½c and in July to 48c sellers, but in the end May had recovered again to 48¼c and July to 48¾c, both prices being bid as the session was closing.

Oats started very firm and active. Shorts were still anxious and bought freely. The advance in wheat and corn also figured conspicuously in creating higher prices early in the day. May started at 29⅝c and sold at 29¾c. Elevator people took advantage of the high prices and disposed of their holdings almost regardless. The price dropped during the decline, and at the lower prices buying was resumed and increased. A wild and panicky session was passed from that time on, slackening up slightly at intervals, but resuming again with greater activity. May sold off to 28⅝c, rallied to 29c and closed at that price. July delivery attracted the greater part of attention.

At the opening sales were made at 29@29¼c. The decline took the price to 28⅜c, the rally to 28⅝c, where it rested ⅛c under Saturday's last quotations.

The visible supply showed an increase in oats of 515,000 bushels, which was quite influential in aiding the late weakness.

The provision operators had not a very active day, but under the stimulus of the big business done in wheat and corn a moderate demand sprang up. Opening prices for pork, lard and ribs showed advances of 15c in pork and 7½c each in lard and ribs. The first sales brought about the best prices of the day. At the close pork had established an advance for the day of 5c in May and 10c in July; lard 10c and ribs from 7½c in May to 5c in July.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

Livestock.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 22.—Cattle-buyers have held on for so long that the supplies of dressed beef have become greatly reduced, and consequently there were few in the market. The result was a better demand for fat cattle, and, as the receipts will reach only about 8000 head, prices were about 10c higher than during the latter part of last week. Common to strictly choice native steers sold at $4@6, and anything fancy would have sold possibly for $6 25. A carload of very nice 1300-pound Nebraska steers (not fancy) sold at $6, but there were not many cattle good enough to sell very high, and trading was largely at $5@5 50. Export beeves were salable at $5 50@5 75. There was a good inquiry for butchers' and canners' stuff, and cows sold actively, the larger part going for $2@4 25; Texans, $3 50@4 50.

In hogs the demand started inactive early in the day. Later in the morning prices were not so strong. Common to choice weighing 200 pounds and upward sold at $4 75@5 50; light weights weighing 140 to 195 pounds at $4 75@4 95, and pigs $4 25@4 50.

Sheep—With estimated receipts to-day of 15,000 head there was a good supply from which to make selections. For desirable lots prices were steady with a good demand from the local slaughtering establishments and a very good business was transacted, but common goods sold slowly. Sheep sold all the way from $2 50@3 for common up to $4 50@4 65 for choice export lots, and lambs were in demand at $3 50@5 50. Texas sheep sold at $2 50@3 75, the better class being in good demand.

Receipts: Cattle, 8000; calves, 200; hogs, 26,000; sheep, 15,000.

STOCKS IN LONDON.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 22.—The Evening Post's London cablegram says: The markets to-day generally opened bullish on German selling, followed by an influential article in the Cologne Gazette, expressing German dislike to the Japanese acquisitions of territory. Recovery followed. Americans were in good demand. The continued rise of prices of various articles of produce is beginning to induce buying of Americans.

At the Atchison meeting of bondholders to-day the reorganization scheme was unanimously adopted. Atchisons were strong after the meeting, as were Ontarios also. Prices at the finish were under the best, mines booming faster than ever.

Of a total of £270,000 in gold received at the Bank of England to-day £190,000 was described as from New York.

The Chinese loan to be raised in Germany, mentioned in the foreign telegrams, is a small provincial loan to pay for arms purchased there. Nothing is yet known about a larger loan.

THE STOCK MARKET.

There was a lower range of values yesterday and Con. Cal. Va. sold down to $2 85, Ophir to $1 55, Sierra Nevada to 77c, Best and Belcher to 74c, etc. Business was quiet.

NOTES.

The following reports have been placed on file:

CHOLLAR—The north drift from the 450 level winze 250 feet south of the north line is out 62 feet and the face is in porphyry.

The west crosscut from the north lateral drift 450 level to connect with the raise from the eighth floor of the north stope has been completed.

The west crosscut on this level, 50 feet from the north line, is out 104 feet and the face is in low-grade quartz.

From the stopes above the 650 level we have extracted and shipped to the mill during the week 135 tons 1500 pounds of ore, the average battery sample of which was $24 48.

ALTA—During the past week the north drift on the 940 level was advanced 18 feet, total length 244 feet. Started a crosscut east from a point near the face of the drift this morning. We continue to extract some ore of fair milling-grade from the raise above 825 level, three cars a day above the average for the week.

POTOSI—The south drift on the 550 level from the bottom of the 450 level winze is out 190 feet, 24 feet having been added during the week; face in porphyry and clay. From the streak of ore above this drift we have saved during the week 15 tons and 600 pounds of ore, the car-sample of which was $14 89.

More miners have been added to the force in the Occidental Con. mine and the sinking of a winze in the body of ore found in the west ledge is to begin.

The delinquent assessment sale of the Eureka Consolidated Mining Company will be held to-day. The Occidental Con. will be delinquent in office to-day.

LATEST OAKLAND NEWS.

Wheelmen Claim That the Police Are Showing Favoritism.

WILL APPEAL TO THE MAYOR.

Rev. J. K. McLean Resigns From the First Congregational Church.

A number of cyclists who are also members of the Oakland Y. M. C. A. are preparing a protest to Mayor Davie regarding the manner in which the bicycle ordinance is enforced by the Chief of Police, or some of those who act directly under his orders.

They claim that favoritism is being shown by the officers, and that men who have been arrested for failing to carry lanterns have been released and their bail money returned on orders from the City Hall, while others who were apprehended about the same time and for the same offense were compelled to appear in the Police Court and pay their fines.

J. M. Colquhoun, Charles D. Gooch, W. E. Rode and J. H. Makens, all members of the Y. M. C. A., were returning from San Jose on Sunday evening when they were taken into custody by an officer on a charge of violating the bicycle ordinance in not carrying lanterns. They had started from San Jose at an hour which would have, under ordinary circumstances, brought them to Oakland in daylight, but the bad roads had so delayed them that it was 9 o'clock before they reached East Oakland.

They explained these circumstances to the officer, but he told them that his orders were strict to arrest all cyclists riding without lanterns after dark and sent them to the station.

He had scarcely resumed his beat when C. C. Gilbert came along from San Jose without a lantern and was taken into custody. The officer took his bail, $5, and permitted him to go, at the same time telephoning the fact of the arrest with the name of the prisoner to headquarters at the City Hall.

He was instructed to release Gilbert and return his bail. Gilbert had gone to catch a car to ride home and avoid further trouble, but was overtaken by the policeman and handed his $5, at the same time being told that he need not show up in the Police Court.

The four men previously arrested were told by Gilbert of his lenient treatment and they fully expected to be discharged when their cases were called in the Police Court this morning, but were disappointed when the Judge imposed a fine in spite of their explanations. They feel very indignant at their treatment, and will ask the Mayor to instruct the Chief of Police to tell his men to treat all cyclists alike. One of the arrested men, who asked that his name be withheld from publication, said yesterday:

"It seems strange to me that Gilbert should have been released after he had put up his bail, when four of us who had just as good an excuse were compelled to appear in the Police Court and pay a fine.

"I don't know whether he has friends at headquarters or not, but we propose to find out whether the police are going to play favorites. Gilbert intimated that the orders to release him came from the Chief, though it might have been the night prison-keeper who gave them."

Chief Schaffer denied yesterday that any one had been released on his orders.

Resigned His Pulpit.

Rev. John K. McLean, who for nearly twenty-four years past has occupied the pulpit of the First Congregational Church, has decided to resign his pastorate to devote all of his time and energies to building up the Pacific Theological Seminary, of which he is the president.

When tendered the highest position in the seminary about a year ago Dr. McLean listened to the entreaties of his congregation to remain as the head of the church until he had completed twenty-five years in that position, but recently the work of both institutions has so told on him that he was compelled to resign from one or the other. Believing that his labors would be of greater advantage to the seminary, and that the church could get another pastor, he decided to give his remaining years to the institution of learning, and will preach his last sermon on September 1.

Will Assess the Locals.

After a careful perusal of the laws bearing on the duties and powers of his office Assessor Dalton has come to the conclusion that he has the right to assess the local steam railroads of Alameda County and will, during the next week, consider what valuation he will place on them.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Dalton yesterday, "that $100,000 would be a fair valuation of the franchises, roadbed and rolling stock of the Seventh-street local line. The narrow and broad gauge lines running to Alameda and the line to Berkeley are also valuable.

"I suppose a fight will be made to have the matter placed in the hands of the Board of Equalization, but I have had the advice of competent attorneys, and I think the courts will uphold my contention."

Another Relay Race.

After considerable correspondence with the San Jose and San Francisco High School, the Oakland High School have succeeded in arranging a relay race in which all three schools will enter teams.

The contest, which will be for fifty miles, will take place on May 18 over the San Leandro triangle and will be participated in by six men from each institution of learning. No members of the Oakland team have yet been selected, but a tryout will be held in the near future to determine the competitors.

Got Her Allowance.

Mrs. Moss, the young widow of Franklin Moss, the aged Fruitvale capitalist who died some time ago, won her contest for an allowance from the estate when the matter came up before Judge Frick yesterday. She asked for $250 per month, and her petition was opposed by the children of the deceased by a former wife.

The court allowed her $175 per month. The estate is valued at $75,000, half of which goes to the widow.

Inspecting the Factories.

Deputy Labor Commissioners Roberts and Green, recently appointed by Commissioner Fitzgerald, have commenced an inspection of the factories and stores where women are employed to see that proper seats and other accommodations are provided, as required by law. They will also see whether all the children employed by Oakland manufacturers are of the proper age.

Struck by the Train.

Harry Cull, a painter, narrowly escaped death at Oak-street station on the broad-gauge yesterday morning. He attempted to cross in front of the eastbound local, but was struck by the engine and thrown some distance, sustaining a severe scalp wound but fortunately escaping further injuries. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital.

BERKELEY.

A bulletin was posted yesterday morning by Captain Koch giving the list of men whom the executive committee of the Athletic Association have chosen to represent the university on the track athletic team which will leave for the East next week. Up till yesterday the matter of who should be placed on the team was an uncertainty, but ten men have finally been decided upon, with a possibility of adding two more to the list, should it be found that finances will permit.

Following is a list of the successful men and the events they will enter: T. L. Barnes, the short sprints; E. J. Dyer and Harry B. Torrey, the hurdle races; C. Woolsey, the running broad jump; L. Merwin, the mile and two-mile walks; P. W. Edgren, the weight-throwing contests; Captain Fred W. Koch, the half-mile run, the shot put and the running high jump; Melville Dozier, the broad jump and bicycle races; William C. Patterson, the high jumps and quarter-mile runs; Phil Bradley, the half and quarter mile runs.

The team lacks a pole-vaulter and mile-runner in order to be complete in all the track events.

Two men may yet show up well enough in the events to justify being placed on the team. All the men are training hard and it is expected that they will be in the best of condition by May 2, the date set for having. Manager North expects to leave for the East on Thursday to complete arrangements for the oncoming team.

A Residence Burned.

The fine two-story residence of Dr. Van Meter, at the corner of Ashby and Shattuck avenues, was burned to the ground early yesterday morning. Mrs. Van Meter and Mrs. Kroney, who were sleeping in the house at the time of the fire, barely escaped with their lives. It would have been an easy matter to save the house and its contents from destruction had a good water supply been at hand.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The house alone was insured for $3000, besides a large amount on the furniture.

Notes.

The U. C. Glee Club will give a concert this afternoon in the assembly-room of the university for the benefit of the track team which will go East.

Dr. George D. Herron of Iowa University will lecture to the Berkeley students this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Stiles Hall.

ALAMEDA.

Alameda County's constables will be expected to put up $5000 to contest the new fee bill. An Alameda County officer has been chosen to open the battle by refusing to turn over the fees as provided by the law. Arthur Rodgers, a San Francisco attorney, has consented to join with ex-Supreme Justice of the Supreme Court Van R. Paterson in the proposed test proceedings.

Death From Consumption.

G. A. Anderson died Sunday afternoon from pulmonary hemorrhage at the residence of his parents on Sherman street. Deceased was a member of Alameda Parlor, N. S. G. W., and was 22 years of age. He had been a sufferer for some months. A few years ago he went with companions on a camping trip to the Yosemite. Their blankets were stolen and Anderson slept in the open air without any covering, contracting a disease which settled on his lungs and caused his death.

Refuses to Dismiss.

Annie Francis, who ran away from her home last Friday morning with a young man named Colwell, was arraigned before Justice Morris yesterday on a charge of vagrancy sworn to by her father. It is stated that the reason why the girl left home is that she was not treated very well and the father is willing to drop the matter. The Justice will not be trifled with and will not dismiss the case unless his fees are paid. Trial was continued until next Saturday afternoon.

Native Daughters to Parade.

Grand Marshal T. P. Robinson has made the necessary arrangements for the members of Alameda Parlor of Native Daughters to take part in the parade to-day in Oakland. It will be the only parlor of Native Daughters in the parade. The members will ride in a florat float ahead of the Native Sons and will furnish each of the delegates with a boutonniere.

Public Highway Deeded.

Mrs. Emilie G. Cohen has deeded to the city as a public highway a tract of land seventy feet wide from Versailles avenue easterly to the line dividing her lands from those owned by Pedar Sather for the sum of $1624. The deed is subject to the right of way granted for the electric railroad.

The Alamedans Won.

Ten men of the military company defeated a like number from the university battalion in the rifle match Sunday by a score of 393 to 381. Private Cleveland, one of the crack shots of the company, was absent, and his substitute, Ross, surprised himself and all others by making the highest score in the team—41 points.

PECULIAR PREDICAMENT.

An Operatic Singer Who Is a Martyr to Jealousy and Hate.

C. B. Fulton, Alias Whitney, Arrested on Four Charges of Grand Larceny.

C. B. Fulton, alias Frank Whitney, an operatic singer, wants it understood that he is the victim of one woman's jealousy and of another woman's hate.

He was arrested a few days ago on four charges of grand larceny, the complaining witness being Mrs. A. S. Berger, 7 Lilac avenue. He roomed in the house of Mrs. Berger and was on very intimate terms with the family, so much so that Berger commenced a suit for divorce against his wife, which was afterward withdrawn.

Fulton, since 1886, has known Mrs. Laura de Hull, who has a breach of promise suit pending in the Fresno courts against Lucius Edgerly, a raisin-grower, in which she claims $50,000 damages. Fulton alleges that Mrs. de Hull is at the bottom of his troubles.

When the cases against him were called in Judge Low's court yesterday he recounted a portion of Mrs. de Hull's past history. He said she was connected with the famous Crouch murder case in Michigan, and that she had been the keeper of houses of ill fame in Detroit, Mich., and in Indianapolis, Ind.

For some years he lost trace of her till on last Thanksgiving day while he was walking along Market street with Mrs. Berger he met her face to face. She spoke to him, and he introduced her to Mrs. Berger. Since then she has been poisoning Mrs. Berger's mind against him, which had led to his arrest.

Knowing Mrs. de Hull's past history, Edgerly had offered him $1000 to testify in his favor in the breach-of-promise suit, and Mrs. de Hull having ascertained that fact had offered him $250 cash down to go to New York, and $750 more after she procured a verdict in her favor.

He blamed Mrs. de Hull for instigating the Bergers to have him arrested and for keeping them from withdrawing the charges.

After hearing the evidence the Judge reduced the charges to petty larceny. Fulton was then advised that if he would plead guilty to one charge the other three would be withdrawn. He did so, but there was no disposition shown to withdraw the other three charges. The Judge did not like the aspect of the case and continued the further hearing till to-day.

An Accidental Death.

An inquest was held yesterday on the remains of James Madigan, a three-year-old boy who was killed by an electric car at Seventh and Mission. The verdict was that the death was accidental. The motorman was exonerated, but a suggestion was made to the effect that the company should use more effective fenders.

THE action of the San Francisco Board of Health is an unusual tribute to be paid even to an article of so high a character as the Royal Baking Powder. They say, in their judgment, "it is impossible to make a purer or stronger baking powder than the Royal."

HERRON AND SOCIALISM.

The Professor Explains His Views to Presbyterian Ministers.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A SEER.

Dr. Dille Makes Some Plain Statements About Closed Churches.

Professor Herron addressed the Presbyterian ministers yesterday morning on "Social Regeneration." Pale and ascetic-looking, the lecturer gave his remarks with such intense earnestness and conviction that those of his hearers who found something visionary in his beliefs applauded the speaker, and those among the audience who belong to Professor Herron's following grew more enthusiastic than ever over his interpretation of applied Christianity.

"The significant fact of this time is that what I should call society is under a profound conviction of sin. Society is asking what it can do to be saved; what it can do to save itself from the social ruin that threatens. The air is full of social solvents and all of them, even the wildest theories advanced, are portents of the times. We are asking for the man who shall offer us a complete social programme, but in the meantime we propose to wait, though I do not think God does, till the path is marked out for us."

The lecturer then said that in his belief no man would be likely to arise and mark out for society a new social system by which the present social evils might be suddenly swept away.

The new social temple will not be built by political hammer and saw. What we must have is a political revival of religion. This is the day when social science is a most alluring study, and yet salvation will not come through a science of society. About all that sociology is having to do with advancement is to give undue prominence to minor incidents.

Professor Herron then drew attention to the secular tendencies of the age, remarking that it was a strange thing that an atheistic condition of things should receive the support of a supreme religious conservatism, and that on the other hand every effort to put Christ into the lead should be ignored by religious conservatives.

Speaking of sociology, the study of society as a whole, Professor Herron said it was really remarkable that "the more unsolvable we make the problem, the more scientific we seem to think we are becoming." The old alchemists scarcely tried to hedge their knowledge round with more mystery than do the modern sociologists. Then he urged the study and practice of sociology from a Christian standpoint: "If the ultimate social movement falls into the hands of the anarchists or the demagogue, it is the fault of us Christians who have not been willing to give Christ his place in the social movement. It is simply ignorance to say that the teachings of Jesus are unsuitable to a system of society which he came to teach only. His teachings were not in the air, but on the earth."

The lecturer then spoke of religious movements, declaring it to be his conviction that history never repeats itself. The great reformers and prophets of the past had done their work; mankind in the present age must not sigh for their return, for they would not come. "God wants no more Elijahs nor Jeremiahs, but men, human men, without prejudice, without even what Carlisle would call 'righteous eccentricities.'"

Speaking of political reforms, Professor Herron stated that he was himself an advocate of the reform called socialistic, and he stated a few of the doctrines of that body, such as that Government, if it must bestow monopolies, should charge for them and make itself self-supporting.

"I do not call these things socialism," he said; "they are according to the teaching of our religion, and the time has gone by when we can profess Christianity and draw back when the time comes for putting them into practice."

After expressing the opinion that modern civilization was little more Christian in spirit than the civilized heathendoms of antiquity he added: "But the time is going by when we can profess Jesus in our churches and then go out into the world and be covetous and greedy. Friends, I do not believe that the devil knows better how to rule the world than God Almighty. I do not believe that the law of competition is better than the law of Christ. We are putting Christ to shame by our religious dilettantism. The question is whether the teachings of Jesus were mere mystical, impracticable teachings or whether he was honest and meant what he said. The time has come to answer this.

"When we estimate things at all we estimate them by their dollars' worth, and not rheir Christ-worth. The churches have run footraces up the fashionable avenues to get where the money was. This spirit of ours is responsible for the slums. When I get a little more money, a little more culture than the others, shall I go off into better surroundings, instead of trying to raise those around me?

"This country has toiled for wealth. We have got it, and yet it is not exaggerated to say that one-half the population of the United States is anxious where bread is to come from. You have no idea how legislation is bought and sold by this wealth. It is an awful crime for you and me to hear Christ's name and yet to be silent before these wrongs for the sake of peace in our churches, or anywhere else."

Dr. Herron's remarks were not discussed by the body of ministers present, but a rising vote of thanks was passed.

The Congregational Club was addressed yesterday afternoon by Dr. McLean of Oakland on "The Province of the Seer." Although Professor Herron's name was not mentioned by the doctor it was an understood thing among the hearers that the paper was in a sense a justification of the professor of applied Christianity.

Dr. McLean drew attention to the statement in Proverbs that "when there is no vision the people perish," and he added that half the people had better die off than let the whole die, if the American nation only happened to possess one seer. "The seer is God's appointment for any age or nation. Where there is no vision the people cast off restraint, as they are doing today. It seems to me we ought to reflect before we cast stones at any one who is a half-accredited seer."

Dr. McLean described a seer as a mixture of poet and student, one who having eyes could use them to see more than most men, and he urged his hearers to remember that the seer's ways were ways of quiet. In the discussion which followed most of the hearers were heartily in accord with the paper. Rev. E. Willit thought, however, that people should be careful to distinguish between fake and true seers. Dr. Brown seemed also to doubt a seer being in their midst, and Chaplain Rowell said some so-called seers were not much better endowed mentally than "Lewis the Light."

Rev. H. H. Rominger tried to express his admiration of Professor Herron, whom he classed with John Burns, the English labor agitator, and Professor Ealy, but his remarks were declared out of order.

Dr. Dille spoke before the Methodists yesterday on "The Ideal Modern Church." He began his address by drawing attention to the enormous growth of modern cities, and to the fact that modern populations are becoming more and more centered in cities.

"The great problems of the present and future," he said, "then, are city problems. The city holds the casting-ballot of civilization. The party and the church that holds the key to the city has the country and the future at its command. Now I undertake to say that Protestantism is not solving the problem of our cities. In New York and San Francisco to-day there are fewer church members and churches in proportion to the population than there were thirty years ago."

The speaker went on to say that Methodism was not being fairly tried in the cities, and he went on to suggest some characteristics of an ideal city church; it should reach the people, both the regular church-goer and those who have lapsed. "The church must adapt itself to the non-church-goer. That church will be attractive—that is, a ministering church. It should allow no philanthrophic or fraternal or charitable institution to point to its closed doors and folded hands and say: 'We are doing more than you to relieve the sick, to aid the widow and the fatherless.'"

The modern church with its rented pews and its doors closed six days in the week is not like the primitive church which was organized for the daily ministration; nor the church of prophecy, of which it is said "its gates shall not be shut day nor night." The ideal church will keep close to the people; it will be a strong church; let the stream of weary sin-burdened humanity have a chance to flow through it all week.

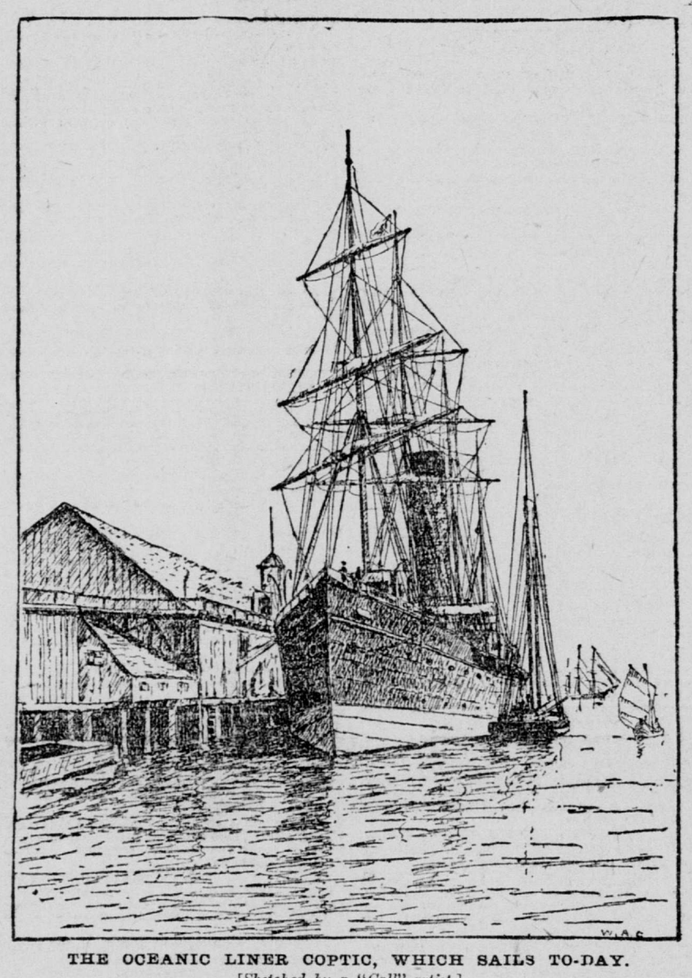

The speaker concluded by urging that churches be made great musical and literary circles, making all the light of modern thought and secular science gather round the cross of Christ.

THE OCEANIC LINER COPTIC

She Visited This Port Eight Years Ago as a Pacific Mail Boat.

Will Take the Place of the Oceanic, Now Refitting in England.

To-day at 3 o'clock P. M. the Oceanic steamship Coptic, Captain Lindsay, sails for China and Japan via Honolulu. About eight years ago she visited this port as a Pacific Mail steamer, since which time she has been running on the Atlantic as a White Star boat.

THE OCEANIC LINER COPTIC, WHICH SAILS TO-DAY.
[Sketched by a "Call" artist.]

The Coptic is a steel four-masted bark-rigged steamer, and is of 4448 tons burden, and was built in 1881 at the shipyard of Harland & Wolf, Belfast, Ireland. Her length is 430.2 feet, breadth 42.2 and depth 24.2 feet.

She has been refitted throughout to take the place of the Oceanic, which has returned to England to be overhauled.

Like all English vessels of her class she is roomy in her passenger accommodations and splendidly furnished through and through with rich and modern conveniences.

POLICE COURT CLERKS.

They Will Obey the Ordinance Regarding the Hours for Accepting Bonds.

The Board of Supervisors on May 31, 1891, adopted order 2629, which reads as follows:

The clerks of the police courts shall be in attendance in their respective courtrooms or offices attached thereto from 5 A. M. until 4 P. M. every day in the week, Sundays and holidays excepted, to perform the duties imposed and as required by law. The clerks of the police courts shall also alternate so that one clerk in turn shall be in attendance at the courtroom or office attached thereto every evening in the week from 7:30 to 10 o'clock, and on Sundays and holidays from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M. for the purpose of taking bail bonds where the sufficiency and qualification of the sureties are examined into and approved.

The clerks of the police courts shall not accept sureties on bail bonds except within the places and within the time prescribed by this section.

Since the order was passed it has been honored more in the breach than in the observance. Complaints were loudly made on several occasions by attorneys and defendants that it was impossible for them to get any one to accept bonds without considerable unnecessary inconvenience, and the clerks being stirred up by these complaints obeyed the ordinance for a few weeks and then utterly ignored it.

Clerk Sullivan of Judge Low's court only learned on Sunday that such an ordinance was in force, and yesterday he notified the other clerks that he would at once carry out its provisions. He was on duty at the City Prison last night. The other clerks have agreed to take their turn.

A Good California Book.

"California; Her Industries, Attractions and Builders" is the title of a work just published by J. C. Hoag. He is an experienced writer and has been in close touch with the prominent men and industries of California for several years as a contributor to the Pacific Rural Press and publisher of the State Fair Daily and Mechanics' Fair Daily. This new publication gives a forceful idea of the State in all that its title implies and in many respects has more merit than other publications of more pretentions.

The present number is the best yet issued, and if given fair distribution in the East will be a good factor in increasing the population and showing the Golden State as it now is and what her future will be.

THE Royal Baking Powder maintains its vigorous hold on the public, and is active and aggressive against the impure and injurious baking powders palmed off on the people. In this task it is performing a good work for honest and unadulterated food products.

POLITICS IN THE HOME.

An Idea Approved by the Young Women's Suffrage Club.

THE TIMES ARE CHANGED.

Mrs. Gordon Prophesies the Adoption of the Suffrage Amendment.

"Home and Politics" was the theme that occupied the attention of the Young Women's Suffrage Club at their meeting at 909 Market street last night. Mrs. M. L. Chandler of Alameda and Mrs. Laura de Force Gordon were the main speakers. Many others volunteered.

The hall was well filled, the proportion of men present being surprisingly large. A feature of the evening was the introduction of a "suffrage" hat, of white straw, with a broad orange band. It made a striking contrast to some of the feather-burdened headgear worn by ladies not members of the club.

Mrs. Chandler was the first speaker. She explained that she was making her maiden effort as an orator, and then told modestly why she thought politics and home should be closely related.

Her chief reason was that women should understand politics in order to train their children properly. Children would grow up to be more patriotic men and women, the speaker declared, if their mothers, being well versed in the affairs of the country, were able to teach them how to nobly perform the duties of the citizen.

Mrs. Gordon referred feelingly to her experiences with Miss Susan B. Anthony at the National Democratic and Republican conventions of 1870, when woman's rights were just beginning to form a factor in politics.

"Times have changed since then," said she. "It does not now require the same courage to say that you believe in the suffrage for women. Then it was as much as a young girl's reputation was worth to make that declaration. Now, when I look around at these intelligent, handsome young women," and the speaker indicated the members of the club by a sweep of her hand, "I realize that when we of the past generation lay aside our work it will be taken up by strong and noble successors, well fitted to bring it to a successful issue."

Mrs. Gordon declared that she was convinced that the great mass of men believed in allowing women to vote.

Mrs. Gordon then made an eloquent exposition of the doctrine of the suffragists. She was followed by Emily Pitt-Stevens, Mrs. Gregory and other ladies. A number of gentlemen also addressed the audience.

An appeal was made for volunteers willing to devote time to the sale of tickets for a benefit for Mrs. Gordon to be given at the same hall Monday evening, May 5. The request was received with enthusiastic applause, and a large number of ladies and gentlemen came forward to get tickets.

The speeches of the evening were preceded by an interesting programme. It was as follows: Piano solo, Mrs. Cook; recitation, Miss Margurite Saxton; recitation, Miss Lucille Meiggs; soprano solo, Mrs. Bessie R. Dibble.

COTTAGES ON THE WATER.

A Novel Scheme to Rent Summer Homes for Outings.

A company has been organized in New York to "build, rent and operate house-boats," says Kate Field's Washington. "I foresee for this enterprising concern a very large revenue, as the people who have hitherto rented summer cottages will hail with joy a scheme that promises freedom from several of the worst features of the cottage system, while the landlords—if the owners of the boats can be so called—will enjoy, on their part, exemption from a few of the ordinary summer tenant's most annoying complaints. If the location seems malarious, or the neighbors are too noisy, it is left with the tenant himself to hire a tugboat and be moved. No houseboater could be so unreasonable as to insist upon water through the house when there is water all around it, and the vexed question of the proper condition of the cellar would be settled by the absence of that bone of contention. On the part of the occupants there will be still greater advantages. Unwelcome guests can be avoided by the simple expediment of anchoring a little further from shore. The head of the house can be sure that the family are all in by securing the small boat with a padlock, and ennui can always be kept at bay by the prospect of moving or the thought of a few of the accidents which might happen."

THE true test of a baking powder is well known to every housekeeper. It is to try it in making bread, cake, etc., and we are of the opinion that it will be impossible to remove from the minds of our housewives the conviction long ago formed from the application of this practical test, that the Royal does make the best, the most, and the most wholesome.

AS TOLD OF JENNY LIND.

Years Ago When Americans Went Wild Over the Songstress.

HER RECEPTION IN NEW YORK.

Webster, Carried Away by Her Singing, Joins in the Chorus of "Hail, Columbia."

The tour of Jenny Lind through America stands out still as the great musical event in the life of the nation. Other songbirds have come and gone; they have delighted audiences and reaped rich returns in the way of applause and money. But none of them have ever rivaled Jenny Lind in the hearts of the people as they could not rival her in song. She was the queen of hearts as well as the queen of song. More than a generation has passed since she captured all America by her singing and her pure, womanly life, yet none who heard or saw her have ever forgotten the emotions of that hour. She was triumphantly above all others the human nightingale, warbling notes that rivaled those of her feathered namesake (says the Star).

She had experienced a wonderful European career, such as no other had won, before she was heard on the American shores. She had sung before immense audiences in every capital of Europe, and before all of the crowned heads. She had been the welcome and honored guest of the highest and best in all the countries of the Continent, and was the idol of the people. Her fame had leaped the ocean and extended to America.

An English actor or two had made professional tours through this country, and had been moderately successful, but no singer of great note had ever crossed the Atlantic to try her powers on these shores. She was the pioneer in that line, and although she had been followed by other birds of song, Jenny Lind still stands without a rival in this country.

It was a daring venture for Mr. Barnum to attempt to introduce this new and untried feature in entertaining American audiences, and no one of less daring spirit, or with less faith in his own powers, would have undertaken it. He made to her what was then a fabulous offer for a series of 100 concerts. It must be remembered that the population of the country was less than one-half what it is now, and its wealth was not one-tenth as great. Washington was hardly more than a straggling village, and Chicago was almost wholly unknown. There were scarcely a dozen cities where it was thought possible that paying audiences could be obtained. Yet she carried away with her as her share of the proceeds of the ninety-five concerts a very large fortune, after giving away more than $50,000 to various charities.

It was in August, 1850, that the wonderful singer sailed from Liverpool for New York. Sunday, September 1, the steamer reached New York, where every preparation had been made to receive her. Thousands of persons crowded the shipping and piers as the Atlantic steamed up to her landing place while other thousands were crowded on the wharf. A bower of green trees, decorated with flags, and two triumphant arches were arranged upon the wharf. As she appeared on the deck of the steamer, leaning upon the arm of Mr. Barnum, a great shout of welcome went up from the thousands who had been standing there for hours waiting to get a glimpse of her.

Never before had there been such enthusiasm in New York. The day was forgotten, and within a few minutes of her arrival at the hotel not less than 10,000 persons had gathered around the entrance. At midnight she was serenaded by one of the musical societies of the city, numbering on the occasion more than 200 singers. At least 20,000 persons were present. The musicians had been escorted to the hotel by 300 uniformed firemen, bearing torches. The calls for the songstress were so vehement that Mr. Barnum was compelled to lead her out on the balcony, when the cheering lasted several minutes.

The enthusiasm continued unabated for several weeks. She was the idol of society and her rooms at the hotel were thronged with visitors, including all those prominent in church and state, and the carriages of the leaders of Gotham society were seen in front of the hotel during all fashionable hours. When her carriage appeared at the door it was immediately surrounded by an enthusiastic crowd.

The first concert was to take place at Castle Garden on the evening of September 11. Great preparations had been made for this first appearance. The great parterre and gallery of Castle Garden were divided off by imaginary lines into four compartments, each of which was designed by lamps of a peculiar color. The tickets were printed in colors corresponding to those of the lamps, thus designating the position of the seat of the holder. One hundred ushers wearing appropriate colors were in attendance.

When the singer was led down to the footlights the entire audience arose and received her with shouts of applause and the waving of hats and handkerchiefs and the casting of bouquets on the stage. It was by far the largest audience that had ever greeted her, and the enthusiasm agitated her at first so that it was with difficulty that she uttered the first notes, but in a moment she recovered herself, and then her triumph was complete.

The enthusiasm had been wrought up to the highest pitch, but the wonderful musical powers of the singer were far beyond anything ever before heard, and many times the singing was lost in a spontaneous outburst of applause. A voice so rich, so full, so clear and so sweetly musical had not been dreamed of. At the conclusion of the concert she was several times called before the curtain, the applause lasting for several minutes on each occasion. At last the audience called for Mr. Barnum, who appeared and announced that the entire proceeds of the concert would be devoted to charitable objects. On this announcement the audience went wild with its cheering.

From New York she went to Boston, Philadelphia, Providence, Baltimore, Washington, and all the principal cities of the country, meeting with the same wonderful success. Wherever she appeared she was feted and honored. In this city President Fillmore called upon her at her hotel and entertained her one evening at the White House. While there all the prominent men of the country then in the city, including Mr. Webster, Mr. Clay, Mr. Crittenden, General Cass and Colonel Benton called upon her. Two or three very amusing things occurred during the two concerts she gave in this city. Both of the concerts were attended by the President and his family and by every member of the Cabinet.

At the first concert, while the overture was being played by the orchestra, the venerable Henry Clay, feeble with age and increasing infirmities, entered the door. A murmur of applause greeted his appearance, but it was hushed and the number completed by the orchestra. On its completion the audience broke into a wild cheer. The leader of the orchestra did not notice the thin and feeble figure of the popular idol slowly making his way to his seat, and took the applause as a tribute to his orchestra, and began bowing right and left. He soon discovered that the eyes of the people were all turned in one direction, and that was not toward him. About that time some one shouted out: "Three cheers for Harry Clay!" and they were given with a will, as the abashed orchestra leader sank into his chair.

The next evening several of the members of the Cabinet were detained by a dinner given by the Russian Minister, and it was late before they made their appearance. Soon after they had settled in their seats the second part of the concert was opened by Jenny Lind singing "Hail Columbia." At the close of the first verse Mr. Webster's enthusiasm and patriotism got the best of him and he rose to his feet and joined his deep, bass voice with the birdlike tones of the nightingale in singing the chorus.

Mrs. Webster, who sat immediately behind him, tried in vain to get him to sit down, but the great master of parliamentary oratory stood like a Greek god and joined in the chorus to each verse, to the great delight of both Jenny Lind and the audience. At the close of the air Mr. Webster, hat in hand, made her a bow such as even Chesterfield could not have surpassed. The singer in return courtesied to the floor. The audience broke forth in vociferous applause, when Webster again bowed to the singer on the stage, who again returned it with a deeper courtesy and the house again applauded. This was repeated several times.

Her charity was unbounded, and she gave away large sums to one charity or another. No one from her native Sweden called upon her without receiving the most friendly welcome. It was told of her that while in Boston a poor Swedish girl, a domestic in a family living in one of the suburbs, called on her. The divine Jenny welcomed her and detained her for several hours, and in the evening took her to the concert in her own carriage and after the concert was over sent her home in the carriage.

The desire of all classes to hear her sing is best illustrated by a story told of one of her concerts in Boston. A girl approached the ticket window, and laying down $3, the price of a ticket, said: "There goes half a month's earnings, but I am determined to hear Jenny Lind sing." Jenny's secretary was in the ticket office at the time, and on going to the room of the singer told her the incident. She immediately asked him if he would know the girl again, and on being assured that he would, gave him a $20 gold coin, and told him to seek her out and give it to her with her compliments.

JEWELL STOLE THE SECRET.

How a Tanner Profited by a Ministerial Appointment.

Jewell, like all men brought up to learn a trade, and who afterward gained prominence in affairs, made now and then unconscious revelations of his early training. During one of the campaigns in which he was engaged he found himself at a country hotel where the table was bounteous, but the rooms few and small. It was necessary, in order that the whole party might be housed, for each bed to be occupied by two persons. The Governor's roommate was a young politician, who could not hide his surprise when the Governor just before retiring rolled the sleeves of his nightshirt even as far up as his shoulders, and then bathed his arms in cold water, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

"You wonder why I do this," said the Governor. "Well, I couldn't sleep unless I did. When I was a youngster learning the tanner's trade I used to have my arms in the vats all day long, and at night my skin would smart as though I had been stung by nettles. I could not bear to have any cloth touch them. So I got the habit of rolling my shirt sleeves as far as I could, and thus I have slept ever since."

When Jewell was Minister to Russia he played a Yankee trick upon the Russians, the benefits of which we are reaping even to this day in this country. Like every other American tanner, he had long wanted to know the secret of the process of manufacturing Russian leather. He had experimented with a few dollars himself, only to learn that the secret was not to be discovered.

When at the court of St. Petersburg he professed great interest in Russian industries and was shown through many of the manufactories there. By and by there came an opportunity to go through a factory where Russian leather was manufactured. Jewell was all smiles and courtesies and seemed profoundly interested in those things which really did not interest him and wholly blind to the very things he went to that place to see. But he was not so blind as they thought. When he came out of that factory he had discovered, as he believed, the process, and he brought the discovery back to this country with him, so that by and by the United States began to turn out a very good article of leather resembling the Russian product.

Told One Too Many.

"It's a wonder to me," said the dear old lady from the country as she stood waiting on the crossing, "that them electric-cars don't run off the track sometimes."

"They do, ma'am," said the small boy at her elbow, who saw his opportunity.

"Mercy me, child, and how do the people keep from getting run over?"

"They don't, ma'am. When one o' them cars goes gee-whiz off the tracks there ain't time for ennybody to get out of the way."

"La, sakes, child! Let me get up on them steps. Now you are telling me the truth?"

"S'hope to die, ma'am! But you ain't any safer on them steps than out in the street. When they take a notion them cars can climb any steps in this town. Honest Injun, ma'am," says the Detroit Free Press.

The old lady turned and looked at the boy. She saw a frank face, on the surface of which a few freckels floated, mild blue eyes, filled with innocence, and just a twinkle of mischief. She had seen boys before and knew the trade-mark. But before she had time to apply her clubbed umbrella the urchin was gyrating down the street. He had seen that expression on a woman's face before.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ALFRED R. WATSON, WILLIAM ROE, PETER DOE, JOHN FIRST, JANE FOE and MARY COE:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage, described in the complaint and executed by the said ALFRED R. WATSON, on the 2d day of June, 1894, to secure the payment of a certain promissory note made by said Watson to plaintiff on said 2d day of June, 1894, for $20,000, described in the complaint herein, and which, by non-payment of interest, has become due, no part of which said note has been paid, and the whole thereof, together with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from the 2d day of June, 1894, is due and unpaid; also for 5 per cent of the amount found due plaintiff, for his counsel fees in this action; also for the sum of $107.50 paid for insurance, and $5 paid for searching the title to the mortgaged premises subsequent to the execution of said mortgage. That the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds thereof applied to the payment of the principal and interest of said note, moneys expended by plaintiff as aforesaid, counsel fees, and costs of suit; and in case such proceeds are not sufficient to pay the same, then that judgment be docketed against said ALFRED R. WATSON for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through, or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein. For further particulars reference to said complaint is hereby made.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

IS BLACK FOR BROWN

Harbor Commissioners Call the Architect to Account.

A NEW LEAF FOR A. PAGE.

Specifications Which Were Paid for Were Drawn by Engineer Holmes.

A NEW INVESTIGATION AGENT.

The Designer of the Ferry Depot Did Not Fill His Contract With the State.

While the experts are at work on the ferry foundation and the character of C. J. Stilwell, the detective, is being overhauled by the contractors, and Engineer Holmes is building up a defense of his work on the water front, the Harbor Commissioners, in the person of President E. L. Colnon, are seeking for light on an important subject. The onus of the so-called investigation up to date has been unloaded on Howard C. Holmes, engineer of the board. Mr. Holmes has defended the work done on the depot foundation as if he were entirely responsible for it all, but when nailed down to an explanation of the drawings he has admitted that A. Page Brown was the father of the design. Every contractor who figured on the foundation and the superstructure knew this, as did everybody who is familiar with the workings of the water front; but in the light of the investigation which has been going on, the fact, if not lost sight of entirely, was dimly obscured.

The Harbor Commissioners have been quietly working in the matter for the past few days, and they have realized that A. Page Brown, architect, has drawn nearly $20,000, and the board wants to know for what. In an attempt to enlighten the board Mr. Colnon addressed the following letter to the Commissioners' attorney on Saturday:

San Francisco, April 20, 1895.

Hon. T. L. Ford, attorney for the Board of State Harbor Commissioners—Dear Sir: You will please examine the inclosed contract between the Board of State Harbor Commissioners and A. Page Brown, architect for the designing and construction of the Union Depot and Ferry-house at the foot of Market street, and report to this board in writing on the following points:

Whether a fair construction of the language of the contract, such as would be put upon it by a court of justice, makes it the duty of the said architect to superintend the construction of the foundations for said Union Depot and Ferry-house, and to report to this board the manner in which the work is being done.

Second, If such be the plain duty of the architect under the contract, and this board can show that he never performed the same, what legal steps are necessary to be taken to protect the interests of the State against his further negligence, or to recover damages for that which has already occured.

Your earliest attention is solicited to this matter, as it is of much importance. Very truly yours, E. L. Colnon,
President of Board of State Harbor Commissioners.

In the contract of Brown with the Board of Harbor Commissioners it is set forth that Brown was to examine and supervise the work upon said depot at all times during its progress. It is now claimed that Mr. Brown has never done this. According to the terms of the contract he was to report to the board as to the condition and progress of the work, but, so far as the records of the board show, he has never made a single statement. He was also to draft the specifications for the work on the foundation and for the superstructure, but the specifications are the work of Howard Holmes. Mr. Brown was to pay for any engineering work which it would be necessary to have done in connection with the contract. All the engineering work was done by Mr. Holmes, but there is no item of this class of labor in any of Mr. Brown's estimates of the value of his own work.

All the bills of Architect Brown for work done on the ferry foundation have been passed upon by the State Board of Examiners. One item was $12,500 for work done on the superstructure, and another was for $6668 11 for work done on the ferry foundation. A strange thing in connection with both of these items is that the work on the foundation is not yet finished, and work on the depot itself has not yet been commenced. These allowances to Brown were made by the old Board of Examiners, and the architect has now claims aggregating nearly $3000 before the board composed of Governor Budd, Attorney-General Fitzgerald and Secretary of State Brown. It is stated on good authority that the claims of Mr. Brown will not be allowed by the board on the ground that he has violated his contract.

Much has been said about that contract, but the contract itself, for some reason, has never been made public. It was made when Alexander, Bassett and Brown were the Harbor Commissioners, and was continued until the present board came into power. The contract reads as follows:

This agreement made and entered into at the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, this sixth day of October, 1892, between Charles F. Bassett, Charles O. Alexander and William H. Brown, in their official capacity as members of and constituting the Board of Harbor Commissioners, the first parties, and A. Page Brown, the second party, all of the said city, county and State.

Witnesseth, That whereas the first parties are about to commence the erection of a passenger and ferry depot at the foot of Market street, in the said city and county, and to that end are anxious to employ the second party as architect for the purpose of preparing drawings, plans and specifications for said depot, and supervising the work upon the same as it progresses; and whereas, the second party is ready and willing to be so employed as architect for said depot by the first parties upon the terms and conditions herein appearing.

Now, therefore, it is agreed and understood by and between the parties as follows:

The first parties agree to employ and do by these present hereby employ the second party, and the second party hereby accept such employment, as the architect of the Board of State Harbor Commissioners for the purpose of preparing plans, drawings and specifications of said depot, submitting the same to said board for its approval, and examining and supervising the work upon said depot at all times during its progress.

The second party shall forthwith, or as soon as requested by the first parties, proceed to prepare drawings, plans and specifications, and within a reasonable time thereafter submit the same to the first parties for their approval. Said drawings, plans and specifications shall embody and cover the architectural and constructional details in full for a depot for ferry, freight and passenger service, as heretofore referred to. The said depot building shall be designed generally after such suggestions as may be made by the first parties, or as may meet their approval, and all drawings shall be sufficiently complete in every respect to enable contractors to bid for the same and construct the building or any portion thereof pursuant to the working plans as so prepared.

The second party agrees to prepare such plans, designs, drawings and specifications relating to said depot as may be requested by the said board, and to vary, modify or prepare new plans as may for any cause be required of him, said plans to include both the superstructure of said building and the piers, walls and foundations for the same. Said building is to be, if possible, designed so that in the opinion of the second party the contract price for constructing the same shall not in the aggregate exceed the sum of $500,000 for such parts of the work as may be above the foundation or grade level.

When, however, advertisements are duly published as required by law for the letting of contract for the whole or any part of said depot, in the event that the aggregate contract price exceeds for the whole work the sum of $500,000, then upon request of said board, and at their election, the second party shall forthwith prepare and submit new plans, drawings and specifications, complete in all details, which shall in their opinion so reduce the cost of the work that the same shall be constructed by contract at a price not to exceed in the aggregate the said sum of $500,000.

The second party further binds and obligates himself to continue to change or modify the original plans, or to substitute new ones, as often as requested by said board, until the latter are satisfied with the contract price, or until the said price (for all work above the foundation or grade level) shall in the aggregate fall within the said sum of $500,000. When the said plans, drawings and specifications, upon approval by the board, shall finally, after advertisements duly published, be adopted by them as a basis for the contract for the erection of the said depot, then the second party obligates himself to supervise the work as it progresses at all times, and to report to the board the manner in which the same is done.

In addition to this the second party shall render all such services as are generally required on buildings, and the second party shall be in all manner subject to the control of the chief engineer of the board, acting under its direction.

The second party further agrees to draft and submit to the board for its approval new or modified plans upon the request of the board, even if their plans have been finally adopted, where, after the contract has been let or the work partially completed, it shall be deemed by the board proper or necessary to make additions to or changes in the original work.

All engineering work involved in the actual building and construction of said proposed depot and its foundations shall be paid for by said parties of the first part to or through such contractors or engineers as they shall employ at their own cost and expense; but said party of the second part shall pay for at his own expense any engineering work or services or any engineer employed by him in the computations and calculations involved in the preparation by him of the said plans and drawings for the said building.

As a compensation for his said services and for such duties as the said party of the second part may properly discharge as the architect for the drawing of the plans and for the supervision and construction of said depot and its foundation, he shall be entitled to charge and shall receive from said board, for his services in connection with the foundations of said building, a sum equal to 2½ per cent upon the contract price of said foundation (or upon the cost of said foundations, in case the same shall be built otherwise than by contract), and for his services in connection with the superstructure of said depot a sum equal to 5 per cent upon the contract price of said superstructure (or upon the cost of said superstructure in case the same is built otherwise than by contract), which commissions and compensation shall be payable to said party of the second part upon the following contingencies and in the following times and manners, to wit:

1. If the plans prepared by said party of the second part for said work shall be approved, and the construction or work thereunder shall be begun within twelve months from date hereof, then one-half part of said commissions (to wit: one and one-quarter per cent of the price or cost of said foundations and two and one-half per cent of the price or cost of the said superstructure) shall be deemed due to said party of the second part at the commencement of said work, and shall be paid by said parties of the first part at the time of commencement of said work, or prior thereto, at the option of the said parties of the first part; and the balance of said commissions, namely, the other one-half thereof, shall thereafter and from time to time be paid to said party of the second part as the said work progresses, and in proportion as certificates are issued to the contractors or builders thereof for their payments on account.

2. In case the said parties of the first part shall not commence the actual work of construction of said building and foundations, pursuant to said plans to be prepared by said party of the second part, within twelve months from date thereof, then and at the expiration of said twelve months there shall be paid to said party of the second part, on account of the commissions herein above provided for, a sum equal to one and a quarter (1¼) per cent of the estimated cost of the said foundations of said building (as so drawn and planned by him), and two and a half per cent of the estimated cost of the superstructure of said building; but, if the estimated cost of such superstructure shall exceed the sum of $500,000, the amount to be paid to said party of the second part at the end of said twelve months, on account of his commissions upon the said superstructure, shall be limited to a sum equal to 2½ per cent on $500,000; and, in the case provided for in this paragraph, whenever said parties of the first part shall, after the expiration of said twelve months from date hereof, commence the actual construction of the foundation or superstructure of said building, pursuant to the plans prepared for them by said party of the second part, the balance of the total fees and commissions hereinabove provided for to be paid to said party of the second part, less the sum which shall theretofore have been paid on account as aforesaid, at the expiration of said twelve months, shall be thereafter paid to him from time to time in proportion as said work of construction progresses and as certificates are issued to the contractor or builders thereof for their payment on account.

3. In the event that the said party of the second part shall, from any other cause than the abandonment by him of said work without good cause, cease to be the architect of the said board for the completion of the work contemplated, then he shall be entitled to charge and shall receive from said board for his services hereunder, over and above such sum as shall have theretofore become due and payable to him under the foregoing provisions hereof, a sum equal to —— per cent of the contract price or estimated cost of said building and foundations, or, in lieu thereof, and at the election of the said parties of the first part, such further sum as would then be due and payable to him under and pursuant to the schedule of charges adopted by the American Institute of Architects, as set forth and defined in the memorandum hereto annexed, marked exhibit A, which is hereby referred to and made a part hereof.

When estimates are made by the said party of the second part they shall first be submitted to the chief engineer of the said party of the first part for his approval, and in the event of a difference of opinion between the said second party and said engineer the decision of the said party of the first part upon the questions involved in such difference shall be final and conclusive.

It is understood that all the drawings, plans and specifications shall be prepared by said party of the second part at his own office and at his sole expense for clerical work and drawings.

In witness whereof the said Commissioners have hereunto set their hands and the official seal of the board, attested by the signature of their secretary; and the party of the second part has set his hand the day and year first above written.

A. Page Brown.

When there was any glory to be had out of the ferry foundation, the bridge and the union depot A. Page Brown was very largely in evidence. When there was any doubt as to the stability of the foundation or the quality of the concrete A. Page Brown dropped out of sight and shoved forward Engineer Holmes. Mr. Brown was liberal with his name when the design was to be published, as the publications will show, but when the breath of scandal fanned the foundation he was again swallowed in a mist and Holmes had to bear the brunt of the investigation. Now there is an investigation in progress by Professors Soule and Marx, the recognized authorities of the State, and the president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners proposes that the architect shall be heard from.

"Mr. Brown has clearly violated his contract," said President Colnon yesterday afternoon. "The contract in the first place was drawn clearly in his favor and had he lived by his terms he would have been well enough compensated, but he has not even had the common decency to follow out its conditions. He was to have drawn up the specifications, but it is shown that Engineer Holmes did this work. Mr. Brown was to supervise the work on the foundations, but Inspectors Klein and Cheeseman were here to-day and both said that they only saw Brown once on the work to know him. When he did appear on the work he had to be introduced by another party to the inspectors. Mr. Holmes, the engineer, has never seen him on the work in the character of overseer, and it is a matter of record that he has never made a report to this board, and the only time he has ever appeared before the Commissioners is when he was sent for.

"When Professors Soule and Marx were appointed as the Commissioners' experts they came on to the investigation groping in the dark. It was the place of Mr. Brown to come forward and supply these gentlemen with all the data in his possession to assist them in their work. But he did not even offer a single suggestion, and they had to go to Engineer Holmes to get a start on their investigation."

When Brown signed the contract with the Board of Harbor Commissioners he named as his bondsmen Oscar Lewis and J. C. Roberts. These gentlemen qualified in the sum of $15,000, and they may be called upon to make good the amount which the architect has drawn down for work, which, to say the least, has been poorly done.

The health authorities of a number of States have recently made exhaustive examinations of the baking powders with the uniform result of finding the Royal superior to all others.

NATIVE SONS IN CHARGE.

The Grand Parlor Given the Freedom of the City of Oakland.

FIRST DAY OF THE SESSION.

Skirmishes on Some of the Most Important Issues to Be Decided.

There was no lack of evidence in Oakland, at least in the uptown district yesterday, that some event out of the ordinary was on the tapis, and the Native Sons had as good cause to be proud of the reception tendered them as Oakland had to be of the cordiality and generous character of its manifestation of welcome. On every hand the eye met streams of banners, artistically arranged flags and shields, or bunting draped in graceful folds. The occasion of all this was the eighteenth annual convention of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Delegates and their friends began to arrive Sunday evening and last evening the visitors, including delegates, numbered between four and five thousand. Well sprinkled among these were seen badges of the Grand Parlor delegates.

MAYOR DAVIE DELIVERING THE "KEY TO THE GATE OF THE ATHENS OF THE PACIFIC" TO GRAND PRESIDENT JO D. SPROUL, N. S. G. W.

While headquarters have been regularly established at the Galindo Hotel, the registers at all the other Oakland caravansaries are well filled.

In honor of the visit of the Grand Parlor Mayor John L. Davie has issued the following proclamation or message:

To the people of the city of Oakland: During this week the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West holds its sessions in this city, and it devolves upon every citizen to exhibit that spirit of hospitality which is the proud boast of every California community.

The order represents those high attributes of fraternity and fosters a State pride that is the foundation upon which all commonwealths are based and built. It stands for moral and intellectual advancement and its bonds of fraternity extend to all parts of this great State and bring in close union all sections and political divisions. It is composed of those whose vast influence is cast in the direction of social and industrial progress and whose watchword is the advancement of the great State which gave them birth.

When we look about and consider the intense civic pride of the New Yorker, the Ohioan, the Virginian, the Vermonter and the Texan in their respective commonwealths, we can then readily appreciate the power that has made those States.

It is the great propelling force that insures honest and faithful administration of government and upright citizenship.

Born on the soil, the members of this order, too, have a warm place in the hearts of every citizen of the State. They revive the memories of the State's past glories, they are the motive force of the present and they are the foundation upon which the hopes for a bright and proud future are erected.

A Californian is welcome everywhere, and let it not be said that they are least welcome at home. Let the people of Oakland extend a generous and free-handed hospitality to the officers, delegates and members of this great order. Let their visit here be made one of interest and pleasure, so that their memories will long retain the kindest and pleasantest recollections of Oakland and of Oakland's people.

Shortly before noon the Grand Parlor was called to order by Grand President J. D. Sproul. All the grand officers were present except Grand Lecturer Henry C. Gesford and Grand Trustee E. W. Frost. Grand President Sproul appointed George B. Lovdal of Sacramento to fill the vacancy created by the absence of Grand Trustee Frost.

W. W. Shannon acted as minute clerk.

C. O. Dunbar of the Santa Rosa Democrat, Charles R. Heverin of the Marin County Tocsin and E. B. Hayward of the Woodland Democrat were appointed a committee to select an official reporter and arrange for the publication of the proceedings of the Grand Parlor in an Oakland paper. They selected Delegate Heverin as the official reporter and the Oakland Times for the publication of the Grand Parlor's proceedings.

The following committee on credentials was appointed: Gustave Weiss of Martinez, J. T. Skelton Jr. of Sacramento and R. B. Tappan of Alameda.

During the recess the delegates were photographed in a body in front of the City Hall.

Upon reconvening all vacancies in the standing committees were filled by the grand president. These committees consisted as follows:

In order to save time the reports of the officers, the salient features of which were published in the Call of Sunday, were referred to the proper committees without being read.

Frank D. Ryan presented a resolution as follows:

Resolved, That a general celebration of Admission day by the order be held at Sacramento on the 9th of September, 1895.

In connection with the resolution the following telegrams were read:

Sacramento, April 23, 1895.

J. D. Sproul, Grand President N. S. G. W.: Sacramento wants you on the next Admission day and wants you badly. We offer you the State Fair, the Buffalo Brewery and the State treasury, if needed. We will guarantee you a grand time.

B. U. Steinman,
Mayor of Sacramento.

Sacramento, April 22, 1895.

Frank D. Ryan, care Grand Parlor, Oakland, Cal.: Have raised $3000 additional at the meeting of business men yesterday. Decided to make Saturday, Monday and Tuesday holidays. Boys, we guarantee the greatest celebration ever held; $8000 guaranteed in all.

J. W. Henderson Jr.,
Robert Greer,
C. T. Barton.

The signers of this telegram are members of the Sacramento parlors.

Grand Trustee Frank Mattison then moved to amend the resolution by striking out the word Sacramento and inserting Santa Cruz. In support of this a telegram from Mayor Effey was read as follows:

Santa Cruz extends the glad hand of welcome to the Native Sons and wants to see them here in September. Will do all in our power to make the occasion a big success, and would like a chance to outdo the good old times.

Another from J. R. Chace of the Pacific Ocean House was also read. It said:

Santa Cruz, April 22, 1895.

J. P. Dockery, Chairman Ninth of September Committee: Citizens have guaranteed the committee $2000, now making $5000.

Passenger Agent Goodman's letter as published in Sunday's Call was also read to the convention.

The whole matter was then made a special order for 11 A. M. Wednesday.

If the character and volume of applause that greeted the mention of these respective cities was any criterion of what the result is to be Sacramento will carry off the honor. Had a vote been taken yesterday Santa Cruz would apparently have had less than one-third of the votes of the delegates. But forty-eight hours will pass before the vote will be taken, and within that time a change of sentiment may be worked. It is expected that one of the greatest fights ever seen on the floor of the convention will evolve from this matter, as the celebration will be of more than ordinary interest. It will not only be the regular triennial Admission-day festival of the order, but will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the birth of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Next came a resolution signed by Charles M. Cassin and Edward McCabe, members of the Watsonville parlor, committing the Grand Parlor to the holding of the next convention in Watsonville. This was followed by one presented by J. B. Blake and C. A. Thompson of San Luis Obispo, resolving that the next meeting be held in that city. Their consideration was made a special order for 2 P. M. Wednesday.

It is probable that before any discussion is had as to the respective claims of these two towns, action will have been taken on the proposition of locating the Grand Parlor permanently in San Francisco. Should San Francisco fail to win a lively contest will result between the adherents of Watsonville and San Luis Obispo.

Eight o'clock was the hour set for the formal welcome of the Native Sons to the city of Oakland by Mayor Davie, but long before that hour the streets debouching into the grounds surrounding the City Hall became streams of human beings, and when the exercises began one of the largest gatherings ever assembled for an occasion of this kind filled the ample widths of Washington and Fourteenth streets and the lawns of the City Hall grounds. The number present was not less than 10,000.

After the rendering of a brief musical selection by Cassasa's Band, Chairman Rod. W. Church, chairman of the committee of arrangements, extended a welcome to the visitors on behalf of the local parlors, and then, in a few well selected words, introduced Mayor Davie, who, in his address of welcome, expressed regret that he was not a native son of California, but thought he was next door to it in being a native son of New York. "But," he continued, "I have done the best I could under the circumstances. I am the father of three native sons." The remainder of his speech was as follows:

Native Sons of the Golden West: From all over the West you have come to our city to hold your annual reunion. In the name of Oakland I welcome you; as a citizen I welcome you, and as chief executive of our municipality I bid you a hearty and earnest welcome. May your stay among us create impressions that will be reviewed and remembered with pleasure in days to come.

You are sons of argonauts—of Jasons who came in search of the golden fleece that many of them did not find; but they found a golden west, a glorious country, and they left their sons in the "garden of the world." They left them a land in which every man may sit under his own vine and fig tree—the land of the orange and the grape, the yellow wheat and the bough-laden orchard. You are truly sons of the golden west—the only golden west on the face of God's earth.

The name "Native Sons" inspires the thought of patriotism. You are the sons of patriots—of men whose adventurous spirit and tireless energy carried them over thousands of miles of deserts drear, through wild tribes of merciless Indians and across cloud-piercing ranges of mountains, white with eternal snows, to the land of the Golden West. The sons of patriots, you are patriots. Should occasion demand, no State in the Union would send forth braver and more unflinching defenders of their country's flag than would the land of the argonauts—the Golden West. While we read the pages which are the record of the brave deeds and Hercules-like labors of the argonauts, your fathers, you will feel the inspiration that makes men brave and energetic, confident of success and ever ready to struggle for the right.

Young men, the blood of the pioneers flows in your veins, the world is before you, and your home—your native land—is the Golden West. Prove yourself worthy of the heritage bequeathed by your fathers.

Once more, gentlemen, I bid you welcome to Oakland.

At this point the Mayor introduced President Jo D. Sproul of the Grand Parlor to the assemblage and presented him with the key of the city, intended to be emblematic of the whole-souled hospitality to be extended to the delegates and their friends by the entire body of residents of the city of Oakland.

The gilded emblem rested on a huge velvet cushion and measured about three feet in length, the handle being decorated with streamers of red, white and blue ribbons. On it was the following inscription: "Key to the gate of the Athens of the Pacific. Presented to California's noble sons." In handing it to President Sproul Mayor Davie expressed the wish that it would be enjoyed to the fullest extent.

President Sproul in accepting the emblem remarked jocularly that it was rather more than the usual size and would need a large keyhole. The latter, however, he continued, was a common want. It was frequently a matter of little difficulty to find one's latchkey when returning home late of an evening, but trouble often arose in finding a keyhole large enough to fit it. He then returned thanks on behalf of the Native Sons for the cordial welcome extended them by the people of Oakland and he felt confident that they would always look back to the visit of the Grand Parlor with memories filled only with pleasant thoughts.

This concluded the formal exercises and the vast throng dispersed to enjoy the music of the grand open-air concert in the City Hall park dispensed by Charles H. Casassa's orchestra of thirty instruments, the following selections being rendered:

Grand overture, "Macbeth" .... Hatton
Operatic selection, "Faust" .... Gounod
Pasquinade .... Gottschalk
Fantasie, American airs, "Lustiger Bruder" .... Kappey
Concert waltz (by request) .... Vollstedt
Overture, "William Tell" .... Rossini
Sextet, "Lucia" .... Donnizetti
Gems from the admired works of Tosti .... Godfrey
Excerpts from "A Gaiety Girl" .... Jones
March, "Great Republic" .... Thiele

Several additional arc-lights had been erected about the grounds and the scene was made nearly as light as ever.

Although the election for officers does not take place until Thursday a large portion of the time not devoted to session was consumed in discussing the chances of the candidates for the contested offices, and in canvassing for favored aspirants.

In the natural line of promotion President Jo D. Sproul will become past grand president, and Grand Vice-President Frank H. Dunn will succeed to the president's chair. For grand secretary Henry Lunstedt, the efficient incumbent, will have no opposition, nor will there be any to Grand Treasurer Henry S. Martin. Grand Lecturer Henry C. Gesford will take the chair of the grand vice-president, as being in the line of promotion to that office, but for the remaining offices there will be more or less exciting contests.

For grand lecturer there are no less than four contestants already in the field—Grand Orator Eugene F. Bert, Grand Trustee George D. Clark, James L. Gallagher and H. G. W. Dinkelspiel, all of San Francisco. The real fight, however, is said to lie between Bert and Clark. The friends of Bert base his claims on the facts that he is in direct line of promotion to that office and that Mission Parlor, of which he is a member, has never yet had a past grand president, while Pacific Parlor, to which Clark belongs, has had four in the past eight years. There will probably be more than one ballot for this office, as it requires a clear majority of all votes cast to elect.

For grand orator Grand Trustee Edwin A. Munroe and W. M. Conley of Madera will enter the field, both being strong candidates.

For grand inside sentinel J. B. Blake, the present outside sentinel, and Gus Weiss will contest.

Judging from the large number of aspirants, the office of grand outside sentinel is exceedingly popular, but this is accounted for by the fact that it is the first stepping-stone to the high honor of becoming a past grand president. The candidates for this position are J. J. Pfister of Suisun, George N. Van Orden of San Francisco, Charles O. Dunbar of Santa Rosa, Joe Norris of Centerville, John Leathers Jr. of Woodland and J. H. Peterson of Dixon.

To-day the great events, aside from the proceedings of the Grand Parlor, will be the parade, which is to start at 11 A. M., and the barbecue at Trestle Glen immediately after the disbandment of the parade.

The most striking feature of the pageant will be the float of Eureka. The lady who will represent California on this float is Mrs. Nellie Hodrein. She is of French and Spanish extraction, rather short in stature, has bright flashing eyes, masses of dark hair, and by her unusual beauty of features and form is peculiarly fitted to represent the glorious State of the Golden West.

DEFENDANTS WIN.

A Charter Party Suit Involving a Large Sum of Money Is Finally Settled.

Starr & Co. won the suit brought against them by the Golgate Ship Company in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday. In June, 1891, the Golgate was chartered in Liverpool by Starr & Co. The charter was signed by John Joyce & Co. for the ship and by Balfour, Williamson & Co. for the California firm.

The words "charterer's surveyor" were stricken out and "competent surveyor" inserted. Balfour, Williamson & Co. objected, but when it was explained that in another instance Starr & Co. had agreed to the change, they signed the charter party. The rate agreed upon was 38s 9d a ton.

When the Golgate arrived here from Newcastle, N. S. W., Starr & Co. refused to load her because they could not employ their own surveyor.

In the meantime freights dropped to 19s a ton, and the ship was loaded by some one else at that figure. The Golgate Ship Company then brought suit to recover $19,180, the amount they had lost in the transaction. In the first trial of the case Judge Morrow gave a decision in favor of Starr & Co., but, on a rehearing, reversed and gave a verdict for the Golgate Ship Company for the amount claimed. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday reversed Judge Morrow's decision and ordered the libel dismissed.

FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

Lawyer Jeffries of Seattle Has a Plan for Their Relief.

He Would Incorporate Them Into a Co-operative Commonwealth.

A large audience of laboring men listened last evening at the Labor Temple on Turk street to the presentation of a plan of practical co-operation which its promoters think is destined to satisfactorily solve the vexing question of what to do with the unemployed.

The speaker of the evening was E. J. Jeffries of Seattle, formerly a printer and later an attorney, who for two years past has given his entire attention to labor questions. His address excited considerable discussion, not all of which was favorable to his proposition. Another meeting to consider the scheme will be held this evening on the steps of the Mint on Fifth street.

The title given the new scheme is the "Co-operative Commonwealth." It proposes to associate the unemployed single workingmen in a corporation, of which each shall be a shareholder, and in which no one shall own more than one share of a par value of 1 cent. It aims to establish a headquarters where the members shall eat and sleep. It proposes to distribute dodgers asking for orders for work and will maintain a telephone at headquarters by which such orders may be received. When work is ordered men are to be detailed to perform it and the money so earned is to go into a common fund. When the corporation becomes prosperous it is intended to pay suitable wages to all members, withholding from each a small sum—say 10 cents a day—for a reserve fund. This, when it shall become large enough, is to be used for the purchase of land upon which the unemployed may work, becoming producers instead of consumers.

Mr. Jeffries stated that a "co-operative commonwealth" had been started in Seattle and another in Portland, and that both were in a very prosperous condition. To get his headquarters started he proposes to interest perhaps a score of people who will solicit donations of food, bedding, stoves, dishes and so forth. Then he will set a table which shall be free to every unemployed man who desires to join the organization. He expects to have no difficulty in securing members, because, as he remarks, hunger is a great persuader. Having joined they will be set to work, and any one who will not work will be expelled and at once become a fit person for police attention as a vagrant.

By means of this plan Mr. Jeffries says he can care for all the unemployed, giving them wholesome food and a comfortable place to sleep at a maximum cost of $1 a week each.

"There's no place like home" when the food is prepared with Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

DECIDED TO REMAIN.

The Traffic Association Takes on Another Lease of Life and Will Begin Anew.

The executive committee of the Traffic Association held a postponed meeting yesterday, and discussed the question of disbanding or continuing as an organization.

Some members argued that there was little or nothing now to be done. General Manager J. S. Leeds, who was really the head and energy of the concern in many ways, had gone East, and on that account the usefulness of the association had come to a close.

This opinion did not find favor with the majority of the committee, however, and after some discussion it was determined to continue the organization.

Since the association is to take on a new lease of life a sub-committee was appointed to consider in what particular respect the body could be of most benefit to shippers and importers. A week from next Wednesday the sub-committee will make its report.

Saved the Babies.

A crowd of laughing, playing babies were saved from injury and possible death by the brave promptitude of Officer Wollweber late yesterday afternoon. The little ones were frolicking on the edge of the sidewalk, when a runaway horse attached to a buggy dashed toward them. The stalwart young policeman saw the horse tearing down the street, but did not intend to try to stop it till he noticed that the maddened animal was headed directly for the group of children. He at once sprang at the horse's head, grasping one line of the bridle with both hands. The officer was swung off his feet, but kept his grip and was dragged thirty feet before he finally brought the horse to a standstill within a foot of the spot where the little ones were huddled together in terror and dismay at the impending danger.

HUNTINGTON'S PROMISE.

The Grand Jury Talks Very Plainly to the Railroad People.

LIFE MUST BE PROTECTED.

Everything That Is Demanded Is Promised Without Reservation.

The Market-street Railway Company promise to comply with the law requiring guards or fenders to be placed on all cable and electric cars. They have promised this same thing many times before, but now there is a probability that the much-needed protection to life and limb will be given.

The Grand Jury had a short but interesting session last night, and it was then that the railway company, through H. E. Huntington and J. L. Willcutt, promised that the law should be complied with. The matter has been before the Grand Jury for some time and the appearance of these gentlemen before that body was to explain the absence of the fenders and to name a time when the people could reasonably expect some protection from the rolling death-traps.

The railroad representatives explained to the satisfaction of the Grand Jury many things that have hitherto appeared a little mysterious to the average citizen, and went so far as to say that the company would immediately offer a reward for the safest and most practical guard or fender that human ingenuity could devise. They wanted a little time to do all of this, but the cars would certainly be provided with protectors at the earliest possible moment. Mayor Sutro was present also, pointing out the law in the case, and insisting on an immediate compliance with the same on the part of the offending corporation.

The Grand Jury also took up the case of Alonzo J. Whitman, alias Edwin J. Delafield, the forger, who was arrested in New York last Saturday. Whitman is badly wanted in San Francisco for several forgeries committed about a year ago, hence the prompt action taken by the Grand Jury. The only witnesses examined last night were Chief Crowley and J. D. Maxwell, the insurance agent who is out $500 through the skillful penmanship and suave tongue of the man now under arrest in New York. There are several witnesses yet to be examined, but there is hardly any doubt but that an indictment will be returned against him.

Last summer Delafield or Whitman came here with strong letters of recommendation, and in a short time gained the confidence of quite a number of people. He obtained entrance into the most exclusive circles of society, and one fine day in July, 1894, a number of people found themselves with forged paper on their hands.

Delafield succeeded in passing worthless checks on the following people, securing the amounts named: Vanderlyn Stow, $250; agent of the Burlington road, $100; C. Johnson, $500; Occidental Hotel, $400, $350 of which was repaid: J. D. Maxwell, $500. It is also said he succeeded in securing smaller sums on the same kind of paper, or as a loan for "a few days."

Most of these checks were given on the Traders' Bank of New York, and were returned as fraudulent. When asked about the matter he told a plausible story of mistakes on the part of the bank, promising at the same time to take up the checks in a few days. Without bidding his friends good-by, Whitman started eastward, finally landing in Chicago. It was said that he was interested with a gang of forgers in Chicago, who succeeded in placing $50,000 worth of bogus paper on the market, but there was not sufficient proof to convict. Since that time he has been following a career of crime, finally winding up in prison in New York, as published in the Call of Sunday.
